CHEESE EXPORTS ABOUT $29,000,000
(Bradstreet's.)

The rapidly growing importance of the cheese industry in Canada may be gathered from the fact that the return in money to dairy farmers of this country for the cheese exports of the past season estimate to about $29,000,000. This estimate includes the cheese made during the season yet to go forward. The past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the industry in Canada. The total make has not been so large as that of some previous seasons, but the high prices which prevailed almost throughout the season equipped those of us previous years. It is a fact that on account of the smaller make of butter and the low prices ruling during a large part of the season the total dairy trade was not greatly in excess of last year, and was below that of 1903. The total exports of cheese from the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Portland for the season of 1906 were 2,538,387 boxes, of a total value of $21,228,554. For last season exports totalled 2,148,063 boxes, at a value of $18,263,635. 1906 thus showing an increased export of 109,094 boxes, valued at $2,964,919. The average price of cheese during the season was 11.54 cents per pound, or $5.50 per box in 1905; $12 cents per pound, or $6.50 per box in 1904, and 11.14 cents per pound, or $5 per box in 1903. In commenting on this record for the Canadian cheese trade, the British press says it was largely due to an increased consumption following the distrust of tinned meats. It is to be remembered these figures do not represent the entire trade in dairy products. The consumption of both butter and cheese in Canada has very recently increased. It is reasonable to suppose it was larger this year than ever before and prices were high. The entire return to the Canadian farmer, then, can only be guessed at, but its importance cannot be overestimated.

LEATHER MAY GO STILL HIGHER
(Toronto Globe, Wednesday.)

Owing to the scarcity of bark and other tanning materials, and the higher price for labor, the cost of producing leather has increased, according to the annual report of Charles King, chairman of the tanners' section of the board of trade, read at the annual meeting of the National Club yesterday. Mr. King also asserted that there had been steady and increasing demands on the leather trade, though prices had not advanced in proportion to that of hides and materials entering into the manufacture of this commodity. There were no large stocks on hand, and with great expansion due to railway construction and increased immigration, the prospects were that prices would not only hold firm, but might soon advance. There had been a greater demand during the past year for black leather for export at prices equal to the home market.

Regarding the tariff, it was stated that a committee had waited on the Minister of Finance, and had hopes that the department would give due consideration to their requests.

The Wizard of the Nile scored a great hit when presented in Halifax last week.

FIRST ICE RACES TONIGHT

The carnival in Victoria Rink next Thursday night will attract a very large crowd of young folks, for the cash prizes to be awarded are to aggregate a good round sum. Aside from this the attendance is sure to be large, for there's more fun than the proverbial barrel of monkeys in skating around in the merry throng of masqueraders in the section of a mask. Tonight in the Vic. there will be several good stirring races, the first ice contests of the season.

BASE BALL IN THE OLD DAYS

Charles F. Olive Tells Montreal Star How He Introduced the Game Here.

"The Montreal Star of Thursday, in a series of articles entitled 'The Best Sporting Event I Remember,' publishes an interview with Charles F. Olive, shipping editor of the Evening Times, entitled 'How I Introduced Baseball into St. John.' The Star publishes a picture of Mr. Olive, which looks like him yet except that his head was rather heavily shadowed in those days than now. The interview is as follows:

In the early days of baseball in St. John, N. B., there were two or three teams which gained distinction through-out eastern Canada and the United States. Perhaps the most notable of all was the Mutuals, the first organization to take up the American game and play it in a scientific manner. Of all the old time, Charles Olive is probably the only one left in the city. Park Melville, of Boston, was another of the early players. Mr. Olive, who is now fifty years of age, is still a lover of sport, and can play the game better than a good many younger men.

"Do you know," said he, "that I was the first man in New Brunswick to introduce the American game? We had a scrub team here in the early days, but the boys were sent to New York for a book, from which to learn the rules. We formed the Mutuals, and I tell you baseball in those days was very different from what it is now. The men trained for it—there was no shipyard work, no dawdling—and we were all in the same concentration. Why, we always used to 'do the cartwheel' when taking our positions on the field.

"We had a great team, and one season the Mutuals played 33 games, and were beaten only once. Like those Mary, Calais proved too much for us. There were some fine games in the seventies, but the one which perhaps aroused most interest was played against the Bangor team, in Bangor, during the Centennial celebration in 1876. The trophy was a big silver ball. If we had won, we would have been members of the Centennial committee, but we didn't win. You see they were having a celebration, and we were there the night before, and the Centennial committee entertained us—they were thorough diplomats. We were not. But next day, on the field, we felt all right and put up good work. There was a big crowd, and the home team had no lack of support.

"Well, the day was dark, the sun hid himself under a cloud, and our play splendedly. It was 7:15 in the eighth inning, and we were playing together in such a way that we had every hope of winning. Fate, however, was against us. The thunderstorm came, drenched us all, and then stopped. The eighth inning was played in the pouring rain, and our play was very poor. No one could see the ball. The excitement was intense, and it was with difficulty that the crowd could be kept off the field. The ninth inning was played in the rain, and we were through the mist, warming and brightening everything, and our play was very good. No one could see the ball. They were able to hold their own in the dark weather, the rain fell weaker, but the boys were cooked their grooves, and Bangor, amid the wildest cheering, scored two runs. It was all the fault of the entertainment, and we were through.

"But what's the difference? We would never have got the silver ball home, if we had won; for both teams, and all their supporters were out for blood. It was a great game."

THE WORST IN MANY YEARS

Hardship and Suffering from Cold in the West—Travellers Frozen to Death.

DAVIDSON, Sask., Jan. 19. (Special)—That the recent cold snap is the most severe the west has experienced in many years and has cost a number of lives, is being proved by the reports of travellers being lost on prairies and perishing from the cold are being brought to town.

Today news was received here of the finding of two bodies in Red Deer Lake District, across the Saskatchewan river, and about sixty miles west of Davidson. The bodies were partly frozen and partly decomposed by wolves and partly by bears, but are believed to be the remains of two Scotch houndstems. There was no trace of horses. It is said a man was lost on the prairie near the lake thirty miles east of Davidson on Sunday night and was frozen to death.
