

FOR BOYS ON THE FARM

A DISQUISITION ON SNARING IN THE SNOW.

How to Hunt Birds and Rabbits in the Winter Without Powder and Shot—Jay Birds in the Snow—Blindfolded Crows—Snaring Deer Rabbits.

"When I was a boy," remarked Uncle Jack, who found Peter sulking by the sitting room window because his father had forbidden him to borrow Michael's, the stableman, gun, "I lived in the country too, and used to bag all the game I wanted in snares and traps of my own making."

Peter only grunted. "Yes," continued his cheerful young uncle, "and I'd venture to say I could start out to-day, set a few good traps under the trees and along the edge of the woodlands and catch more rabbits and birds in twenty-four hours than Michael can shoot in a week with that old blunderbuss of his."

"And all this snow on the ground; but

SNARING DEER RABBIT.

"You wouldn't," said discouraged Peter, who was growing interested in spite of himself.

"Why this is the perfect trapping season," insisted Mr. Jack Bowles, "with four or five inches of well packed snow over everything, nobody but a few squirrels and chipmunks know where they will get their next square meal, and the majority of these snow-bound animals will venture into the most suspicious looking nooks for the sake of a few crumbs or a bit of meat. Did you never try catching crows and jaybirds in snow pits? They are about the simplest snares I know of and the easiest made."

Peter confessed he felt some curiosity on the question, and his uncle explained that with his thumb he must break through that part of the snow on which a crisp crust has formed, making a neat, round little hole not more than one inch and a quarter deep. Into this sprinkle a few grains of wheat and await developments. If two or three of these holes are made near, or under a tree in which jays collect to scold and quarrel during the afternoon, they will be sure to spy out the little feast, and some of them will feast and some one of them will stick in an inquisitive blue head. All goes well until he attempts to draw back when his proud top knot catches like the barb of a fish hook and the bird is held as firmly as if you had him in your hand.

"Now for the crow a simple sheet of white commercial note paper will do. Roll and paste this in the form of a cone with an opening at the top measuring at least three inches across. All along the inside edge of this opening smear a little bird lime, and this you can buy already prepared at any bird shop, or fill its place by boiling down some linseed oil until it is very thick and sticky. Press the paper cone up to its very edge in the snow and drop a few well cracked grains of corn into the bottom. When the crow thrusts his head in for one luscious mouthful his disgust and surprise are unbounded as he finds he cannot withdraw it, for the paste on the cone holds him as securely as the jaybird's top knot, and only human hands can give him relief.

"Another favorite trick of mine was catching birds with an owl, an old stuffed fellow I possessed and would fasten on the limb of a tree, smearing the branches about him with home-made bird lime. As perhaps you know, it is only during the day, when he is stupid with sleep and blinded by light, that the smaller birds have no fear of an owl, and if they find one recklessly wandered forth from his knot hole retreat, or discover his daylight hiding place, they will gather and punish him soundly for his midnight depredations. My dummy owl never failed to attract a congregation of birds and when once settled on the branches they stuck there until I came to pluck them off.

"However, I always preferred to catch birds in snares or coop traps that I made for myself. An ordinary coop trap set with the figure four triggers and a little meal answers for the small hedge birds and furnished little fellows that hop about on the lawn. For quail wire snares are the luckiest and most quickly made. To set up the best of this kind drive the stout stakes, each about a foot and a half long, into the earth three or four feet apart. From top to top stretch taut a length of heavy twine. At spaces five inches along this twine fasten a series of slipping nooses made of any flexible wire with the opening of every noose as large as a tea cup saucer. Let them all hang at least a fourth of an inch above the ground and sprinkle about a handful of oats or whole wheat. Such a trap is best up at the edge of a woodland or where the long meadow grass is high above the snow. Here the quail run back and forth in search of food and sometimes a hurrying rabbit will come to grief in the wire net work.

"To snare rabbits though you cannot do better than take lessons of the English poachers who build the cleverest, simplest twitch up snares in the world. A knife, a few thick shingles, some twine and wire are all the materials needed for building one. Select a spot which you suspect the light-footed, Molly cotton tail frequents and drive deeply into the ground a piece of shingle nearly a foot long, half an inch thick and two inches broad. Insert this about four feet distant from a tough little oak or hickory sapling that is not more than three feet high and from which you must lop all its branches. Now cut in the upright stick, just where the sketch I am making shows a square notch into which will fit the long pointed bait stick, that has an angle notch at one end to correspond with an angle notch in the top of the upright stick. Putting the bait and upright stick together fit into their notches a third bit of stick called the catch piece and then, tying a bit of twine to the top of the sapling bend it over until it leans in the form of an arc and the other end of the twine can be fastened to the catch piece.

"From the same sort of wire as that used in the quail snare make a running noose to hang over the bait end of the long stick and attach this to the twine that holds the sapling. Cut what remains of the shingles in strips and drive these into the ground around the trap, in the form of a pen, on three sticks, and so force master rabbit to take the first nip at the bait only by poking his head through that wire noose. He will be sure to venture and within an instant after his hungry tongue has touched the dainty morsel triggers and springing upright, will hang the poor beast as neatly as a regular galloway. But twine will snap out of place and the sapling, remember whatever else you do never set a snare for any of these animals with your bare hands, wear a pair of clean old gloves and prepare all your triggers, stakes and wires anywhere else but on the ground where you intend to lay your trap, for even a starving rabbit will think twice before venturing in where too ostensible preparation has been made for his coming."

Home-Made Foot-Scrapers. Of the many devices that aid the housewife on the farm in keeping the rooms clean, none bear a more important relation to neatness and sanitation than the humble foot-scraper by the kitchen door. It invites the men folk to clean their feet and reminds them that the door-mat will aid without an objection in keeping hall or living room floor free from the offensive mud of poor wails and the more offensive filth of the stable.

Very neat and artistic patterns of scrapers are for sale at the hardware stores, but they are usually too frail for cleaning the heavy boots required on the farm, and if placed on the porch are soon broken and thrown away. Any farmer who has the kit of mechanic's tools required on every farm can profitably spend a rainy day in making one of the patterns of foot scrapers here described. No. 1, as shown in the engraving, is made of a piece of two inch barrel hoop 12 or 14 inches long, inserted in a base made of a piece of 2x4 scantling about four inches longer than the iron. Dress out the scantling with hatchet and plane, saw off the ends to the same level, and with a saw make the slot in which the piece of hoop iron is firmly driven. Fasten to step or porch with nails or screws.

Fig 2 shows a scraper made of any piece of thin iron or steel, and can be easily fashioned from the blade of an old spade or shovel. This could be made with cold chisel and punch if wrought iron be used, or constructed more easily at the forge. Fig 3 shows a form that not even the roughest hired man with his No. ten brogans can break. This is made from a couple of old axes that have seen their best days, and while they can no longer cut they can keep two eyes ready for a scraper. The axes are set in a mortise cut in a 2x4 inch block which is securely fastened to the step.—American Agriculturist.

Natural History Class. Ocean crabs have the power of so closely resembling their surroundings that they are practically invisible.

The big horn of the Rocky Mountains seems to unite the head of the moufflin sheep with the body of the deer. South America has a big insect known as a walking stick, which so closely resembles a branch that the illusion is almost perfect. Horses or cattle cannot be driven over a field thickly grown with Russian thistles. Its seeds are carried hundreds of miles by the winds. There is a butterfly of India, which, if pursued by a bird, simply alights on a bush or tree and becomes invisible by mimicking the leaves.

The insect known as the mantis, of India, so closely resembles the orchid that it acquires a living from insects that alight on it by mistake. A Chicago butcher keeps a tame fox. It keeps his place clear of rats. The experiment was tried after cats and traps had failed. The first night the fox spent in the shop he slaughtered thirty-four rodents. Gip, the most famous rat-terrier in Texas, is dead at the age of fourteen years. His greatest feat was killing 500 rats in thirty minutes. He was provided with a rosewood coffin, lined with satin and laid away by his owner, Henry Gray.

"An odd coincidence." "Here is one of the odd coincidences of life," said my friend Williams. "Some time ago an acquaintance came to me and told me he was in great need of $15, and at considerable trouble to myself I let him have it. He promised to return it in a few days."

"When three weeks had elapsed I mentioned the matter to him, casually, and he was profusely apologetic—would send it to me the following day, sure. It didn't come, though, nor did I get any word from him. About two weeks after that I met him in Broadway. He declared it was a shame I hadn't got my money and vowed he wouldn't let another day pass without paying me."

"It went along, then, for a week or ten days, and, as my expenses were very heavy, I was considerably embarrassed and needed the money badly. One night when I was feeling particularly discouraged I sat down and wrote him a note. I said:—'My dear sir,—About six weeks ago I loaned you $15. Let the paying of it should occasion you any inconvenience allow me to hereby make you a present of the money.'

"That will bring it, if anything will thought I. Judge of my surprise when by the next morning's mail I received a letter from the man enclosing the $15. By the same mail exactly he must have received mine making him a present of it, and, by the dates, both letters were evidently written at about the same hour.—New York Herald.

A friend of Curran was tickled by the orator's retort apropos of the jury system. The friend was bragging of his attachment to it, and said: "With trial by jury I have lived, and by the blessing of God, with trial by jury I will die!"

"Oh," said Curran in amazement, "then you've made up your mind to be hanged, Dick?"

The Chess Woman's Opinion. Mrs. W. J. Baird, the famous chess problem woman of London, does not believe in woman's "intuition." She calls it "jumping to conclusions," and she recommends chess as a corrective to the tendency. She also points out that chess is a domestic accomplishment. "No woman," she says, "is compelled to leave her own fireside for the sake of chess, and, lastly, it produced no filth and general frivolity." Mrs. Baird could scarcely have said anything that would make the average woman care less for chess.

A Word About the Ankle. The ankle should be allowed as much opportunity for flexibility as the wrist. Do not wear shoes that come above the ankle; always wear flexible shoes, so that you may be able to see your toes and move. Even soft leather is too thick for the house. Discover some artistic buskin or cloth shoe for your hours of ease and rest.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

Ancient cook books are now consulted by chefs and caterers to meet the general cry for something new in gastronomy. Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earaches, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action. Sarsaparilla from Scotland are new in England. They are caught off the Scotch coast. SEILOR'S VITALIZER.

A MOST PECULIAR CASE.

Baffled the Skill of Physicians for Years.

Sprained Ankle in Childhood Followed by Years of Pain—The Means of Relief Discovered by Accident.

(From the Vancouver World.) "Another miracle, I suppose," was the mark made by a World reporter, rather aptly, the other day when he was deputed to interview Miss Alice Adams at 9 Princes street. If he was a doubter he would have been free to confess that he was not a doubter when he came away, or could anyone doubt who listened to Miss Adams' straightforward story of her case, and he is quite convinced that rough the medium of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she has been released from all her suffering. When the reporter called and made known his errand Miss Adams smiled and said: "Yes, I was cured by Pink Pills. When I was a little girl," she said, "I had the misfortune to fall and sprain my ankle. It was cared for but never seemed to get thoroughly better and all the rest of my life until a year ago I suffered pain in it. Sometimes the pain was simply excruciating. I tried a kind of remedial and took whole courses of high class professional treatment for local rheumatism, constitutional sumatism, displacement of the cord and I do not remember what all physicians gave me new names for the ailment, but that is about all I got from them. None of them cured me. The name of medicine I had taken deranged my stomach and I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the hope that they would cure my indignation. I had no thought of their affecting the rheumatism in my ankle and I started taking them before the pain began to disappear. It seemed too good to be true, but I kept on taking the pills and after I had taken six boxes the pain was entirely gone. This was over a year ago, and as it has not come back I think the cure can be called permanent. The pills also corrected the irregularity in my stomach and I am now in better health than I ever remember of having been in before. If I feel at all dispirited or ill from a cold or anything of the sort, a few of the pills now set me right. I have not hesitated to recommend the pills to my friends, and I know others who have been benefited."

Miss Adams certainly does look like a woman that chased away all her shadow of doubt. She is a living example of the power to do good that lies in a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A defective gastronomic education is seen in those who "don't like terrapin." Why will you allow a cough to lace your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided. This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.
