MR. GUNDY'S OPPORTUNITY.

Mr. W. E. Gundy has still another day in which he may point out any paragraph or sentence in which The Planet misrepresented or misquoted

Mr. Gundy has the floor.

WHAT RUSSIA MAY REPLY.

Extract from order issued by the Czar to the Admiral and officers of the Baltic squadron, tollowing upon the sinking of a Hull trawler by such squardon in the North Sea-

"While admitting the extreme difficulty of distinguishing between a British trawler and a Japanese warship, his Imperial Majesty would draw attention to the necessity incumbent upon his officers and sailors of taking every possible means to ascertain that vessels upon whom they open fire are of the enemy's fleet. Though his Imperial Majesty does not personally think the matter of great moment, the blind prejudice which exists among European nations renders it necessary for reasons of policy to fire only upon Japanese vessels, albeit the luxury of attacking something which cannot reply is freely recognized. Luxuries, however, are costly, and in future my loyal officers and seamen will observe the following instructions when a vessel or vessels not of their fleet are sighted in order to ascertain that such vessel or vessels may properly be engaged-

1. "If the vessel or vessels aforesaid are warships they will probably carry guns, which by means of mightglasses and searchlights can easily be detected.

2. "If owing to fog, rain or other elemental condition, detection is rendered difficult a safe plan is to send a boat to examine the vessel or vessels referred to. If upon approaching and taking a sniff through a porthole, the officer in charge of such boat should notice a strong smell of fish emanating from such vessel he may reasonably conclude that it is a fishing smack.

3. "Great care should be exercised in not mistaking fishing nets for tor-

4. "A sword fish lying on the deck of a trawler must not be mistaken

5. "School your men in the difference between a torpedo fish and a fish torpedo."

THE CANADIAN END OF THE G. T. P.

Many people would like to know where the terminus of the G. T. P. on the Pacific Coast will be. That will be found out some day. But it is the Canadian financial and business end of the scheme, that is the pressing question. Let us see where the bargain puts it.

Originally the Grand Trunk Railat North Bay with a line to the asked. Answer, please, coast. It would build a branch to Fort William and thus have two outlets, one by water and one by land, both via Midland to Portland. That was a feasible and indeed a proper scheme for the Grand Trunk Railway Company. It is too good for the ubsididy to be needed. Why was it abandoned in favor of a project to cost the country $66,000,-

Is it, in truth, "abandoned"? How is the Grand Trunk obliged to give it up? Where has that gailroad bound itself to run over the eastern was Mr. Stephens' story at the time extension? When did it agree to cease routing its business via North teously gave him credit for it. Han-Bay to Portland? It has investments sard, however, shows that the exin Portland valued at $15,000,000. Its new store passenger depot, its new elevators, its freight yards and its extensive terminals and docks depend for their value upon freight collected west of Montreal and shipped over its line from Montreal to Portland. Is there either a word in the contract or a single business reason to bind or induce the Grand Trunk to depreciate its business interests there? The unconscious slip of the Minister of Justice in the House of Commons that we are dependent during seven months in every year upon the United States for a winter port is the Grand Trunk view. For its line eastward from Montreal forks only to Quebec and Portland and for seven months Quebec is closed. The Grand Trunk and not Canada is during that time dependent upon the United

And what is alleged by Mr. Fieldas binding the Grand Trunk to ship through a Canadian port. He says it entirely depends upon patriotism of the Canadian shipper who can, after eight years have elapsed route shipper. Merely this, that while it may cost the shipper no more in noney it will cost him more in time. And if patriotism is so potent after eight years, why has the Canadian shipper during all these years been sending his exports via Portland instead of St. John and Halifax? The Intercolonial Railway to these ports, with easy grades and low rates and nas been seeking business in Canada. Patroitism is an excellent thing in a nation. But if it enters into this question at all, it must seek to bind the transportation companies to facilitate its expression, otherwise it is but a dumb motion and not a living force in the development of

Let us face the question squarely A great railway has its business to get and keep. It seeks to do so by offering attractive rates. These necessitate the shortest possible haulage and the best handling facilities If it really be the intention of the Grand Trunk Railway to subordinate hese advantages to the general good of Canada, it is not too much to expect that any contract tending in that direction will be clear and explicit on that point and will be definitely agreed to by the Railway. Is there any such recognition and agreement? The bargain is on the statute book. Does it contain such a clause? If so, which one is it? The Conservative party assert that there exists no such provision. Will the Liberal party point it out?

The hog cholera scandal is natur ally a sore point with the Stephens supporters. They can't get round it.

Don't be over-confident. Let the other fellows do the shouting just now, while we do the working. We'll do the shouting later on

Are you voting for Stephens and the interests of big corporation bonus hunters, or for Clements and the interests of the people.

So far the Stephens organ has failed to give any reason for that candidate's refusal to let Reeve Purser and Councillor Boyer be heard at his Big Point meeting after challenging them to be present. This is about the way proposed to connect its system tenth time the question has been

> A Somewhat silly attempt is made in the Stephens organ yesterday to show from an alleged extract from this great home journal that Mr. Stephens threatened to resign in the House on the occasion of the discussion of the dredging of the giver bar. As a matter of fact Hansard shows that he did nothing of the kind. The line which appeared in The Planet of that date reads, "Will resign before taking any snubs from the Minister of Public Works." This and this great home journal courmember for Kent was again claiming credit for things which he never said and had nothing to do with It seems to be a habit he has.
