

WORN TREASURE CHART HIDDEN IN TRUNK LEADS TO GOLD MINE

Son of Finder Locates a Mine Lost for Many Years.

Leadville, Colo., Sept. 24.—From a solid, age-worn treasure chart, which appeared to unimportant to its author that he never gave it a second thought, Edwin Osborne, together with three companions taken into his confidence, has located a phantom mine that promises to put the quartette on "easy street."

When Leadville was young and important mineral discoveries were daily occurrences, Zach Osborne, an old prospector, made a rich strike near the mining camp of Eagle. Soon afterward he made another discovery near Leadville and never got the chance to return to the Eagle claim, which he chartered the property, and the chart soon afterward passed to his six-year-old son Edwin, when his father died.

When he reached his majority Edwin was informed there was "nothing in it," and was advised to burn it up. Curiously, however, impelled him to explore the contents, and the musty old chart added fuel to his burning indignation.

"We've got a little time, let's take a flyer at this old 'Treasure Island' stuff," Edwin laughed, remarking to his friend Hugo Mitchell.

"I'm on," his friend replied. "We can take some tackle along and pull in a few Rainbow trout, if we don't get the pot of gold."

A few hours after the search started, the four came upon the treasure ledge, mapped so accurately by the aged prospector that there was no difficulty in confirming their re-discovery.

Claims were located, and when the group returned after the search, they found that samples taken assayed 20 ounces of gold, 70 ounces of silver and a good sprinkling of zinc, one of the richest discoveries made in recent years.

"If that mine is half as good as it looks," Fye declared, "it will have something on all the Spanish treasures of the treasure hunter of fiction."

The treasure chart vein is a freak of Colorado mining discoveries in that it contains quantities of free gold, in addition to the rich ore, a combination that is seldom seen.

STREET WORK. Good progress with the restoration of the sidewalks and curb has been made by the contractor for the civic distribution system was reported this morning by Commissioner Frink.

Two new streets are being laid out in the city. In some places there had been so much material piled up around the pole that it was necessary to grade down before replacing the sidewalk, the commissioner said, and this held the work back to some extent.

The work is being extended to the first of next. The raising on the Wall street bridge has been extended in compliance with the wishes of the residents of that section.

St. John Keyed Up Over World Series. Interest is Declared Greater Than Since Braves' 1914 Drive.

The interest being manifested in the world's series this year by baseball fans in St. John is greater than it has been since 1914, when the Boston Braves made their sensational drive through to the pennant. Everywhere, in business houses, factories, hotels, bowling alleys or in the streets, the fans are discussing the great race in the major leagues and speculating on the probable winners.

The Washington Senators by their great fight in the American League have been largely responsible for the special interest, while the opposition afforded the Giants has also given the great world classic an added zest. From present indications the Senators will win in the American League and the fans look as if they would repeat in the National. This series would be a popular one, although many fans are eager to see Brooklyn win the pennant. It would be a great day for fans if Dazzy Vance and Walter Johnson, the ace of the two major leagues, were opposing each other.

Judging from comments, a large number of St. John fans will go to see the series. Inquiries regarding the series pour into the Times-Star office. The series will open on October 4, providing no tie exists at the close of the major league season. The first two games will be played in the city of the American League winning the pennant and the following three games will be played in the National League team's city. The sixth will be played in the American League city. Every seventh if necessary the managers will stop a coin to decide where it will be played.

Some fans will leave here on Saturday night and will stop in Boston to see the Senators finish the season with the Red Sox. Others will leave next Wednesday, while many will leave on Saturday, October 4, and go through to see some of the games.

IS MURDERED AS WIFE LOOKS ON

Young Contractor in New York—Assailants Both Escape.

New York, Sept. 24.—Before the eyes of his terrified wife, James R. Ardevino, a 38-year-old contractor, was murdered in the kitchen of 57 West 168th street, the Bronx, by an unidentified assailant. A second assailant is believed to have been thrown from the building by Ardevino, before he was shot and escaped.

Ardevino made a desperate battle for his life before two of the three bullets fired at him struck their mark. One lodged in his right lung and the other in his abdomen. He died within a few minutes after he was hit.

Mrs. Ardevino and his young wife, Vinetanda, were asleep when, before 2 o'clock they were awakened by loud voices in the hall. He went to the door to investigate and shouted, "Who's making all that racket?"

Those outside demanded to be let in and when his wife recognized an Italian accent in the voice she opened the door.

Mrs. Ardevino had gone back to sleep and was reawakened a few minutes later by the firing of the shots. She ran through the dining room into the kitchen and saw her husband lying on the floor with a man standing over him pulling her husband's hair. As she entered, the murderer, apparently frenzied, crouched down and hit the dying man on the leg. Then he jumped "I've been shot," Ardevino muttered to his wife as he died.

The matter to be discussed at this meeting has not been disclosed.

May Have Match Race. Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 24.—A growing sentiment among mariners in this port that the yearly schooner races between fishermen of America and the Canadian Maritime Provinces, should not be allowed to lapse culminated in the sending of a telegram to H. R. Silver, chairman of the trustees of the International Trophy by the American Race Committee.

The trophy was withdrawn from competition this year as a result of the inconclusive result of last year's series when Captain Angus Walters of the Glancon entry, Bluenose, sailed away without finishing the races after being ruled against for failing to sail outside one of the buoys.

In addition to an increasing desire in this port to see the international races continued, there has been of late a growing agitation in favor of a challenge to Captain Walters to meet the Gloucester boat Columbia in a special match race in late October, for a purse to be laid.

CHEKIANG LEADER AGAIN IN TROUBLE. Revolt of Soldiers is Followed by Strike of Arsenal Workers.

While the central government at Peking is carrying out its plans to meet the offensive of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian leader, who reports some further successes on the Chihli-Manchurian border, interrupting the capture of Chaoyang just across the line, the Kiangsu force, allied with Peking, is making another attempt to reach Shanghai.

Lu Hung-hsiang, the Luchun of Chekiang, some of whose troops recently revolted, is having further trouble, some of the workers in the arsenal at Langhsu, where his headquarters are established, having gone on strike.

Lu, too, apparently fears an attack on Shanghai from the east, having established a new defence line east of the port. It is possible that he expects Sun Chuan-fang, just appointed commander of Chekiang by Peking, to move in this direction with the Peking army, which he organized, under the Luchun of Chekiang in the north, which he invaded Chekiang from the south.
