UNDER THE STARS

BY S. E. KISER.

ever came and ever departed again,, in him again. Northport Junction would resume its Thinking of Tom naturally caused some girls and treated others so that it had become necessary for him late," the operator informed her. "What time do you light up here? plain girls fair if it had been distri- substantial citizen of Springfield had of hopelessness and went outside buted among them. Such was the returned before him. The substan- again. If Northport had looked disoperator's reasoning. The operator tial citizen had seen Tom and Mrs. mal to her before, it now seemed at Northport Junction was a philoso- Danforth together in Chicago. Of desolate. While she was trying to ing her the fact neither added to her to do so "in good time." And Helen on the main line.

$$\disp\alpha\alp OR three hours Helen Sibley had For some reason she was thinking been waiting at Northport of Tom Harlow. Perhaps it was be-Junction. Luckily the even- cause of the loneliness of her suring was pleasant, so that she was roundings. It was nearly a year not compelled to sit in the stuffy, sinde she had refused to listen when dingy little station. There was just Tom had said that he could "explain one pretty thing about Northport everything in good time," and for Junction, and that was Helen. If months she had thought that she the train for which she was waiting was never going to have any interest habit of being about as unlovely a her to think of Mrs. Danforth, the spot as one might find within the pretty, young grass-widow who had While Helen remained, the place something mysterious about Mrs. went away. would possess one attraction that Danforth. People talked about her, She thought over all this as she utes late, but there's a washout up the drew away from him and shrank a troubles to get out. So ste drafted me would have lent distinction to a far but nobody seemed to know just impatiently waited at Northport road, and she may be held up all little farther into her corner. more important and a far more splen why. She had come to Springfield a Junction. A dozen times she tried night." did centre of activity than the Junc- stranger and she had been careful to to fix her thoughts on other things, "That's encouraging," Tom remark- to explain to you. I supposed you were tion was ever likely to become. leave her past behind her. It had but always they turned back to the ed. "What I've seen of this place already at Medford. I was going there" The operator in the bay window not taken her long to find friends, old subject. She became angry with doesn't make me yearn to spend the to tell you." that jutted out into the point of land and she was quickly admitted to the herself at last, and more for the pur- night here. Where's the town?" between the branching tracks evi- best social circles. With plenty of pose of trying to forget Tom Harlow dently had an eye for beauty, as well money, she lived at the most fash- than with the hope of obtaining inas an ear for Morse. As Helen walk- ionable hotel, she entertained lav- formation she went into the station ed up and down the platform he ishly, and her clothes were the talk and asked the operator if it was farm house half a mile down the track, watched her and became thoughtful. of the town. Then, one day, she dis-likely that the train for Medford He wondered why it was that nature appeared, and on the following would arrive on time. bestowed her gifts so lavishly upon morning Tom Harlow told Helen "She's just reported fifty minutes course Tom had assured Helen that count the appalling number of min-But Helen was not tunking of it was all right, but he had not ex- utes that she would have to wait,

"There's a washout up the road."

after the train had gone on she no- been a cluoudburst." ticed that the man was walking slow | While Tom drummed with his finly down the cinder path beside the ger tips upon the ledge of the ticket track toward the station. For window the operator lighted the lamp carrying a suit case. station, Helen sat down, turned her been turned on Tom Harlow looked back toward the door, and waited, silently at Helen, who sat with her hoping that no one would come in and back toward him, her head bent and fearing something that she could not her face hidden in her hands. The ophave explained. Her corner was so erator turned to his instruments, dark, and she remained so silent that which were clicking frantically. Tom entered without noticing her. "Helen," Tom said, very tenderly ford?" he asked at the ticket window. She looked up at him, and he saw come between them. There was time" could never come. So Tom "It's pretty hard to tell," the opera- that there were tears in her eyes. He tor replied. "She's reported fifty min-reached for one of her hands, but she time she didn't want the story of her

"Isn't there a hotel of any kind?" "No, nothing in that line except the where the night operator and I board." "I suppose there's no hack?"

possessed might have made a dozen A week later he returned, but a Helen turned away with a feeling in such a lonesome place as this. It's ty.

getting pretty dark." "Just a minute. Here's my call." to be disappointed.

the Junction Helen saw a man step your mind to hang around here all down from one of the Pullman cars night," said the operator after the inaway at the rear. She paid no at- strument had ceased clicking (he tention to him, supposing he was a spoke rather loudly for Helen's benepassenger who had merely stepped fit); "they say the track is washed off to get a breath of fresh air, but out in half a dozen places. There's a moment she gazed at him and then in his office and then proceeded to ilhurried inside. It was Tom Harlow luminate the waiting room, which served for both men and women.

Selecting the darkest corner in the For a moment after the light had

'When does the train leave for Med- after he had paused beside her.

She stood up, and when he again attempted to take her hand in his she did not object. "Let's go outside," he suggested -and you have seen her again?" "outside under the stars, where I can "No, I have neither seen her nor tell you everything-where nothing heard from her. The man has made a will be between us and heaven."

The operator was busy and did not the papers." notice that the waiting room was emp- She walked away from him, crossed

"You see, Helen, it was necessary time, looking at the silent hills that for Mrs. Danforth to take somebody lay deep in the gathering shadows of into her confidence," Tom said. "For the night. At length she turned, came The operator turned to his unstru- some reason she selected me. Her half way back to him, and then stopments and Tom Harlow waited at the former husband, who was a scalawag, ped. He approached her, held out his ticket window, hoping there might be had informed the secret service agents arms, and asked: philosophy, and if she had noticed that the operator was eagerly watch— that the operator was eagerly watch— that the operator was eagerly watch— that she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry. The curve around the hill train for Medford; but he was doomed to wait, she had been smuggling jeweiry.

into her service, and I couldn't very well beg off. She was a woman in distress, that was all." "But why didn't you tell me before?"

Helen asked. "She had asked me not to tell anybody until she gave m prmission to do

"Then she has given you permission confession, and the wnole story is in the platform and stood for a long about his neck and laid her neck against his breast, while his arms closed about her. Thus for a long time they stood beneath the stars. When they returned to the waiting room the operator informed them that the train for Medford would arrive in ten minutes. At Medford Helen had friends, and at Medford there were preachers.

Live News Notes From Rencontre

We are informed that the s.s. Susu has been ordered to St. John's again' for the annual repairs and we trust Messrs. Crosbie or the Government. will give us another boat to do the service during her absence.

Last year the people were hampered somewhat for mails and freight, owing to having the steamer taken off, and we hope such a thing will not. occur this time. Where is Charlie Emerson? Now is the apportunity for him to be up and doing his duty by giving the people of his District an explanation of this serious matter and see that another boat is immediately placed there for the benefit of the people concerned.

Not Captain's Fault We are not attributing any blame to Captain Horwood for such an objectionable action and we sincerely trust that he will continue to perform the good services in the future as he has done in the past. He is obliging and faithful in his duties and is always ready to do his utmost to suit the requirements of the people, but when orders are given him he must humbly submit or otherwise take his dismissal.

Caplin and codfish have struck in fairly plentiful and some good catches have been secured.

The lobster fishery is somewhat short compared with recent years, and those entirely dependent on this fishery say it is the worst on record. Much Appreciated

Mr. Parsons, our industrious and energetic teacher is doing excellent work since opening the school in April and it is the wish of the people to keep him here, knowing that his place would be hard to fill.

as regards church work and is full of push and energy, and much credit is attributed to her for her valuable services as organist given to us on Sun-Mr. Stone, one of the writer's best pupils, who was teaching at Corbin, came here recently to spend his iholi-

Mrs. Parsons is always to the fore days and then will proceed to St. John's to enter the college to study for a higher grade. All of our young men are now away some to the Banks and others to Portau-Port, and we hope that when the time comes round they will all wend their way home safe and sound and with well filled purses. Rencontre East, July 6.

A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN

Every successful business man can give reasons for his prosperity. Most essential to any success is a careful and ceaseless attention to details, Every well conducted office or store in the world finds that simple and effectual filing systems are an absolute necessity. No employer will waste his own time or allow waste with his staff by using old fashioned methods. The benefits derived from the time and money-saving system which "Globe-Wernicke" devices encourage are selfevident. Not a paper can go astray when the "Safeguard" method of this Company is used. And no matter how complicated your filing problem, no matter how peculiar, no matter how small or how large, the "Globe-Wernicke" can provide you with the equipment that will place every record at your finger tips. Why not investigate? Mr. Percie Johnson represents the "Globe" in Newfoundland.

For Sale! ONE

MOTOR BOAT Very pretty model, in good condition, with 8 horse power Motor Engine, new this year. The Boat and Engine will be sold at a bargain if applied for immediately.

pleasure nor caused her annoyance, had naturally decided that the "good When the long train stopped at "I guess you may as well make up establish an alibi, and at the same She did not speak but put her arms See the point? 1 Legisland Buy Virginia Cigarettes in the packets and save the CIGARETTES coupons. Coupons mean Premiums Imperial Tobacco Co. (Newfoundland) &