ould relieve the feelings of member states, but rather what ractical effect it might have in South Africa itself. We think that the resolution co-sponsored by India, Malaya and Ceylon eets the need of the moment, and we intend to support it with ur opinion, condone the use of force (or punitive measures) by ember states. This resolution does not condone the objectionable eatures of the 25-Power resolution. It does make abundantly lear, however, the Assembly's abhorrence of and concern over outh Africa's racial policies, and yet it does so in sufficiently oderate terms to be capable of attracting a broad measure of upport and thus bring home to the Union how widespread is the ternational feeling on this question.