COMMITTEE SETS GOOD EXAMPLE

IN PREPARING YEAR'S ESTIMATES

No. 3 Is to Ask for Over $2,000 Less Than It Spent in 1905.

It took No. 3 committee a long time last night to decide whether it would be advisable to give any favors to a factory situated outside the city limits.

The question was brought up by City Solicitor Meredith sent a letter to the committee informing the members that the city has the power, if it so desires, to give both fire protection and water to an industry outside the corporation.

The solicitor's opinion had been requested in connection with the application of the London Showcase Company, which proposes to build a large new factory just outside the city limits, along the line of the C. P. R. in East London. The company is hampered for room now, and wanted to know if the city would take care of it as regards fire and water if it went outside the limits.

"Why should we build up outside industries?" asked one of the aldermen, who appeared to think that all the good industries in a city lies in the amount of taxes it pays.

The matter of increasing the firemen's salaries occupied the attention of the members of No. 3 committee for over an hour last night, and in the end it was decided to do nothing until the chief shall have secured further information as to salaries paid to firemen in other places.

The discussion brought out the fact, however, that the aldermen and the chief are in favor of an age limit, in case the increases are made, so that the department may not be filled with old men in the years to come.

The chief presented a tabulated statement, which showed that the London firemen, as compared with the men in other cities, are fairly well paid.

Five years at the present rate of wages, the following amounts will have been drawn by firemen in each of the following cities:

London ..... $2,885
Brampton ..... 2,901
Hamilton ..... 2,880
Ottawa ..... 2,750
Toronto ..... 3,250

The wages paid until the maximum is reached in each city are as follows:

London ..... $11 500
Brampton ..... 450 500
Hamilton ..... 450 500
Ottawa ..... 450 500
Toronto ..... 450 500

In London, the chief is paid $1,900 per annum; assistant chief, $1,900; Brantford—Chief, $1,100; Hamilton, Chief, $1,800; assistant chief, $1,200; Ottawa, Chief, $2,400; assistant chief, $1,500; Toronto, Chief, $3,000; assistant chief, $2,000.

After a letter had been read from Assistant Chief Aitkin, who also asked for an increase, Chief Clark submitted the following recommendation:

That after two years all firemen be paid a maximum salary of $675 per annum; the assistant chief to be paid $1,000; station foreman, $500; engineer of steamer, $350; assistant engineer, $300. The chief asked no increase for himself.

The aldermen appeared to be in a quandary, and knew not what to do.
They admitted that the figures showed the men to be pretty well treated here as compared with other cities, but the chief threw the balance in favor of the firemen by pointing out that a great deal depends upon having good firemen, and that a fireman's life is spent in the stations, he seldom having an hour at home with his family.

Ald. Booth and Armstrong figured out an all-around increase on the present salaries of 7 1/2 per cent, but the chief didn't like the scheme, and he gave out several reasons why it would not work.

Then Ald. Stevenson proposed that the maximum salary be placed at $710, the salaries to remain as at present up to the sixth year, when the jump to the maximum would be made.

Chairman Matthews warned the committee that any motion made by them would have to be pushed by them in the council, as last year when the firemen were given an increase he gave a word of honor that he would not ask for an increase for the men this year.

"I will ask one of you gentlemen to move the adoption of the clause in the council," he said.

"Well, if you are bound up that way I don't see that we can do anything," said Ald. Stevenson. "We may as well drop the whole matter."

But Ald. Matthews hastened to say that he was not opposed to an increase, and the discussion was continued.

Ald. Booth thought that an age limit of 45 should be set, so that the men would have to drop out at this age.

The chief didn't like this proposal, either. He thought a man would be good as a fireman until he was 55, anyway.

"But if you do set an age limit, what will you do with the old men at present on the brigade?" asked the chief.

"You certainly cannot turn them adrift now."

The whole matter was then left over until another report has been received from the chief.

SUB-POSTMASTER

WINS APPEAL

The Action Against Mr. J. M.
Shaw Is Dismissed
With Costs.

A very interesting case involving the right of a citizen of London to vote was decided at Toronto yesterday afternoon.

The plaintiff was one Charles Lancaster, who will be remembered as having secured the conviction of a boy named Bavin, who turned in a false alarm to the fire department. The defendant was J. M. Shaw, of South London, a grocer, and also former postmaster at the South London postoffice.

Shaw was postmaster of South London until Jan. 8, 1902, when he was made a sub-postmaster of the same division. He considered that he was entitled to vote and did so on Jan. 25, 1905, when the last provincial election was held.

As postmasters are forbidden to vote for members of the Legislative Assembly under a penalty of $2,000, Lancaster brought action against Shaw for illegally voting. Lancaster also claimed the $2,000 fine.

The case was tried at London, and Judge R. M. Meredith fined Shaw the full amount imposed by law, $2,000.
Gibbons, Harper & Gibbons, for the defendant, carried the case to the court
