

ARTICLE VI

1. The Sending State shall hand over an offender to the Receiving State at a place agreed to by the Parties. The Receiving State shall be responsible for the custody and transport of an offender to the prison or place where the sentence should be completed; and in each case, as necessary, the Receiving State shall request the cooperation of third countries for transit of an offender through their territories. In special cases, by agreement between both Parties, the Sending State shall assist in said requests made by the Receiving State.
2. The Receiving State shall be responsible for all expenses incurred with respect to an offender from the time when the offender passes into its custody.
3. The completion of the sentence of an offender who has been transferred shall be in accordance with the laws and procedures of the Receiving State. However, the Sending State shall retain the right to pardon or grant amnesty to the offender, and the Receiving State shall release the offender immediately upon receiving notification of such pardon or amnesty.
4. Under no circumstances may the sentence handed down by the Sending State be increased or extended by the Receiving State.
5. At the request of one of the Parties, the other Party shall provide a report on the status of confinement of any offender transferred under this Treaty, including in particular parole or release.
6. Except as otherwise provided in this Treaty, an offender transferred under the provisions of this Treaty shall not be deprived of any rights under the laws of the Receiving State beyond those which the fact of the offender's conviction may in and of itself have created.

ARTICLE VII

The Sending State alone shall have jurisdiction over any appeal or application for reversal of a judgment handed down by its courts. Upon receipt of due notice from the Sending State, the Receiving State undertakes to enforce any changes made to the sentence being served.

ARTICLE VIII

An offender transferred under the terms of this Treaty may not be arrested, tried or sentenced in the Receiving State for the same offence which gave rise to the sentence.

ARTICLE IX

1. This Treaty may be extended to persons subject to supervision or other measures under the laws of one of the Parties relating to youthful offenders. The Parties shall, in accordance with their laws, agree to the type of treatment to be accorded such individuals upon transfer. Consent for the transfer shall be obtained from the legally authorized person.
2. Nothing in this Treaty shall be interpreted to limit the ability which the Parties may have, independent of this Treaty, to grant or accept the transfer of youthful or other offenders.

.../...