The championship season will open earlier than usual because the Association clubs will be unable to arrange exhibition games with outside clubs, owing to their breaking away from the National agreement.

outside clubs, owing to their breaking away from the National agreement.

Buffalo Courier—There are now seven cities in the International with well organized clubs, but another must be secured and that at once. Utics, Providence and Hartford are the most available, and of the three Providence is the most desired. An attempt is being made to have that city join the New England League, but it will result in nothing, as the towns in that league are too small.

The mecessary vim and energy displayed by prominent business men in each of the cities represented. Hamilton, London, Guelph, Galt, Dundas, Toronto, Woodstock, Brantford, St. Catharines, with such eastern clubs as Bowmanville, Beleville, Kingsten and Ottawa should surely represent enough good cities to form a compact and paying circuit, the choice of which could form an eight-club league that would reflect honor on the game as a purely Canadian institution composed of Canadians who, if given a chance, are just as able exponents as those represented by great reputations and larger salaries and imported from the other side."

THE TRIGGER.

The question as to whether or not a Canadian team will go to Bisley in June is in doubt. The authorities of the Dominion Rifle Association are, of course, ready and willing to send a team, but the council of the National Rifle Association has not yet intimated that the annual competitions will take place this year. The first meeting at Bisley was a financial failure. The National Association incurred heavy obligations, and the receipts fell short of the expenditure by several thousands of pounds.

CRICKET.

The "original lady cricketers" are arranging dates for their second annual tour in Great Britain.

So remote is the chance of the team of American cricketers visiting England during the ensuing summer that it is said that Mr. C. W. Alcock is writing to the various secretaries with whom he has arranged fixtures and canceling the same.

A curious result was reached in a match it and the Represed between the converse.

THE TURF.
Tolede horsemen have organized a $100,000 trotting and pacing horse-breeders' association. It is their intention to build a kite-shaped track and arrange for an early fall meeting.
The record has been broken by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. A few months ago it opened a $25,000 guaranteed Futurity stake. The entries are all in, and 1,093 mares have been nominated, which is the largest list of entries ever known in the history of either the running or trotting turf.
