Trustees of Mount Pleasant Cemecemetery, running north and south. This projected road is to provide a

This projected road is to present parallel road to Yonge street.

The trustees urged more serious consideration of their proposed alternative road passing to the east side of the enclosed cemetery plot, crossing the ravine and railway tracks at the province where a bridge is now in use, narrows where a bridge is now in use, and running along the north side of the ravine to a junction with Mount Pleasant road. It was represented that space for a road thru the cemetery cannot be spared.

An invitation from the trustees to the city council to take a trip over the territory next Saturday was accepted. Last year's council made a couple of trips over the ground, with the result that a road direct thru the cemetery was favored in preference to one around the enclosed burial ground.

As the bill is expected to be dealt with next Tuesday, the trip of the council on Saturday will have an important bearing upon the city's appeal for the passage of the bill.

President Connette contended that the men had violated their agreement following a strike of a year ago, and was so well satisfied that they were in the wrong that he agreed to reinstate the men and leave the controversy to the national officers of their union for final settlement.
