THE MUNICIPAL STRUGGLE.

Tuesday, April 3, 1866.

The Nanaimo Incorporation bill has finally passed the Assembly, after a somewhat stermy debate. The great point at issue was the system of police governmentwhether the Executive should retain the control of the police or whether the force, small or great as it might be, should be placed under the control of the inhabitants. The House has decided in favor of the latter scheme. The Governor is to have the power of appointing the members of the force, but their pay is to be left to the Council, and their superintendence and control exclusively to the Mayor. We think there will be but one opinion as to the action of the Assembly, and that one a hearty endorsation. The principle of self-government is too dear to .. the heart of every honest and intelligent British subject to be ignored with impunity by any Legislature. What the people want in every part of the Island. where the circumstances will admit of it, is the power to manage their local affairs, and they will have the power, despite any and all antagonism, come from what quarter it may. The miserable attempts which were made by a few members of the House to make the Napaimo Incorporation bill a burlesque-to ignore the right of the inhabitants to govern themselves--recoiled on their own heads. There was sufficient manliness in the Assembly to rise above the wretched pandering to Executive power, and the schemes of the enemies of the public proved, as they always will in the end prove. abortive.

The question at issue, although in itself one affecting but a fraction of the people of Vanconver-Island, embraces, nevertheless, one of the most important principles which can come up before a legislative body. It is on this ground, and not merely because the inhabitants of Nanaimo will have a little more to say in the management of the police, that we deem the subject worthy of more than ordiis nary attention. It is on the ground that in a new country like this, where Governments are apt to deal in a despotic manner with public interest, it becomes absolutely necessary that instead of adding power to the Executive we should transfer as much as we can to the people. Any person or class of persons who hold a contrary opinion to this are more fit for a Russian Province than an English Colony. And yet we have such creatures in our midst-we have individuals in the city of Victoria who would to-morrow yield up every vestige of their manhoud and think it only a too unworthy offering at the shrine of Executive power. We have sycophants in the House and reptiles in the press who glory in their own shame and humili-

Fortunately such creatures are rare on Vancouver Island, and fortuthey are as stupid as they are upprincipled. In all cases instead of exciting public ire they become the objects of general ridicule and contempt, and have less influence with the inhabitants than the most worthless of the Flathead Indians. "We cannot say what may be the disposition made of the Victoria Incorporation bill to-day. But we know how the public feel about the matter,-we know that they are even more anxious to-day 河 身長 mands than those at present made (hear). than they were when they transmitted the Mr. Cunningham said the late police syse monster petition to the House, to see the. tem proved a complete failure. Mr. DeCosmos said it was absurd to talk of a town like Nanaimo not being able to pay for one constable; for that was all it had had (bear, hear). Even that constable instead of being employed in constabular duties had been compelled to spend the principal portion of his time as better portion of his time as a servant to the late stipendiary magistrate (hear and laughter), looking after domestic affairs and attending to the horses. If this issue were forced upon the people there would be much greater de-

I am sorry to find that his memory is becoming defective, that the cares of State are weighing upon him and bringing him to a decrepid old age (laughter). That he is, in fact, fast sinking into what is called "premature de-oay" (laughter). It is to be hoped, however, to use his own words, that he will soon have an opportunity of "recuperating" (laughter).

Mr. DeCosmos suggested that the House pass a vote of thanks to the hon. Speaker for officiating as "funny fellow" to the House while a motion was being prepared. Dr. Powell introduced an amendment to the effect that the police should be appointed by the Governor subject to what remuneration the Council might deem fit.

the Council might deem fit. Mr. Cochrane did not see the use of the proposed change in the police. He thought it unadvisable to place the police under the Corporation, as cases might occur, as one had some months ago, in which they were required to quell a public disturbance, when bey would be subject to the very authorities that had instigated it, and if the corporation had the control they might do it again. Mr. DeCosmos said the hon. gentleman spoke of one thing and moved another. The clause merely provided that the departments should be paid out of municipal funds, and he contended that the provision was quite correct.

that the hon. gentleman (Dr. H.) who talked so much about England should display so much ignorance about the police of the United Kingdom. No later than 1863 a bill had been brought into the House of Common to take the police from the control of the city of London and place them under the Govern ment, a measure which the House repudiared. As to Ireland the hon. gentleman was entirely wrong. He had got confused. There were two systems of police in Ireland the municipal and the general.

Dr. Helmcken contended that the half per cent. was insufficient for paying the expenses entailed on the corporation.

Mr. M'Clure argued that the amount to be raised by the half per cent. tax on real estate exclusive of the improvements would be $14,000, leaving, after the police and fire department had been deducted, about $5000. The Council had also the power to make assessments under the seven-tenths clause in the old act. The objection, however, of the Speaker against the smallness of the revenue came with a bad grace, as the hon, gentleman advocated the reduction from 34 per cent which he (Mr. M'Clure) had in the bill, to ½ per cent. (Hear, hear.) Dr. Heimcken contended that the amount was inadequate, and wound up by intimating that some hon, members had been bought over since last meeting. Mr. DeCosmos-Did the hon. gentleman say brought or bought ?

Dr. Helmcken-It is common enough to say members are bought over-it may be by argument.

Mr. M'Clure rose to a question of order. The hon. the Speaker, instead of setting the House an example, as from his position he should do, was constantly breaking the rules of order, and indulging in slang and personalities that would scarcely be tolerated in a bar-room. He considered such remarks a disgrace to the House.

Dr. Helmcken contended he had said nothing out of the way, and thought the hon. gentleman should know bar-room slang. After some further debate the Committee reported progress.
