wheat crop for 1898 was published today. It puts the crop in round numbers at 54,000,000 bushels, which is slightly under the last estimate given out. Deaths. - SWEET.—At Country Harbor, Sept. 1, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Sweet. The little one was about 10 months old, died of cholera. - BONNELL.—On the 7th of August, at East Jolly Mountain, Col. Co., Mrs. George Bonnell, after a prolonged and very tedious illness, which she very patiently endured, passed easily away, aged 32 years. Her end was peace. She has left a sad husband and four children to mourn their great loss. May the dear Lord Jesus sanctify this bereavement to the sorrowing husband and take care of the dear motherless ones. - STARKY.—At his home, Johnston, Queens Co., N. B., Aug 24, of paralysis, Mordcaid Starky, aged 65 years, leaving a widow, two brothers and many others relatives to mourn their loss. About three years ago, deceased was led to make a public profession of his faith in Christ, and was baptized by Rev. J. D. Wetmore and united with the First Methodist church. Shortly after he began to show signs of failing health. He had several slight strokes of paralysis. His illness was of long duration, but we trust his end was peace. - WEEKS.—Foster J. Weeks was born in Montreal, September 8, 1815, and died at Sydney, N. S., March 6, 1898, in the 82nd year of his age. The deceased was of Episcopal parentage, and studied for a time under his brother, the Rev. Otis S. Weeks, with the Episcopal ministry in view. But at the age of twenty-nine he was converted, baptized by Rev. George Richardson and united with the North Sydney Baptist church. About twenty years ago his membership was transferred to Sydney church where, for the last fifteen years, he was a faithful and respected member of the Board of deacons. As husband, parent and citizen, his memory is blessed. The sturdy virtues of honesty and urbanity were ever dominating features of his life. After having given nearly a half-century to the extemplication of truths dear to the heart of the ascended Christ, with a calmness born of conscious victory he met the last enemy and peacefully fell asleep in His arms. At the principles of the Peninsular War his father, Lieutenant Weeks, who had seen active service under Wellington, was stationed at Montreal. When Foster was but an infant in arms the family embarked for Sydney. In a terrible storm which overtook them the ship was lost and hundreds of persons drowned; among them the nurse, who was holding the infant at the time. As the child was sinking a man grasped him. That man being swept away, another caught the babe and he was amongst the few saved. As the years roll on he purposes entering the ministry of the state church. But God frustrates the purpose and times the changes to bring him and his intelligent Christian wife into fellowship with those whose most distinguishing tenets are, separation of church and state, a regenerated church membership and complete religious liberty. Though dead he yet speaks for these principles through his children, and through two of them ably from platform and pulpit. He leaves a widow, four sons and two daughters. Two of the sons are pastors of Baptist churches in Ontario—Revs. J. W. Weeks, of Smith's Falls, and W. W. Weeks, of Brockville. They all look forward with Christian expectancy to the time when those long parted meet again, and those who meet shall part no more.

On Saturday, Sept. 18, the death occurred in St. J. R. Narraway, a highly esteemed of the Methodist ministry in 1845. He was a man, especially well informed on recent topics and possessed of prominent speaking. He was his day one of the strongest in the connection, and his reputation as a lecturer on moral and religious subjects was of interest. For a time he performed services to his denomination, and was the editor of the Wesleyan.

There is some danger of the new is not always the true; for it is that while the old has summation in its favor, the old doctrines, old methods that are simply perished and the sooner they are discarded the better. The new is more than a suspicion of man when he proclaims by the 'old gospel'. Why not the old gospel or a the true gospel, and in some things as old as the and some things as new the sky in a September

IT'S TRUE -- OAK HALL MALL SAID IT.

We do some very ridiculous things sometimes. Up till Saturday night, September 16th, we will sell you Men's Suits at half price—half what they're marked. This is how it happened: A short time ago a man (in the business) asked us if we had any odds and ends of Men's Suits to sell cheap. We said, yes! and showed him a pile of two hundred or so 'odd patterns of tweed suits, stock of 1 and 2 seasons ago. We lumped the whole at half the retail figure and he said he (thought) he'd take them, and would let us know later in the day. Of course he came back, but we'd changed our mind a little. We decided to give our friends the pick of the whole lot at the same figure we offered him (half price), and said, you can have what's left at that. He was disappointed, to be sure, but he left a deposit and will take whatever you don't buy up to Saturday, the 16th. The retail prices of this lot of suits ranges from $5.50 to $13, but you can have them up till Saturday for half what they're marked. $13 suits will be $6.50; twelve dollar suits $6; eleven dollar suits $5.50, and so on down to the $5.50 suits at $2.75. Out of town customers who can't get to the city in time can write for them, and if they don't suit send them back and get your money (you pay express charges).

A few weeks ago we advertised Boys' Suits at half price, and said so in time for friends to send their money and get their suit. We didn't get a solitary mail order that day but have received dozens since. People should learn to read our advertisement first, news afterwards. You bring (or send) your boy here for his suit for more reasons than one. You know he'll be treated just the same alone as with elder care. You know if it don't suit the home folks you can send it back and get your money. You know he will get just as much for your five dollars as if you came yourself. You know you're perfectly welcome to look, to price, to question, to enjoy our stock—We enjoy too. We take that boy of yours (or boys) from the time they put on pants and keep them in good clothes all their lives. We have Kilt suits for boys 2 1/2 to 4 years of age; and Sailor Suits to fit boys 3 to 8 years; and Tweed Blouse Suits. Plenty of odd pants to fit boys any age. We stand absolutely alone in some points of the business. Practically unlimited exchange of goods. Cash refunded, unquestioned, for goods returned. The extension of the inflexible rule of one price to all alike. Goods marked in plain figures. These innovations of trade are referred to to-day, not only as a matter of history, but to say that we have more confidence than ever in the wisdom of the unaltering principles that this store is working under. No man is the only wise man in the world, no store is the only perfect store in the city. We are simply searching towards perfection in business methods; not expecting to reach the goal by chance but by doing things in the proper way at the proper time.
