RUSSIAN STORM Estimated That a Thousand Lives Have Been Lost.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.-Words cannot describe the winds that swept across the Sea of Azov last week. It will be impossible for days yet to compute the damage done, but it is almost certain that one thousand have perished, some by drowning, others by being crushed under falling houses. The excitement is great among the American colony in this city, for it is feared that at least two parties of American tourists were in the Sea of Azov at the time the wind did its deadly work. All the afternoon there has been a string of persons at the American ministry asking, almost begging, for news from Odessa, whence the tourists were to have started on the regulation sight-seeing trip across the Frimea, visiting Sebastopol, Balaklava and the other famous battle scenes. The parties were separate, but it is thought they started within twelve hours of each other, and according to the schedule of these excursions they would have reached the Straits of Kertch yesterday morning, going thence by steamboat north to Berdiansk, where they would ske a train back to Odessa. It is said he leader of one of these parties had proposed a trip a short distance north rom Temrink into the land of the Black Cossacks. If his party branched off in hat way they have undoubtedly perished, for the storm raged almost along the entire east coast of that state. I s hoped that some lucky chance delayed the excursion yesterday so they could not each their embarking port to-day. At a late hour there was still a general report of the disaster on which to base surmises of the Americans' safety. The wind was first felt at Nogaisk. Nogaisk is peopled mostly by fishermen, who were out on the water. hurricane had swept out to the north a terrible scene was presented. The village was razed, overturned, as if an immense plow had pushed throug it. Lying verywhere were women and children. dead or in the last agonies. The shallow waters of the Sea of Azov were lashed to such a height that it was plain every ishing boat must have been sunk. The yclone swept on to the northwest after wrecking Nogaisk. Its path seemed to have been unusually wide, for at Marinopol it devastated the country to a point eleven miles inland and had its outer edge far out in the sea. Marinopol was practically blotted out of existence. Not three houses in a hundred are left standing. It is estimated that three hundred persons perished in this place alone. North of here the cyclone made a sudden turn to the east over Dolga points. Its left edge inflicted slight damage to the town of Berdimsk. Houses were unroofed and a dozen persons killed by fall-

Once at sea the storm made its full fury felt. Of the steamers that touch ar the port of Berdimsk, not one came n at the hour of the latest report. Grave fears are expressed that every craft on the sea has gone to the bottom, and that every passenger is drowned. When the winds swept over the northern end of Azov they took a new course, and going scutherly along the coast of the land of the Black Cossacks, Turneisk, and Achuev were ravaged, each town being almost totally destroyed. Telegraphic communication with this district is destroyed and it is impossible to learn the extent of the destruction, but at least one thousand persons must have died on the two shores. The storm, as nearly is can now be learned, seemed to sudnly lose its force near the Emernk and passed off with comparative quiet southerly over the Black Sea.

Rev. Heatan Say Reports of Suffering at Pullman Were Exaggerated.

I undertook to make the Pullman com-pany's bid low in order to secure the my instructions the cost of material and labor was figured on the basis of a reduction in wages. Then I had the matter under consideration here and in New York for about two weeks, and finally put in a bid for something between $300 and $400 a car below the actual cost. I made up my mind that the company would contribute that much rather than have the men idle. Up to the time of the strike we had lost more than $50,000 in pursuing this policy. I explained this personally to the men when they were having their conference with Mr. Wickes, Mr. Heathcote said they wanted the wages of 1893. I said it would be a most unfortunate thing for all of is should the wages of 1893 be restored, because there was not more than six weeks work in the shops, and we would be unable to get more on a basis of the

TESTING NEW GUNS.

A Good Gun, but Too Big a Target for Opposing Forces.

New York, Aug. 29 .- One of the fifteen nch guns constructed by the Pneumatic Torpedo Construction company was subjected to a further test at the Sandy Hook proving grounds yesterday, in the presence of members of the board of ordnance and a number of artillery officers. One of the guns was loaded with a six inch dummy projectile weighing 146 pounds, the charge of compressed air being one thousand pounds to the square inch. Superintendent Creelman elevated the gun to an altitude of thirty-four and one-half degrees, decided that all was clear and pulled the lever. The dummy sped from the mouth of the gun through a cloud of vapor and could clearly be seen describing its course until it fell into the water 3200 yards away. Major Rapieff. Haskin observed to Captain chief engineer of the Torpedo Construction company, that the extreme length of the gun would render it a conspicuous mark for the fire of an opposing force. Captain Rapieff said the gun could easily so that the barrel only would be visible, and, he added, "Even if that were shot away the gun would do considerable execution without it." The officers present were: Major Phipps, Captain F. Heath and Captain Crosier of the ordnance board; Major Haskin, Captain Hubbell, Lieut. Harlow, Lieut. Murray, Lieut. Cruickshank, of the First Artillery, and Lieut. Hannon, who is on duty here. A number of tests will be made on Friday with the eight inch gun, in which a new breech has been placed.
