

Constitution Amendment, 1987

Mr. Speaker: I declare all of the amendments lost. For the record, we have voted on one. There are seven others. I declare those seven amendments lost.

Mr. Berger: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I stand to be corrected, but I think that there are six other amendments not seven. It is just a technicality, but it is something that you may wish to check.

Mr. Speaker: In answer to the Hon. Member for Laurier (Mr. Berger), I wish to make it clear that the House has voted on the first of eight amendments, and that means there would be seven further amendments. As I understand it, it is the wish of the House that those seven further amendments be treated in the same way as the first. I declare those seven amendments lost.

The House divided on the amendment (Mr. Johnston), which was negatived on the following division:
