SKIRTS BELOW ANKLES.

Paris, Feb. 3—The first of the openings for the spring and summer, 1922, has taken place here with the initial presentation of Margaine-Lacroix whose models show a tendency to use a great deal of color trimming and feature much longer skirts, which fall below the ankles. Black is used as a background for such brilliant color touches as black and royal blue. Changeable effects are an other noteworthy item of the collection. Among the trimmings, cut out work is of great importance. Fabrics include crepe with a feature made of dresses fashioned from painted pieces of this material.
