Germany's Attitude Toward Canada.

Germany is still making faces at Canada behind the tariff wall. The latest move of the German customs is to demand that United States ex- dent of the Congregational Union of porters of wheat, barley, peas and rye shall send with these products a sworn Statement that they were grown in the United States, the object being to prevent Canadian grain being sent in as American grain. American exporters have been mixing the superior gregationalists of Wales started out Canadian wheat with the United States product so as to heighten its grade and The Congregational churches of Aussecure higher prices, and they will be tralia and Tasmania have raised over the chief losers by the new regulation. $415,000. The United Methodist Free Canadian wheat stands on its own merits, and finds a boundless market raise 100,000 guineas, and in two years in Great Britain. The Calvinistic Methodtariff. Under the Anglo-German ists have four-fifths of a desired half a treaty, which dated back to 1865, imports from Great Britain or British possessions were admitted by Germany at the favored or minimum tariff, but under its provisions Canada could make no reduction in favor of British goods without extending the same privilege to German imports, and the imports of Belgium and several other countries, with which Great Britain had treaties also. This was the difficulty which confronted the Canadian Government in 1897 when it resolved on a British preference. The result was that Great Britain was forced to denounce the German and Belgian treaties. Germany at once retaliated by applying to Canada the maximum tariff. The effect has not been appreciable. Canadian exports to Germany have varied little in the past ten or twelve years and seldom go much beyond $2,000,000. The German and Belgian treaties denied Canada the right to control her own tariff arrangements and the denunciation of them by Great Britain practically gave to this country commercial freedom. It is cowardly to argue, as some Canadian journals are doing, that we should abandon the preference to Great Britain, because of German reprisals, and thereby admit Germany's tal salary exceed $750 a year, they must of France with the King of Great right to interfere, by hostile legisla- pay on such additional sum a graduat- Britain in an assembly of Frenchmen tion, in the commercial relations between different parts of the Empire. Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, is not one of those who believes in truckling to Germany in this way. "The German gollverein," he says, had to go .- Montreal Herald. "makes what tariff it likes among the nationalities that compose it. Shall we same right without incurring hostile legislation, and without it being concurred in by the mother country?" It vent German retaliation on Canada, their own business. when the new Anglo-German trade agreement was negotiated in 1898. However, Germany can inflict no damage on Canada which is not the least dependent upon the German market; Germany's sales to this country last year were over $7,000,000, and in a tariff war she would have more to lose than this country, as her sales are steadily inour market at 50 per cent less duty United States, yet American products | credit for. get preferential treatment over Canadian products in the German market. In the event of an imperial preferential trade arrangement, Great Britain will owe it to the colonies to see that no country discriminates against them, under penalty of disabilities in the British market. The German zollverein is a parallel. The countries embraced in the German Empire are knit together by a customs union, and if the countries comprising the British Empire choose to strengthen their commercial cohesion, it is a domestic matter, and no foreign nation should be allowed with impunity to strike back at any portion of the Empire.

A Wonderful Giving.

The Church Economist calls attention to the extraordinary success of church century fund movements the English-speaking world. There no parallel for it. The various church organizations in America and Great Britain set out to raise $40,000,000, and already $30,000,000 have contributed. The Economist finds, by looking over the whole field, that while these immense extraordinary sums have been gathered in for specific uses, the regular contributions for church and mission suphave been kept up without substantial diminution. No other body of Christians set so high a mark of effort as the Methodist Church North, of the United States. The bishops called on the members of this church for a special sum of $20,-000,000, and to date they have raised $17,000,000 of the amount. The rest will come. All is for special purposes, among them the relleving of churches from debt and advancement of the educational work. The missionary soclattes of this church were fearful that the scheme would make such a draft on the resources of the people that these cause would suffer. They apperiod to the bishops to be included Oh, yes "The Umpire."

export duty of 3 cents a bushel on wheat, so as to encourage the export of Canadian flour. How many farmers would sign a petition of that kind? as beneficiaries, but were denied. The missionary society's income has not fallen off more than $15,000 from what it had been. The Canadian Methodists reached their goal first and passed beyond it. That goal was $1,000,000, but $250,000 in excess came in. The Canadian Presbyterians set out to raise $1,000,000. The amount obtained is already $1,430,000, and the Rev. Dr. Warden, general agent and treasurer, predicts that at the end of this year the total will be $1,600,000. The English Wesleyans have raised $4,500,000. The Congregationalists of England set their mark at $2,700,000. Albert Spicer, presi-England, announces that the amount actually secured is $3.312.000. The total expenses of raising this large sum were less than $30,000. The English Congregational churches had debts amounting to $2,500,000, which are almost entirely cleared off. The Conto raise $100,000 in five years. In three years they have raised $860,000. churches of England undertook to and have already obtained more than million dollars. The Bible Christians have raised $125,000. The result of the Church Economist's review of the situation is that these twentieth century funds abroad have succeeded. that the raising of the money has not affected adversely the incomes of the missionary societies or of the parish organizations, and a spiritual uplift in the churches has been one result of

The English Baptist fund will be used for the creation of a "sustentation fund," after the style of that which the Free Church of Scotland has had in operation for half a century. Premier Laurier is going to Switzerland for a rest, and may remain in Europe for several weeks yet. His health during the past year has not been satisfactory, and the social and public demands on him in England must have put a strain on his strength. He owes it to himself and his country to heed nature's warning.

If we buy from the United States we should send goods over there to pay the bill, and the same with every other nation.-Winnipeg Telegram. It doesn't matter a cent to Canada whether she pays for United States goods by selling to the United States or to Africa. For instance Canada may buy goods from the United States, Canada may pay for them by selling goods to England, and England may pay for these Canadian goods by selling English goods to the United States. This triangular trade might be just as profitable as if Canada and the United States had exchanged goods direct.

The premier of Australia says he dislikes the word colony. He is not alone in this. It is too suggestive of tutelege for self-governing nations like Canada, Australia and New Zealand. The Globe proposes the word commonwealth as a substitute for colony. It is a good democratic term, and it is fust as easy to sneak of the commonwealth of Canada as the colony of retions, and note results. Laurier's Noble Service. [Montreal Witness.] If the Imperial Government had requested Sir Wilfrid Laurier to go on his present trip through Europe and make public speeches such as he has been making, it could not have taken better or more effectual means for refuting the slanders of the continental press. Mary's daughter, Frances, married Henry Grey, Earl of Dorset. Of their two children, one was Lady Grey. History has always marveled at the eagerness of Mary to contract an alance with the Commoner Duke of Suffolk after she had sat upon the throne of France. But it requires no deep insight into her time to understand that in following the dictates of her heart she chose a happier course than that of her brilliant and beautiful grandchild, whose ambition brought her to the block.
