Dear Sir Arthur,

I learn
by chance that you are yet in Montreal, - I understood that you were going to England. You ought to have a month in the country, and I hasten to say that I have here a house ready for
you. For many years I have kept it for such purposes; but this summer it has remained unused. There are three
