Saturday, 5 November (Delta Ballroom - cont'd)

09:30	War and Peace
	Chair:	Ron Fisher
		Professor, Department of Psychology
		University of Saskatchewan
	Speaker:	Geoffrey Pearson
	Hacuss the be	Executive Director
		Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security
10:30	Coffee Break
11:00	Poverty and the Environment
	Chair:	David Braide
		Deputy Chairman
		The Niagara Institute
	Speaker:	Douglas Lindores
		Senior Vice-President
		Canadian International Development Agency
12:30	Closing Remarks

Geoffrey Pearson Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security

An important cash of constructive informational policy will have to consist in providing a new, more comprehensive understanding of "security" which would be late restricted to the purely military aspects. In the global context true security cannot be senieved by a mounting build-up of weapons--defense in the narrow sense --but only by providing basic conditions for peaceful relations between nations, and solving not only the military but also the non-military problems which threaten them.

anvironment also envines accurity as requiring a multilateral process for solving global problems through the apprives of the United Nations

Unifortunately, until recently the international situation was so bad that these, in Canada or doewhere, who accepted this global contact of security were spices onying in the wilderness. Relations between the United States and the Soviet United were at their worst and this led to contain and a sense of familian. In addition, the economic cruis had made the West indifferent to Third World powers and there was a general renors or instructuation. In the easily 806 the West was approached with