Why the name was changed to Saint John North, and Carleton designated West is a problem not easy to solve as any one standing in the centre of the old city would not be likely to speak of Portland as to the North or Carleton to the West. Perhaps our city fathers in their laudable endeavors to rectify the wrongs of the past will speak of the old city as Saint John West, and the Rockwood Park and Marsh Road section as St. John North.

Market For Spruce Remains in Same Condition

BOSTON, June 1.—The market for spruce remains in much the same condition as during last week. Frames have been sold again this week at con cessions of 50c, and $1 from regular rates, but it is only fair to say that at $24 business can be done only when the order is an casy one. Furthermore, there are other sellers who continue to insist upon $25 and who are finding customers willing to pay that figure. Now, as always, the quality of the lumber and the reputation of the mill for delivery are factors in determining the price. About the future there is admittedly some doubt. Confidence about the ability of manufacturers to maintain prices throughout the season

Eastern hemlock boards, cut to lengths and dry, are not easy to find. A seller would want for them $23. A buyer would be disposed to balk at this unless he was in real need. Matched spruce boards look firm at the figure quoted.

PARIS, June 1.-The information re eently received from Berlin increases the regret that Prince Bulow has taken ill, as it looks like as if since his temneed, and their name is legion, think, evidently, that there is nothing to be lost and possibly something to be gainful.

The control of the German policy, both home and foreign. To the outward observer the trend of the German policy for the last four years seems so simple that the Eastern hemlock boards, cut to seems to be applying va banque to an explanation for it, because if there ar ance of Germany, Austria and Italy, and on the other the dual alliance of mand, but more mills have started and sellers are obliged to content themselves with rather more moderate prices. It is doubtful if more than $3.65 could be obtained today and there are stories of 15c, less having been accepted. One producer has certainly come down to that,

Laths are dull and sellers at all and sellers are still in fairly active demands on the other the dual alliance of France and Russia: Great Britain might by throwing her weight es either side have played the role of arbitro of Europe. Then came the Transvaal war which awakened in Germany the idea that Englan's was a brazen figure with feet of clay. That semed to Wilhelm-strase to eliminate the most dangerous factor. When therefore, Russia show-the police, and Russians are being excepfed. One producer has certainly come down to that.

Laths are dull and selling at a long range. For 1% inch round wood laths a seller would esteem himself fortunate if he could obtain more than $3.65. There is said to have been business at less. For slab laths $3.85 is about outside.

Clapboards are now attracting to themselves a very fair share of attention and are firmly held.

The former, unfortunately, convinced him that he had only to roll his eyes and knit his brows and France would drop what they described as only a first. what they described as only a flirtation with England. The Kaiser ed to them, and the Tangier visit was

The result was the absolute contrary of what his irresponsible advisers promised. France made certain conces sions, it is true, but held faster than ever to the entente with England. Then came the Algecras conference, and with it the new development of and with it the new development of German policy, which has has, so far, has simply disastrous results. Italy refused to folow the German lead at Lageras, with the result that it was practically told by the Berlin press, when the Vesuvius disaster occurred, that it was a visitation of Providence for its attitude at the Conference. To the Rusian note regarding the attiture of her representatives at the Morocco Conference the Wilhelmstrasse replied by boycotting the Rusian loan and expelling Rusians from German territory by hundreds a day.

The net result of the Kalser having taken council of his irresponsible advisers is that he has alienated Italy, incurring the enmity of Russia, and undone in France the work of thirty-five years. To this policy may be attended to five the foreign and his wife, daughter and grand-child.

Germany's policy was clear. If Russia "won out" in the Far East, she was bound to Germany by a debt of gratitude for services rendered; if, on the other hand, she was defeated, the debacle was all the greater and Germany had a possible enemy the less. This is what the English mean when they say to "run with the hare and hunt with the hounds." a somewhat difficult operation. The curious thing was that Russia's natural sily, France, was helpless. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance simply tied her hands.

Everything went acording to German ideas, except one thing, and that was the rapprochement hetween England and France. Count Bulow had counted on the rival siliances to bring about antagonism. He did not reckop on the fact that, as natiner Power could afford to oppose the other. The Angli-French Convention came like a bomb shell on the German Foreign Office, It was only after Mukden that France got her lesson, and everybody knows that it lost nothing in the keeping.
