

VARIETIES.

Good Packing.—The American water- ing-places are all so crowded now that they have to resort to expedients in order to stow away the visitors to sleep at night. The following ingenious plan is spoken of as working admirably: "As the boarders go to sleep, a good mesmeric manipulator goes round, and after making a few passes gets them rigid; and then they are removed from the bed and placed against the wall. The mesmeriser receives, as his pay for his advice, the right to exhibit them by candle-light as 'the Corsican Brothers in wax.'"

Unanswerable.—"Madam," said John Wilkes, to a lady to whom he wished to make himself agreeable, "I am a plain man." "Exceedingly plain, sir," rejoined the lady. John Wilkes was silenced.

A friend of ours who has a taste for natural history, is at present engaged in cultivating mosquitoes, and hopes to have them in full season during the winter. He keeps the larvae in glass jars half filled with water, and covered at the top with coarse muslin, and as the mosquitoes emerge from their tad-pole condition, they occupy the upper part of the cylinders, where they disport themselves for four days in a living manner, and on the fifth lay their eggs, and die. In this way he keeps up "a succession of crops," and by regulating the temperature of the breeding-room, will be able to continue the mosquito business until the natural season commences. The development of the mosquito is a curious process. In the first place the egg becomes what is called the "water tiger"—a brisk little clock-faced devil, that devours all the small animalcule with insatiable appetite. In a spectrum of a water projected from a hydrogen microscope, we have seen the shadows of one of the water "fends swallow the shadow of a dozen smaller imps—the larvae midges and such "small deer"—in less than three minutes. In a due time a change comes over the monster. Nature envelops it in a pellicle or semi-transparent shroud, from which the attenuated of the mosquito stick out at one end and its tail at the other. Finally the creature rises to the surface, the caul bursts and out flies the insect like an internal illustration of the fable of Psyche. In five days the machinery of its existence, which is wound to go for that time and so longer, runs down. Such is the biography of the mosquito.

Elegant Extract.—The annexed beautiful lines are copied from a tombstone in the Protestant grave yard at New Orleans:— "There's not an hour, or a day, or dreaming night, but I am with thee; there's not a wind but whispers of thy name, and not a flower that sleeps beneath the moon, but in its hour of fragrance, tells a tale of thee."

Widows as Priests.—The Pittsburg Gazette says, the attempt to introduce women as composers in that city has been remarkably successful, and that widows make the most rapid advancement, "as their intellects are more mature, and their knowledge is superior to the most of boys when they commence their apprenticeship to the printing business." "Besides this," says the Pittsburg Whig, "we presume their previous experience in small caps, bodkins, washing forms, and press work generally, has already initiated them in several details of the craft."

The Model Widower may be seen assisting young girls to find a seat in church, or ordering carts off dry crossings for pretty feet that are waiting to pass over; is convinced he "never was made to live alone;" draws a deep sigh every time a dress rustles past, with a female woman in it; is very particular about the polish of his boots and the fit of his gloves, thinks he looks very interesting in black; don't walk out in public much with his children, when he does, he takes the youngest; reviews his old tastes for moonlight and poetry; pines single men with all his heart—wonders how they contrive to exist; sets his face against the practice of women's going home "alone and unprotected;" tells the widows his heart aches for them; wonders which of all the damsels he sees he shall make up his mind to marry—sighs to see a young man obliged to disappoint them all but one; has long since preferred orange-blossoms to the cypress-wreath; starts up, some fine day, and refurnishes his house from garret to cellar; hangs his first wife's portrait in the attic, and marries a playmate of his oldest daughter.

Education.—Education, briefly, is the leading human souls to what is best, and making what is best out of them; and these two objects are always attainable together, and by the same means the training which makes men happiest in themselves, also makes them most serviceable to others.

"Pie or pudding, sir?" shouted a waiter to one of the innumerable guests at a hotel during the spring season. "What kind of pie have you?" "Rubbard," said the waiter, as he started for a plate. "Hold on," said the stranger, as he rose from the table; "never mind it, I always take my medicine in the morning."

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL. ON the first of January next, Gleason's Pictorial will commence its sixth volume, and will appear vastly improved in all respects, with a superb new heading, new type and dress throughout, and will be printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the Pictorial has purchased the entire copyright of Barnum's New York Illustrated News, and has merged that journal in the Pictorial, the public will reap the advantage of this concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in art and in the literary departments. The same brilliant host of contributors and artists will be engaged on Gleason's Pictorial as heretofore, and a large addition is also made to the corps, both in talent and number. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such as will enable the Proprietor to produce by far the finest illustrated journal yet published, and much superior to the present state of every paper. The columns of the Pictorial will constantly be beautified by all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary department will fully sustain the high reputation it has so long enjoyed.
