DANGERS OF HUNTING.

An Englishman was recently invited by a New Yorker to accompany him on a hunting trip to Long Island.

"Large or small game?" laconically asked the Briton, who has hunted in every quarter of the globe.

"You don't expect to find lions and tigers on Long Island, do you?" queried the New Yorker.

"Hardly," responded the Briton with a laugh, "but I like a speck of danger in my hunting."

"If that's the case," answered the other with a grin, "I'm your man, all right. The last time I went out I shot my brother-in-law in the leg!"

Facts About New South Wales.

Interesting facts regarding agriculture in New South Wales are given by Trade Commissioner J. S. Larke, of Sydney, N. S. W., in a recent Trade and Commerce Report. The population in 1897 was estimated at 1,301,780, and in 1908 at 1,605,032. The area under all crops in 1898 was 1,821,829 acres, and in 1908 it was 2,570,137 acres. During the last four years there has scarcely been any increase in the acreage cultivated. The average value of the production per acre was in 1898, £3 8s. 7d., and in 1908 it was £2 11s. 3d. In 1902, during the drought year, the average value per acre was only £1 16s. 10d. The principal crop was hay, largely composed of wheat, barley and oats, cut in the green state, and lucerne. Nearly one-fourth of the acreage sown to wheat was cut for hay, and two-thirds of the acreage sown to oats was utilized for the same purpose. Next in order are wheat, maize, and sugar cane. The production of oats and barley was comparatively small. The average yield per acre for ten years was: Wheat, 9.8 bushels; maize, 27.4 bushels; barley, 14.1 bushels; oats, 18.2 bushels; potatoes, 2.2 tons. An improvement in agricultural practices is noticeable, chiefly in the provision made for keeping stock in good condition. Silos have been built on 312 farms, and about 12,856 tons of silage preserved. One agricultural college and thirteen State experimental farms have been established. Live stock in 1907 included 578,326 horses, 2,751,193 cattle, 44,461,839 sheep, and 216,145 swine. There is a slow but steady increase in the number of comparatively small pastoralists. In 1897, four hundred and six persons had from 20,000 to 50,000 sheep. In 1902 the number had been reduced to three hundred and twenty persons; in that year, one hundred and four had from 50,000 to 100,000 sheep, and in 1907 there were only sixty-six persons. In 1897, twenty-one had 100,000 sheep or over; in 1907 the number had fallen to seven, while those having under 20,000 sheep had increased from 14,623 persons in 1897 to 22,780 in 1907. In 1907 the wool production totalled 367,446,000 pounds, valued at £17,185,126. Frozen-meat trade also shows rapid development. In 1907 the output of butter was 60,041,449 pounds, and of cheese 4,586,857 pounds. The 1898 figures were 31,483,601 pounds of butter, and 3,245,312 pounds of cheese.

GOSSIP.

Mrs. Adam Beck's far-famed Standard-bred mare, Sparkle, gave birth on May 19th to a beautiful filly foal, and as the sire is Sharplow (imp.) (6557), it is safe to predict that this royally-bred little princess will carry the honors of her father and mother to the show-ring. As she can be registered in Canada and the United States as a full-blooded Hackney, we hope that Miss Sharp Sparkle will show the world that, through the union of two natural trotters we produce natural trotters. "Like begets like." Sparkle is to be bred back to Sharplow.

To get a foal to suck the teat for the first time is by no means an easy task if the youngster is at all disposed to be awkward, and many of them are, especially with young mares having very short teats, and occasionally a foal dies of starvation before he acquires the art. As a general rule, and with a healthy, vigorous foal, it is better to let them try to find the milk on their own account first, as they often resent interference, but with the first foal it is often necessary to hold the mare's head to prevent her turning about after the colt. If the youngster cannot succeed after repeated attempts, assistance must be rendered before it gets too weak to stand steadily on its legs, and it may take three people—one at the mare's head, another to steady the colt, and the third to coax his head in the right direction. This may sometimes be done by standing on the opposite side of the mare and give the foal a finger underneath, on which some milk has been drawn. If he sucks this, he may be gently drawn towards the teat, and when once he has had a good taste, the trouble is over. Patience and perseverance are the qualities needed for making an awkward foal to take to the teat.
