

Miss Nobody of Nowhere

Now in its 100,000.

BY

ARCHIBALD CLAVERING GUNTER

Mr. Gunter's accurate knowledge of what he so intensely narrates has never been brought so forcibly to the minds of Americans as in "Miss Nobody of Nowhere," because here Mr. Gunter's characters and incidents are upon American soil.

The New York Press asserts that in the part of the book devoted to New York society will be found "characters that will provoke the audible smiles of instant recognition." While the Lordsburg Western Liberal devotes six columns of its paper, published in that far-away portion of New Mexico, the scene of the fight of the gallant college cowboy to save the little English girl from Nana's braves, to "Miss Nobody of Nowhere," and in a leading editorial remarked as follows:

"The people of the West owe Mr. Gunter a debt for painting the Indian question in a manner so true and accurate, and introducing it into a book which will be widely read by the class of people whom Sheriff Garvey calls 'the cussed philanthropodists.' If the book had been published last summer and Sheriff Harvey Whitehill had circulated about fifteen hundred of them through the country, he would be re-nominated and re-elected without a struggle."

"Full of incident and excitement."

"The Popularity of Mr. Gunter will now be greater than ever."

—TACOMA GLOBE.

"A story that will keep a man away from his meals."—OMAHA BEE.
