

PUBLICATIONS.

The twenty-first annual special issue of the Timber Trades Journal, of London, Eng., just issued, bears evidence of much attention and no lack of expenditure in its preparation. With a liberal advertising patronage the publishers have been enabled to produce an unusually interesting number. Although consisting of over three hundred pages, it is sold in London for one shilling. The above remarks apply also to the special new year number of "Timber."

"Timber" is the title of Bulletin No. 10 of the Division of Forestry of the United States Department of Agriculture, issued by Professor Fernow, chief of that division. It is a brief but comprehensive discussion of the characteristics and properties of wood in general, and should prove of great service to engineers, architects, lumbermen and woodworkers. The information contained therein is based on actual experiment and scientific observations, and will no doubt remove erroneous notions and lead to a more rational use of our forest resources.
