Canada's Smaller Wool Crop Affords Food For Thought

Col. Robt. McEwen's champion car lot of Canadian weather lambs, "Southdowns," at Chicago International Show.

Farms in the British Isles support 24,000,000 shorn sheep, while the whole Dominion of Canada supports but 8,000,000, one twelfth as many. Yet during the fiscal year ended March, 1924, woollen and knitting mills imported into Canada some 19,375,925 pounds of raw wool.

In Canada, in 1922, according to the Census of Industry figures we had 277 woollen and knitting mills, which employed some 22,000 workers. Yet in 1922, countries abroad sent into Canada $38,000,000 worth of woollen and knitted goods, and in 1923, $41,000,000 worth, representing employment for some 17,000 to 20,000 workers. Although during the past year the wool and knitting industries have expanded to some extent and, particularly in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, have new mills opened up, it is seen that only about half of the woollen goods sold in this country could have been produced here. Raw wool, grown in Canada, comprises but a small fraction of that which is used by the mills that are operating in the Dominion.

There is not enough wool grown to supply the demand of the world. Japan and China, the staple clothing and bedding materials for which countries were formerly silk and cotton, are rapidly becoming great wool consuming countries, imports to Japan alone having jumped 700 per cent in ten years.

Thus it is seen that the Canadian wool grower has not only a growing domestic market, but an ever increasing foreign market for his clips, yet sheep are rarely given due consideration by Canadian farmers even though they have been dubbed "mortgage lifters" in the West.

Col. Robt. McEwen of London, Ont., president of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, who won the championship for a car-load lot of Canadian weather lambs, "Southdowns," at the Chicago International Show, has said, "taking Canada as a whole it has been proved that climatic conditions are favorable to sheep raising. ### NICTAUX

May 13—A quiet and pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bartheaux on the evening of May 7th, when their son, Charles A. Bartheaux was united in marriage to Elsie M. Whitman of Middleton. The parlor was tastefully decorated for the occasion in yellow and white. The bride wore a dress of blue tulle with a white lace train to match. Immediately after congratulations a dainty lunch was served, and the happy couple took their departure, while the boys and a number of the older citizens or friends were preparing to serve them. They have since returned and began their life together at Hiller at Farm near Torbrook, and been duly serenaded. They received some very useful presents in silver, also a neat sum in bank notes. We wish them a happy and prosperous future.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Banks have 99 guests at their home, Mrs. S. E. Durling and Mrs. Westzell, the latter of New Germany.

Dr. Howe and wife from Mass. are here on a fishing trip and are being entertained by Mrs. Banks.

A young daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Saunders on May 6th. Mrs. A. M. Spinney has been at this home the past two weeks.

Mrs. Derman of Lowell, Mass., arrived here a few days ago and is living in the home of Elmer Dunn.

Mrs. H. H. Foster returned to her home recently, after having spent the winter at the old home in Williamson, with her brother.

Mrs. Hattie Ritey, of Halifax, spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. L. F. Varner returned on Friday last from U. S. where she has spent the winter with her brother Mary Varner spent Sunday at her home.

Sorry to hear that Mrs. Robert Nixon and Mrs. Will Nixon and family are soon to leave Nictaux for U. S.

Miss Etta Hicks of Centerville was a guest in town on May 12th.

Mrs. Rackham and Jean have been the guests of her parents, at Dublin. Rev. Harry Rackham, Eric and Paul were also week end guests.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Banks on the arrival of a son May 16th.

Mrs. Edith Balcom attended the funeral of her son, at Tupperville, last week.

The sympathy of the whole community goes out to Mrs. Stanley Hall and family in the sad bereavement.

Mr. Carman Marshall of the Royal Bank staff is enjoying his vacation at Clarence.

Mrs. Willet of Tupperville is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Hall.

Mr. Gordon Pries who has been attending Mount Allison during the past year is at home.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Stoddart on May 14th.

Several reports of recently caught salmon fishermen have been heard.

Mr. Donald Chase of Port Williams was a guest in town on Sunday.

An ounce of powder behind the bullet, in a gun of the right caliber is far more effective than a ton of it in an open field.

ing disease has visited our flocks. Yet today we find ourselves up against the serious economic condition of consuming more wool than we produce, and for a comparatively new and fertile country like Canada to have reached the stage of deficient supply for such an essential as clothing should surely demand the serious consideration of us all."

But although wool growing as an industry in Canada does not come up to what might be expected of it, those who are engaged in it are highly and effectively organized as regards marketing. In 1914 those in charge of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, Ottawa, began to urge that sheepmen be more careful in putting up their fleeces and that they stop selling at any old price which might be offered locally. Following their efforts various sheep breeders and wool growers' associations throughout Canada began to collect wool from their members, this wool being graded in turn by expert graders supplied by the Dominion Government and being sold on the graded basis. As more and more local associations were formed, it was felt that all should be affiliated under one central selling agency with the result that in 1918 the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association was formed with headquarters in Toronto. This is a commodity marketing organization handling wool only, having about 2,500 shareholders and approximately 12,000 shippers of wool throughout the Dominion. Individual clips are collected at various points for shipment in car-load lots to the central warehouse at Weston, Ont., for grading and sale.

At the present time this organization, which operates from coast to coast, is handling from a quarter to one third of the Canadian clip reaching the open market. Its influence is being extended more and more each season as will be noted from the fact that in Ontario alone the number of shippers has increased from 8,200 in 1922, to 4,000 in 1924. The various grades of wool are sold at equal advantage in Canadian, American and English markets, and it is perhaps noteworthy that during the past two years approximately three-quarters of a million pounds of Canadian graded wools have found a market with English mills.

Traffic Deaths

In some of the larger centres of population on this continent, the newspapers print a paragraph daily under a stock headline, "Traffic Deaths." As regularly as news from the weather bureau this paragraph appears. The papers have not space to print details of street accidents. And besides, people take it for granted that the war is still in progress, the war between those in motor cars and those on foot. No one is shocked to learn that its victims numbered five six or seven today, four, five or six yesterday. If twenty are killed, there is a sensation. But the paragraph headed "Traffic Deaths," recording that a mere half dozen were struck and killed by automobiles during the day, is accepted as a matter of course by all except the few who see a friend's name in the list of the dead.

The people of Nova Scotia not only will support but to positively desire exercises of the communities' police power to make motor car homicide as nearly impossible as it can be made with absolute certainty. The principal cause if not the only cause of motor car accidents is fast driving.

Of course pedestrians should take care and of course children should be warned, as probably all children are, that playing on the street is dangerous. But it is the duty of the driver of a motor car to drive at such a speed that he is certainly and unmistakably ready for any emergency.

There are scores, probably hundreds, of motorists who habitually drive at a rate which makes a caution impossible. If these people do not kill or maim, it is because their luck is good. They take their lives, and the lives of other people, in their hands, fully relying on good fortune to keep them out of trouble. It is extraordinary, as a chief of police said the other day, that their gamble with the lives of their fellow citizens is so successful. It is amazing that some one is killed or hurt every week by a motor car in almost every town.

Narrow escapes are common every day on nearly all main streets. It is of little use to hope that any accident will chasten the speed maniac of the province. What is needed is wholesale prosecution of careless drivers by the police.

War In 1928, Maybe?

The election of Von Hindenburg is the beginning of the end of the German Republic, and the first step toward restoring the Kaiser to the throne. This action of the German people will put an end to all hopes of permanent peace in Europe. There can be no doubt that the policy of the new President will be to unite Austria with Germany under the Habsburgs. He has not at any time shown favor for the present form of government. Essentially an Imperialist, he is also a militarist. In fact he is the embodiment of that ideal. The Germans know that as clearly as they know anything. And they deliberately select him as the head of the nation. Apparently the masses of Germany are militaristic. They like the Junkers, are for revenge. Der Tag will again become the national toast, and the warlike spirit will be stimulated by every device that can be used for that purpose. France must view the event with deep anxiety. So must Britain, and in fact the whole of Europe. Self preservation, will compel the whole continent to organize on a war footing. Instead of the reaction of armaments, there will be a strengthening of military forces. The burden of huge standing armies will grow heavier. Fear of the future will be the predominant feeling among the smaller states, while the Allied statesmen will have to adjust their policies to preparation for another war. Marshall Foch has predicted another war in 1928. Last week but little attention was paid to his prophecy. Now, however, his warning must be taken seriously, for the Kaiser and his family are again in power through Hindenburg, and await but the psychological moment to take the reins of government and prepare for The Day.

Bootleggers

Bootleggers occupy a unique position in Canada. They can carry on their illegal business, make enormous profits, and pay no taxes. The case of Cecil R. Smith, who appealed against the payment of income taxes, is one of the most curious and interesting in the annals of the Canadian courts. He was assessed in the London district for $23,000 on an income of $100,000. He admitted an income of $25,000. But he resisted the assessment on the ground that the money came from a business not recognized as legal and, therefore, not properly levied upon by the government tax collector. The Exchequer Court rejected his ground to defence but when he appealed to the Supreme Court the finding of the lower court was reversed. And because the man's business is illegal—and in fact criminal—the court held that he could not be assessed. The law provides for the assessment on incomes from businesses which may be legally carried on, and because bootlegging is not legal the income from such an enterprise is not assessable. The course of reasoning by the Justices of the Supreme Court will be gathered from the words of Mr. Justice Mignault, who said, "If the gains derived from crime are within the contemplation of the statute, then the expense incurred in making the gains, that is in the employment of criminal agencies, would be chargeable as reductions against them, and as to all information furnished by the wrongdoer, there would be a promise of secrecy for his protection." It is exasperating for men doing a legitimate business to be called upon to pay a heavy income tax, a sales tax, a receipt tax, and a cheque tax, while another man engaged in a traffic which it proved against him would send him to prison, escapes all these taxes. Truly, in Canada, the wicked flourish like a green bay tree.

"Marketing is farm problem," says Secretary Jardine. He might have added that due precautions will be taken to see that farmers do not get control of the problem in a way to interfere with the market control long resting in other hands.

Throw Up Sponge

Russian Communists have practically thrown up the sponge, and admitted that Karl Marx theories are impossible. They started out in 1917 to apply the ideas of Marx to national government, and stuck to it with great persistence. But now the Soviet Government is making new concessions to capital and private property, indicating further radical changes of policies and disengaging from Marxist theories amounting practically to the laying aside of the principles for which the 1917 revolution was waged, according to information from Moscow. Bucharin, a prominent Soviet leader, has framed a law for presentation to the Fourteenth Soviet Congress, now in session, allowing the establishment of private banking concerns free from Government control. Banking concerns will be permitted to elect their own directors and managers. The Soviet People's Commissar is presenting a law to the same congress approving the private employment of labor. Hereafter any person or company will be allowed to employ up to 20 persons without consulting the authorities. For employment up to 100, the employers must get the permission of the local government. For employment of more than 100 contract must be made among the labor unions, the government and the employer.

ployer. Zinoviev has approved both the banking and labor laws, stating that the present chances of starting a European revolution are slight, and that idealistic policies must be abandoned for years, perhaps for decades.

"These sky writers have nothing on me," chuckles the journalist as he wrote a natty on the moon. It is a good idea to kiss the children good-night, says O. W., if you don't mind waiting up for them. Something we would like to see: "Love Laughing at Locksmiths."
