YOUNG CANADA, THE STRONG
Beyond the rolling prairies, to the far Pacific shore,
Where the mountains rise, till they pierce the skies
Rang forth the note of war,
And the cries of martyred women,
Of children torn and slain
Touched a Nation's heart, and to do her part
You lads of Canada came.
A thousand miles of prairie, three thousand miles of wave,
T'was a long, long trip, but to do your bit,
You came, the true and brave
Sons of a world wide empire, Old England's hope and pride,
There's a job to be done, and a fight to be won,
And we'll do it side by side.
And whether in France or Flanders, Egypt or Dardanelles,
You have stood the test, with the very best,
And when history the story tells,
She will speak of Vinny and Paschendale, Ypres and the Somme,
Of the part you played, and the lives you gave,
Young Canada, THE STRONG,

The school house was crowded, the musical numbers receiving hearty applause.

self was not unconnected with the strikes, and said:
"As the government wishes exactly the same thing as the majority in the monarchy—that is to obtain as quickly as possible an honourable peace without annexationist aims—it is folly to attack it from behind and to embarrass and perplex it. Those who try to do that are not fighting the government, but, as if blind, are fighting the people who may pretend to aid themselves."
Count Czerin finally asked for a vote of confidence and concluded:
"Nothing but a feeling of duty, and confidence in the emperor and the majority delegation is keeping me to my post. No minister of foreign affairs can conduct negotiations of this importance if he does not know, if the whole world does not know, that he is supported by the confidence of the constitutional organs."
"Now if you have confidence in me to conduct peace negotiations, then you ought to assist me. If you have not that confidence then you ought to dismiss me. There is no third way."

SEATS FOR SOLDIERS
The Ottawa Hockey Club has set aside a block of seats for the men on the strength of the Military Hospitals Commission Command, who are under treatment at the Sir Sanford Fleming Convalescent Home, for all the games of the season.
Miss M. McLaren, matron of the convalescent home, recently wrote to the secretary of the association expressing the appreciation of the men for the courtesy.
"To those," she said, "many of whom have lost forever the joy of freedom of action, a game like hockey has a particular charm."
The block of seats will be reserved for the men in khaki wear in the "Blue Badge of Honor" on their arms no matter how many other eager enthusiasts have to be turned away from the games.

Vacation Death Roll
During every holiday season the newspapers record a startling number of accidental deaths among pleasure seekers.
Supposing you should lose your life while on your vacation this year, what will happen to your family? Do you realize that you've a duty towards them that doesn't end with your death?
Perhaps your wife hasn't been trained to be a bread-winner. But your failure to protect her until she dies—until the children are educated and self-supporting—may force your widow into the business grind in spite of her inactivity.
It's not a pleasant prospect, is it? But isn't it a possible contingency? To offset it you need an Imperial policy to perpetuate your income after you're gone.
Write for literature and terms today. Tomorrow may be too late.
