STOCK MARKETS. H. C. Becher, stock broker, next Free Press building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, July 20 .- Noon .- Until the ouncement was made that the Naonal City Bank of Kansas City had failed this morning, our market was strong and displayed activity. The eel stocks were well bought, owing to the favorable report in regard to the conditions in the iron trade made by the Iron Age. The expectation that the Union Pacific directors will meet today led to some buying of U. P. When the bank failure referred to, became known, traders turned sellers and prices yielded somewhat easily. To wards noon the market became exceedingly dull, with prices close to the lowest of the day. Later—Union Pacific declared dividend of 2½ per cent

tana, at his home in Missoula, has been presented with indisputable proofs that the explorer was married gressman Dixon by Mary Clark, the granddaughter of William Clark, the direct descendant of the explorer. So convincing was the evidence that the congressman was convinced of the truth of the story. Mary Clark is the daughter of Tzi Kal Tzae, who was born in the Lolo Valley about 1807. He called himself

"Me Clark," and had the sandy hair of his father, the explorer. "Me Clark," son of the explorer, was killed in a fight with the soldiers of Gen. Miles in the Bear Paw Mountains on Snake Creek in the fall of 1877. It was between the months of May and September in 1805 that Capt. Clark

The Nez Perce Indians treated the exploring party kindly and a stop of some time was made among them, while the party was made among them, while the party was preparing to descend the great divide. The little Nez Perce maiden looked with wonder at the strange white man with wonder at the strange white man and would wander forth from her tepee in the moonlight to watch the tent in which he slept.

The explorer noticed her parent devotion and he, too, took a fancy to the Indian girl and under the skies they were married. The Indian bride accompanied the explorer to the coast, learning to speak English, and returned with him to her own country where her son was born.

There were probable vows and promises at the parting. Who knows? Any-Indian maiden remained with her people and her child. "Me Clark," the son, or "Ta Lac," as the Indians pro-nounced it, learned English from his Knowles and Judge F. H. Woody. To them he often talked of his father

Mr. Weld.
"Weil, I did stoop down to pick up a brick," admitted Ryan, and added: "You would have done the same yourself if your life was threatened. "It was a good thing for England that you did not reach that brick, I guess," remarked Mr. Weld. "It certainly was," witness said read-

Mr. Weld then tried to get Ryan to say just where the encounter occurred, and a rather warm time ensued between counsel and the witness. "How far was it from Laura street?"

"I don't know. I did not measure." "But you can give some rough esti-nate. Was it 100 or 500 yards?" Witness repeated that he "did not measure the distance." In fact, he repeated this answer just thirteen times during the next five minutes.
