The motive which drove him to the crime was pure covetousness. He wished to be the only heir to the paternal estate in order that he might gratify his desire to be a high liver. This idea so swayed him that it gave him no rest day or night. He acted as if in a dream, while he was carrying out his carefully-prepared plan of murder. Of his sensations while committing the crime, he can give only a confused account. Since his imprisonment he has been seized with remorse, and has made one unsuccessful attempt to kill himself. To guard against a reputition of the attempt, he is now in chains and closely watched. He probably will explate his crimes on the gallows with will explate his crimes on the gallows with-in a short time.

The Home Rule Bill Passed.

London, Sept. 1 .- The House of Com mons agreed this afternoon to suspend the 12 o'clock rule to-night in order that the third reading of the Home Rule Bill might third reading of the Home Rule Bill might be concluded before adjournment.

London, Sept. 1.—Justin McCarthy, leader of the anti-Parnellites, was the first speaker. He said that although the bill did not have the pedantic character of finality which its opponents contended, any home rule measure must have it contained finality in principle. When Ireland should get her national parliament it would include finality in the true sense of the term. Irishmen so accepted the measure as a final adjustment of their leading grievance against Great Britain.

Irishmen so accepted the measure as a mai adjustment of their leading grievance against Great Britain.

Joseph Chamberlain, leader of the Liberal-Unionists, while declaiming all intention of questioning Mr. McCarthy's sincerity said that he could not forget how another leader of the Irish after accepting a bill as a complete settlement of the demands of Ireland, recanted and declared it was accepted only as a temporary installment. "If this bill ever be passed," continued Mr. Chamberlain, "you will have the Irish coming to Parliament demanding more and more, and putting pressure on ministry after ministry until at last some minister will be found weak enough or base enough to buy the Irish vote by granting final separation. (Here, here). The mischief that the Government has done by introducing this policy is irreparable. It has made enormously more difficult the government of Ireland; it has postponed indefinitely the hope of the completion of a better settlement. The bill belaths from chelera has so occurred there and the epidemicls apreading rapidly in the neighborhood. The custom house has been closed, several efficials having been attacked. The law courts also have been attacked. The law courts also have been stoked. Business at a standstill and the weelthier residents are fleeing from the town.

Grimsby's Port Closed.

London, Sept. 1.—The port of Grimsby.
Lincolashire, has been declared infected with choiera, and traffic between it and other British puts has been prohibited. Buring August there were 80 deaths in Grimsby trom what was called at first diarrhes and later a cholerate disease. The general belief low is that many of the ceals were due to choiera.

Riots in Madrid.

Madrid, Sept. 1.—An anti-government.

Mr. Balfour, Conservative leader, said that the House had not discussed three-fourths of the Home Rule Bill either in committee or in the report stage. The length of the debate on the Reform Act of 1832 had been quoted to show that the discussion of the present bill had been exceedingly long. But the Reform Bill involved only two principles—the substitution of gauging constituencies for rotten ton of gauging constituencies for rotten. involved only two principles—the substitution of genuine constituencies for rotten ones, and the cettlement of the franchise
whereon the electorate should vote.
The present bill was an absolute reversal of the constitution. It involved a change of every fundamental principle of the constitution. Whatwas prospect of grain to Ireland? The Irish member of Parisament had indulged in much destructive criticism of the landlords and the Irish Government, but had never produced a criticism of the landlords and the Irish Government, but had never produced a practical proposal likely to be of permanent value, and to relieve the troubles of the country they aspired to rule. The present bill was a mockery of legislation. Every one voting for it knew something of its worthlessness, and that to pass it was likely to put life into a dead carcass.

At the close of his speech enthusiastic cheers were given for Mr. Moriey.

Col. John P. Nolan (Parnellite) then arose amid laughter and cries of "Time to divide," and uttered a brief protest against the financial clauses of the bill.

The time having arrived for the third reading of the bill, the speaker formally put the motion and ordered a division of the House. Mr. Gladstone was the first to record his vote and Mr. Morley was the last. Each was accorded an ovation, as was also Mr. Ballour. The division resulted:
For the motion, 301; against, 267.

When the figures were announced the Irlsh members sprang to their feet and cheroid wildly, waving hats and handkerchiefsand the like, while the Opposition members raised counter-cheers and shouts of "Resign! Resign!" The House adjourned.
