Much is said about the importance of education; the necessity of education for the advancement of our society. We students who have begun our university education at Regina College must realize, at least in part, the value of higher scholastic achievement.

At times during the year, an observer might have thought that we did not really come to university for the knowledge we could absorb. The S.R.C. was sponsoring terrifically important functions which had to be supported. These took a great deal of our time and effort and were excellent for broadening our interests and expanding our circles of friends. Most of these activities have been recorded in this magazine so that any time in future years that we may fall to reminiscing, we may take out the "Freshman" to refresh our memories.

But basically our task at Regina College has been to assimilate as much information as possible, creating a good foundation for our education-to-come. And this learning should make our lives fuller and happier for as Horace Mann said: "Education alone can conduct us to that enjoyment which is at once best in quality and infinite in quantity." It should also make us better and more capable citizens for "Education makes a people easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave."

We have had a wonderful year of "living and learning" at Regina College. The "Freshman" will help us to recollect the "living". Let us hope that the "learning" remains with us and that we build on it, thus improving ourselves, our community, and our country.
