H. S. D. Webb Pleased to Find St. John Such a Live City—Will Try to Arrange to Handle Larger Quantity of Canadian Products.

Saturday, June 25.

Among the passengers arriving on the steamer Ocano yesterday morning was Harris S.D. Webb, of Georgetown, Demerara, who is on a visit to Canada to look into the trade possibilities of the dominion. Mr. Webb is a son of Samuel Webb, secretary of the firm of Waitting & Richter, who carries on a big wholesale business and import large quantities of goods from Canada and the United States. He will go from here to Halifax and thence to Montreal and Toronto.

Talking to a reporter, he said he wanted to see how flour was milled, fish cured and various other goods that his firm handles, are prepared for the consumer. He will also try to arrange for handling a more extensive line of Canadian products.

Trade between Canada and Demerara, he says, has improved greatly in the last few years, and there is a good market for the island for Canadian flour, cured fish, lumber, etc.

His firm recently built a large cold storage building in Georgetown and they hope to work up a trade in butter, eggs and meats. The building was erected only about a year ago, and thus far the trade in this direction has not been very great, but it is thought that with proper cold storage facilities on the steamer considerable business in this line of goods can be worked up.

The exports from Demerara consist mainly of sugar, rum and molasses. The former is shipped largely to Montreal direct, though it was only a few years ago that the bulk of the business was handled via New York. The rum and molasses are shipped to the United Kingdom. The British commission inquiring into trade relations between the West Indies and Canada, was in Demerara recently and gathered information that is expected to result in improving the trade between the two countries.

Mr. Webb has never been in Canada before and he said he was surprised to find that St. John was such a large city. He had supposed it was only a small village. It was refreshing, he said, to get into the cooler weather. In Demerara the thermometer seldom went below 80, and it reaches 135 degrees in mid-summer. He will leave this evening for Halifax.

Monday, June 27.

Many citizens in St. John, especially those of the older generation, will read with profound regret the death of William P. Dole, LL. D., which occurred Saturday night about 7 o'clock at his residence, Sewell street. He suffered a stroke of paralysis about a year and a half ago but had been in the streets frequently since then. His health, however, steadily failed and he was confined to his bed a great deal. Dr. Dole was one of the best known men in the city. He was for years connected with the Globe, for which he wrote many special articles and reviews. He was an excellent classical scholar and at all times an interesting conversationalist. During his long life he had been a keen observer of men, manners and events.

ITALIAN AT POINT OF DEATH IN HOSPITAL; ASSAILANT MISSING

Proprietor of North Street Shop Found in Pool of Blood With Gaping Wound in the Head—Sharp Instrument Had Penetrated Brain—Police Searching for Companion—Were Quarrelling Saturday.

Monday, June 27.

Lying on a bed saturated with blood which was pouring from a gaping wound in the back of his head, M. Diego Siracusa, a young Italian, better known as "Charlie," was found about 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Policeman Rankine and a lad named Joseph Jones. The discovery was made in a little room in the rear of a grocery shop the Italian conducted at 37 North street. His friend, Andy Rose, another Italian, who had been seen with him late Saturday night, is nowhere to be found. People who happened to pass the store late Saturday night heard persons quarrelling in the store, but took no notice of the affair. Yesterday afternoon, young Jones, who has been in the habit of going to the store on Sundays, called at the shop but found it locked up. He went back later in the afternoon but the door was still locked. Recalling the quarrel of the night before and being a little suspicious, he informed Policeman Rankine who went back to the store with him. Not being able to gain admittance through the door, they opened a small window in the rear and crawled through. Inside they found everything in a state of disorder. Clothes were lying all around the floor, and it was evident that some sort of a tussle had occurred there. Going into another small room they found Siracusa lying on the bed unconscious. Several empty whiskey bottles were also lying around, and there was a loaded revolver under the bed. Word was sent at once to Coroner Berryman, who was soon on the scene. He ordered the man to be taken to the hospital. The ambulance was summoned, but did not arrive until near 6 o'clock.

Was Operated On.

Siracusa was taken to the hospital in a very critical condition, and operated on. The operation showed that he had a punctured wound of the occipital bone extending into the brain substance two or three inches.

It is thought by many that the injured man had been lying unconscious since early morning when those passing heard the loud words, and if such was the case it is a wonder that he was not dead before assistance arrived as he lost a great amount of blood. His companion Rose, who, if caught, will likely have to answer to the charge of murder, has disappeared completely, and last night the police were hard at work trying to obtain a clue to his whereabouts.

Word was sent out to other places telling the police to be on the lookout for him. He is described as follows: Twenty-one years of age, 5 feet 4 inches in height, weighs 140 pounds, has grey eyes, fair face, clean shaven, has red cheeks and broad shoulders, hair blonde or brown, straight build, head slightly stooped when walking. He has a very short neck and on Saturday was wearing a dark brown suit with a blue throat running through it. He had no vest on, and wore a white shirt. His hair was parted on the left side, and he had on a hard black hat.

May Have Been Robbed.

It is not exactly known what the cause of the quarrel was, but it is thought to have been over a girl, with whom he had been keeping company. However, Siracusa's gold watch and chain and a roll of money which he was known to have, are missing, which looks as though he had been robbed also.

The wound is just at the base of the skull and was evidently made by a small sharp instrument. A large sized stick was lying on the floor of the outside room, but no trace of blood could be found on this. Rose was formerly employed with John DeAngelis in his shoe shining store on King street, but later he has worked, it is said, at the New Brunswick Cold Storage plant. He was formerly employed as a clerk in Siracusa's store and has boarded with him for some time past. On inquiry at the hospital at a late hour last night it was learned that the injured man was likely to die at any time.

Tuesday, June 28.

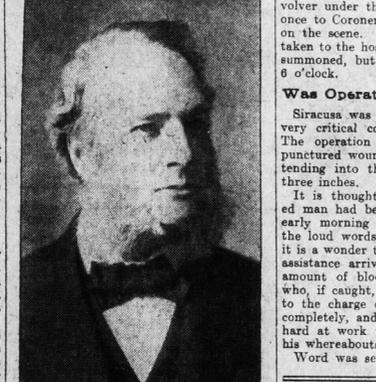

Andrew Rosa, the twenty-one-year-old Italian, who it is alleged, so brutally assaulted his fellow countryman, M. Diego Siracusa, in the latter's home in North street, at an early hour Sunday, was captured by Detective Killen at Welsford station soon before 8 o'clock yesterday morning. He was in a terribly exhausted condition when arrested. Detective Killen handcuffed him and brought him immediately to the city. Questioned by the detective, he admitted throwing away a .32 calibre revolver on the Marsh road. On Monday morning he was taken to the spot in company with the detective and Policeman Gosline, and half way between the one mile and three mile houses the loaded revolver was found. He is also said to have admitted that he struck his companion with the intention of "knocking his brains out." He had in his possession when arrested, a gold watch and chain, as well as $75, believed to be the property of his victim.

DARING ROBBERY IN NORTH END STORE SATURDAY NIGHT

Cash Drawer Robbed While Proprietor Was in Back Shop Waiting on a Customer—Two Boys Arrested on Suspicion—The $75 Which Thieves Took is Recovered.

One of the most daring robberies that has taken place in this city for some time, occurred in the North End Saturday night when the grocery store of W. J. Dalton, 89 Main street, was entered and $75 stolen from the cash drawer. The proprietor was in the rear of the store waiting on a customer when the robbery took place. By a clever piece of detective work on the part of Policeman Hamm, two suspects, Patrick Quinlan and Thomas Gallagher, each about 16 years old, were arrested, and the money was recovered in full. The plan taken by the boys to rob the store was a clever one. The two lads under arrest had met earlier in the evening, and according to reports which reached the ears of the police, the Quinlan lad told Gallagher where they could make "a good haul." It appears that the boys knew all the workings of the Dalton store, and about 11 o'clock they sent a small boy about six years old into the store for five cents worth of potatoes, evidently knowing that Mr. Dalton would have to go into the back store for them. When Mr. Dalton left the front store to go for the potatoes, Quinlan, the police think, entered the cash drawer and extracted the $75. There was about $100 in the drawer at the time, but the lad in his haste did not take it all. Putting the money in his pocket he jumped over the counter, and away.

When Mr. Dalton came out of the back store, the little boy told him that a man had been behind the counter and had stolen some of the money. Mr. Dalton went to the door of the shop and saw a boy running down Harrison street. Policeman Hamm happened along and after hearing the facts, started to work at once on the case, and within an hour's time he had both boys in the station. They were found at their homes, in bed. They at first denied all knowledge of the affair, but the police say, when pressed, practically admitted their guilt. The Quinlan boy took Policeman Hamm to a vacant lot on the Strait Shore where $50 of the money was found. After arrival at the police station, he said he knew where the remainder of the money was. He was taken back again, and in another vacant lot on the shore, the remaining $25 was found. From what could be learned, the police believe that Quinlan was the prime mover in the robbery, and the charge against him on the police books reads as follows: "Arrested on suspicion of having stolen $75 from the store of W. J. Dalton, Main street, on Saturday night." Gallagher is being held as a witness. It is thought that there is a third party implicated, but so far the police have been unable to find him. Quinlan resides with his parents on the Strait Shore, and Gallagher lives in Sheriff street. Policeman Hamm is receiving much praise for his prompt and efficient manner in which the matter was cleared up. The boys will likely be brought before Magistrate Ritchie in the police court this morning.

The Late W. P. Dole, LL. D.

and so he had a retentive memory his anecdotes of the earlier life of the city and country were well worth listening to. During the American civil war many of his articles were used editorially. He was in thorough sympathy with the north and entered earnestly into the controversies which were waged during that stirring period.

Dr. Dole was born in this city eighty-five years ago. He was a son of Mark Dole, who came here from Newburyport (Mass.) and carried on a carpenter business in the city for several years. His mother, who was Miss Fowler, was descended from the Loyalists. After receiving his early education, Dr. Dole studied at King's College, New Brunswick, now the University of New Brunswick. He graduated from there in 1849, winning the gold medal presented by Lord Douglas for the best English essay. After his graduation, he studied law in a private school under the tuition of the late Dr. Patterson. He afterwards studied in the office of the late Chief Justice Ritchie and was admitted to the bar in 1852 and practiced his profession till 1871, when he took up school teaching. He first kept a private school but later he was appointed to the principalship of the old Grammar school, now the High school. Some years later he was appointed school inspector, which position he held for about six years, when he was made examiner of the civil service, acting as such for three years. At the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the N. B. in 1900 he was given the honorary degree of LL. D.

Dr. Dole possessed a fine literary style and besides his newspaper articles, wrote much, both prose and poetry, for the magazines. He was prominently identified with a magazine conducted here by the late Dr. George Stewart. One of his odes, written on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the landing of the Loyalists, was bound in book form and enjoyed a wide circulation.

Deceased had a genial personality which was much appreciated by all who came in contact with him. Among his many pupils are quite a number who have attained eminence in the various walks of life and who are now scattered all over Canada. All these will regret to hear of the death of their old preceptor, of whom they have many kindly memories. He is survived by two daughters, Mary P. and Annabel P. of this city, and one son, Richard Dole, manager of the Bank of New Brunswick in East Florenceville, who is now in the city. There is also one sister, Mrs. William Spiller, of Waterville (Me.).

Statistics show that in the city of New York there are 25,000 women who by their labors support their husbands and families.

The lace dress, whether of Chantilly or other handrun laces, will undoubtedly be a feature of the coming season.

JUMPED FROM BRIDGE TO DEATH IN THE RAGING WATERS BELOW

Patrick O'Neill, Inmate of Provincial Hospital, Ended Life Saturday Afternoon—Several Persons on Bridge at the Time—Was About Seventy Years Old.

In full view of several people who happened to be passing over the Suspension bridge about 3.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Patrick O'Neill, a native of Restigouche and an inmate of the Provincial Hospital for the Treatment of Nervous Diseases, climbed to the top of the bridge and hurled himself headlong into the falls below. He sank from view but came to the top in a few seconds and people on the bridge could see his body being carried by the swift running tide for about 100 yards. He disappeared again, this time for good. Although it is thought as though some one of those who happened to be on the bridge at the time could have run to the man and prevented the suicide, no such effort was made, all apparently being dumbfounded at the suddenness and horror of the affair.

The man was about seventy years of age and had been an inmate of the hospital for the past four or five years. He was kept in the workmen's ward, being allowed to go out and come when pleased. He very seldom left the ward, however, but seemed to care much about going around the grounds. On Saturday afternoon he left the ward, unnoticed, and it is thought went directly to the falls, one of the guards noticing him around the grounds. He was not missed from the institution until about an hour afterwards, when some one telephoned to the hospital to ask if anyone from there had come over to the falls below. Inquiries were made at each of the different wards, and it was found that he was the only man missing. Men were sent on in every direction to look for him, but to no avail.

He was a very quiet patient and never gave the doctors or attendants any trouble. Superintendent Anglin, speaking of the affair last night, said: "O'Neill was the very last patient I ever thought would take his life in such a manner. He was such a quiet old man that no one would ever think he had any suicidal intent."

The deceased is survived by one son who resides in Restigouche county. It is thought that the remains may be picked up in a day or so at some point along the river. A report reached the city late last night saying that a man's body had been found, but upon investigation there proved to be no truth in the rumor.
