

TOWARDS A RAPID REACTION CAPABILITY FOR THE UNITED NATIONS

23. The Secretary-General, in conjunction with interested Member States, should examine the technical feasibility of establishing over the long term a permanent, standing civilian police capability within the UN Secretariat, capable of rapid deployment in appropriate operations. (Page 59)
24. Consideration should be given, over the longer term, to the establishment of additional, regionally-based operational-level headquarters, once a first operational-level headquarters has been established and its performance and usefulness have been assessed. (Page 60)
25. The Secretary-General could examine the political and technical feasibility of establishing a small UN Standing Emergency Group. As a first step, the Secretary-General could solicit views on this concept and report accordingly to the General Assembly and the Security Council. (Page 63)
26. The Secretary-General, in conjunction with Member States, should encourage continued international discussion of seeking alternative funding for the UN system, in order to place the Organization on a more stable financial basis, and should consider the appointment of a high-level expert group, reporting to the General Assembly, to examine possible future sources of financing. (Page 64)