

old Fort two Days, till that he was much Wounded and the best of his Men Kill'd, and then beat up a Parley. And the Conditions were,

1. That they, the Indians should give him Mr. Potesball's Sloop.

2. That they should not molest him in carrying off the few People that had got into the Fort, and three Captives that they had taken.

3. That the English should carry off in their Hands what they could from the Fort.

On these Conditions the Fort was Surrendred, and Capt. Weems went off. And soon after the Indians set on Fire the Fort & Houses: which made a terrible Blast, and was a melancholly Sight to us poor Captives, who were sad Spectators!

SECT. III. After the Indians had thus laid Waste Pemmaquid, they ~~Of the~~ ^{trans-} moved us all to New-Harbour *. And when we turned our backs on the Town my Heart was ready to break!--- I saw the Captives my Mother; she spake to me, but I could not answer her! the nearest That Night we tarried at New-Harbour, and the next Day Indian-Village East-ward of Pemmaquid went in their Canoes for Penobscot. About Noon, the Canoe which my Mother, and that which I was in, came side by side: whether accidental or by my Mother's desire, I cannot say. She asked me, How I did? I think I said, Pretty well, (tho' my Heart was full of Grief). Then she said, O, my Child! how joyful & pleasant would it be, if we were going to Old England, to see your Uncle Chalker, and other Friends there? --- Poor Babe! we are going into the Wilderness, the Lord knows where! --- She burst into Tears, and the Canoes parted! That Night following the Indians with their Captives lodged on an Island. A few days after, we arrived at Penobscot-Fort; where I again saw my Mother, my Brother and Sisters, and many other Captives. I think, we tarried here eight Days: and in that time the Jesuit had a great mind to buy me. My Indian Master

* New-Harbour is about two Miles East of Pemmaquid, a small Harbour, much used by Fishermen. Before the War there were about twelve Houses, but the rumour of War, disposed them to secure themselves, by forsaking their Habitations.
