Ex-Policeman James Greer is feeling badly over the statements given out by S. Merritt Wetmore, secretary of the was bare of furniture. Greer says that he had earned money working longshore and has provided for his family, that he can prove by the grocer and clothier that he has provided for his family, and that he has five rooms furnished. He says that his wife is unfortunately demented, and this morning he took her to the Provincial Hospital. He had a certificate from a physician for her admittance to the hospital, but the doctor informed him that he had seen articles in the press regarding Greer, and he would not accept the woman as a patient until he had made further enquiry into the case. Greer was therefore obliged to return to the city with his wife. 2 3

PASTORS DAUGHTER ACCUSED

Edwin E. Martin, a commission merchant residing at 413 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, will reveal many things that the husbanr hoped to conceal for the sake of all concerned. The action teen men to the doctor for examination | has been dragging on for a year, but challenged in the best society in Brook of two sisters who married brothers. George W. Martin, jr., and his wife, Mary, are said to side with the plaintiff, as is Dr. Hamilton, who for many years was pastor of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church and the De-Kalb Avenue Methodist church, and recently has been active in a national movement for the support of superannuated ministers of his denomination. It is said that the woman's father will be against her at the trial, which will probably take place next week, as the defendant has already suffered nervous prostration because of the suspense attending the action, and according to physicians may break down utterly and lose her eyesight unless the matter is disposed of quickly.

Mr. Martin says that he cannot understand why his wife should demand a jury trial in view of the scandalous light in which it will place her, but that he has stood much and can stand more if the matter is only hurried to a speedy conclusion. He says that his wife was forgiven often for infidelity and promised time and again to sin no more, but that she invariably broke these promises until he was at last forced to bring action for divorce in order to safeguard his eight-year-old daughter Marjorie. He named as corespondents Dr. Harold D. Meeker, who was engaged to the defendant before Martin married her; Dr. William C. Woolsey of 88 Lafayette avenue and four others. Three other men are mentioned-including a professional baseball player but are not named as corespondents because the plaintiff says that their offenses against him were condoned. Both of the doctors at different times were family physicians to the Martins, and the plaintiff alleges that Wooley and the defendant made confessions to the latter's father, which confessions prove infidelity and are framd in affidavits by the father. They are said to be among the sealed papers in the Almet R. Latson, president of the Union League Club, represents Dr. Meaker and his name has been withdrawn. The reason given by the plaintiff is merely "for the purpose of expediting the case." Mrs. Martin is epresented by J. Arthur Hilton, who is described as counsel for another corespondent, Frank G. Morris of 28 Herkimer street. Franklin J. Taylor represents the plaintiff.

The Martins were married on June 29, 1899, after a courtship of about two years, and resided at 413 Lafayette avenue, removing to 41 Hancock street, where a separation by mutual consent was recently effected. Martin went back to the Lafayette avenue address at 1432 Pacific street, where her husband alleges that she continued conduct which he previously had forgiven her:

Among the papers on file are limletters in which the writer says that she is not altogether to blame and that she shouldn't be made to suffer alone for the follies committed by two. Even her people had stopped trying to make her good and didn't love her any more, according to these letters, which are said to be in the handwriting of the

Pending the trial of the suit, Mrs. Martin has made no claim for alimony or counsel fee because of the generous allowance which her husband voluntarily makes her, but Marjorie, the daughter, spends half the time with her by order of the court, and this is one of the things that the plaintiff cites in his request for an early trial. He says that the wife is unfit to have the daughter with her and that that is one of the matters which has worried him into a state if ill health.

In an answering affidavit Batonyi declared that his wife was the victim of a coterie of persons who were using her as a tool.

Mrs. Batonyi says in her affidavit that immediately upon the announcement of their marriage in July, 1906, her husband induced her to apply to her sister, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, and Mr. Hewitt for money, her father, Frank Work being very angry with her and quite sick besides. She said that her family agreed to pay her $2,000 a month, and it was arranged that she and Batonyi should go abroad. They came back in the fall of that year and went to Newport. In August, 1907, he gave her $2,000, but induced her to return $1,500 of it. So far as she could recall this was the only money Batonyi ever gave her.

"The defendant's abandonment of the plaintiff," said the affidavit, "was very possibly with the hope and expectation that the plaintin would be able to effect a reconciliation with her father and obtain a large income from him and a large interest in his property, and that thereupon he intended to renew his relation with the plaintiff, but having become advised that this attempt at reconciliation had failed and that the plaintiff had no longer found that this money came from Mr. lefendant abandoned her and left her without any means of support.'

Mrs. Batonyi said that as the results of investigations instituted by her she became advised of such facts as to and Mrs. Martin went to live in a flat her husband's character that she determined to sue for an absolute divorce. After she had begun suit her husband requested her to return to him and these requests were accompanied by threats of the most horrible character ericks addressed to Dr. Woolsey, who of what he would do to this plaintiff seems to have been the favorite, and in the event she dared go on with the proceedings against him."

Mrs. Batonyi asserted that Batonyi Batonyl was indulging in affectionate expressions toward her and sending through the improper use of his position as defendant in the divorce proceedings in making scandalous and untruthful charges against her, which he was compelled to withdraw. Batonyi's affidavit, submitted by Morris Cukor, denied all his wife's allegations and said

"I will spare her and hers as much as possible, for I still believe that she is the hopeless victim of a coterie of people whom he repeatedly character-ized as a selfish, unscrupulous crowd and who are using her as a tool against me to further their own greedy purposes."

5 and Liverpool a few days later w nearly 500 passengers for this po Halifax and Philadelphia. She me the first of the great fields of ice yes terday, but up to this morning Progress was fairly steady.

With the approach to shore the Mor golian met more strenuous resistene when the narrow harbor of St. John was sighted, the great steamer force its way through the ice floes until position about a mile off the harbo pening had been gained. There sh stopped, the power of the engines an the stout hull unable longer to suc essfully cope with the great irregula stretches of ice. The steamer's effort o run the blockade are believed have left her in a condition at leas somewhat strained, but the fisherme who managed to reach her side over the closely packed floes could discer. no appreciable damage. Tonight th combined action of wind and tid strengthened the grip of the floes, and the Mongolian was completely su rounded, unable to advance or recede Gazed Wistfully Although assured that they were in no immediate danger the passenger board the Mongolian crowded the decks and gazed wistfully at the harbor lights.

There the two great, frowning sides of the solid cliff appeared as sentinels to the harbor wherein rested the pasngers' safety. Soon some of the anxious eves discerned a little steamer which was headed to them. The of ers of the Mongolian explained that it was the coastal steamer Prospero which had been sent out by the agent of the line to take off passengers and mails and the hopes of the passen gers grew, only to be dashed again a Prospero came to a stop just a the mouth of the harbor, where the onrush of the tide had packed th varied shaped cakes in a conglomerat mass, impossible of penetration. Ther the little steamer lay during the night with her lights set, an ever-present reninder of the stiuation in which both teamers were held in common. The hardy fisher-folk, undaunted I the fate of the two steamers, traversed the ice floes tonight and reached the side of the Mongolian where they held nverse with officers and pasengers, the latter envying them their adaptability to the treacherous and shaking With the thought before ther that it might be only a few hours before they would be forced to find their way to shore over the same insecure path, the passengers followed closely the little movements of the fishermen as they passed from cake to cake and cessfully reached the harbor mouth All imagined that should they have recourse to that means of escape uld be an experience such as would bably never be equalled during their
