LIBRABY STORY HOUR

New Candidate for Third Deputy Reeve in York Township.

The auditorium of the Humberside Collegiate Institute was filled yesterday afternoon with pupils and parents at the unusually large number of prizes and dimes were awarden. The principal, F C. Colbeck, B.A., presided, and his has completed one of the most successful years of its existence. It was during the past year that the large new addition was built, which has made the school one of the largest and best equipped in the city. The staff now numbers fourteen, twelve of whom are specialists, with Arts degrees from the University of Toronto.

nial agitation culminated in an appeal to the legislature.

In that year an act was passed, giving the Township of York power to put the road thru. Not that the Township of York cared much, but had listened to the importunities of North Foronto, and realized the necessity for such a highway. Time passed with its usual swiftness, however, practically nothing was done, and as the act may held good for a year, an extension of time was secured from the legislature in 1910, and a report was submitted to an official arbitrator.

At this juncture the cemetery trust suggested that an agreement be drawn up between the Township of York, Lown of North Toronto and the cemetery trust. This was done, terms were fixed, and the Town of North Toronto passed a bylaw for the amount required. The bylaw was carried by the electors and the agreement was accordingly endorsed by the town and the township.

The cemetery trust then claimed that legislation would be necessary to confirm the agreement on the ground that the town's bylaw was invalid as the town did not have the legal right to spend that amount of money on an improvement outside the boundaries of the municipality.

The Town of North Toronto had not only passed the bylaw but had actually signed a cheque for $15,000, and sent it to the trust, which was the cash payment to be made under the agreement.

That cheque was never cashed. An-Arts degrees from the University of Toronto.

The waledictory address was delivered in an able manner by Leslie Kilboin of the graduating class, who was awarded the second Edward Blake Scholarship in medicine and science; ranked for the second science and West Durham Scholarships, and won first and second class honors in science and medicine at the recent matriculation examinations. Other scholarships were awarded to Jonathan Sharpe and honors were won by these and Kathleen Davidson, Norman McLenian, James Ballinger and D. M. Morgan. The diplomas were presented by Prof. W. J. Alexander, Ph.D., of Toronto University, who addressed the students on their ideals for future life.

The monthly "story hour" for children of the Runnymede Library Board was revived with great success in the library building, Millard avenue, last night, and the large attendance of children and parents proved the popularity of these meetings. Chairman Nathaniel Schunck and Harry Durrant were the story tellers last night, and interested their juvenile audience for two hours with tales of "Canadian Pioneers" and "Oliver Twist" respectively.

IT IS NECESSARY BAD CONDITIONS ON THE LEVEL, Since the proposed highway thru Mount Pleasant Cemetery has had a new lease of life, and the city works committee is taking the thing in earnest, a short review of the history of this street of North Toronto's dreams might not be unwelcome to those who will have to breast the terrors of the legislature and the cemetery trust towards getting the road put thru. We will pass over the long germ stage, way back in the last century, when the cemetery road was hot stuff for every really progressive council payment to be made under the agreement.

That cheque was never cashed. Annexation took place, and North Toronto became a part of the city, with the result that the city had then the right to put thru the road as arranged by North Toronto, which meant the construction of a bridge over the Belt Line Railway, and the payment of $15,000 to the trust for land dameges and the construction of bridges between the east and west sections of the cemetery over the new highway.

The city board of works has risen above trusts, towns and townships. They have decided that the road must go thru on the level. That necessitates new legislation. More power to the board of works, and who dare deny that a road on the level is necessary mediate vicinity, with poultry running around.

A little further up the street a twenty-five foot lot boasts a family, a horse, a cow, pigs and poultry. Such is the state of affairs in two places, and it is clear that the county board of health need to take a visit to Cedarvale.

Garbage Nuisance.

Mr. Wickens, one of the oldest residents, called The World's attention to the west side of Cedarvale avenue, where the backs of the houses on the east side of Coleridge avenue abut for a distance of five hundred feet. He said that the sidewalks on that side of the street were made a dump for refuse of all kinds by the people who live in these houses. This is another case for the M.O.H.

All Need Water.

There is a petition before the city council for water to be laid for five hundred feet outside the city limits, but as there are only about sixty or seventy houses in this radius and something like two hundred further out. Mr. Wickens thinks that a road on the level is necessary thru Mount Pleasant Cemetery? Cer-tainly not the legislature.

St. Alban's Cathedral

Rev. Canon Morley will preach in St. Simon's Church, Toronto, at 11.00 a.m.

The question may be fairly asked: What influence can a cathedral cise on a diocese, or on the religious life of a community, which is at all commensurate with the great expenditure of money and thought and labor? Might not the funds be far better spent in increasing the stipends of underpaid clergy, in providing extra clergy for larger parishes, in building new churches, mission halls, and in training men for the work

Of the paramount importance of these objects there can be no question, and it is because we believe that the building of a cathedral will insure, with God's blessing, these very results most swiftly and surely, that we regard its erection as so eminently desirable. No great and farreaching work can be carried on without a strong and vigorous centre A leading bank or insurance society, with its many branches scattered through a neighborhood, or a whole country, takes care to secure for itself a head office worthy of its wealth and of its name, and sufficiently spaclous to possess every facility for keeping up an active supervision of its various departments. It does not regard the tens of thousands of dollars which are freely lavished on an imposing building as wasted, or as a bad investment. The fine central office is a visible embodiment of its greatness. It is the source of its commercial inspiration, and the main-spring of the carefully elaborated machinery by which its business is efficiently conducted and constantly extended.

A cathedral plays much the same part in a diocese. It is not only a building, it is an institution. It is more. It is a House of God-a centre of spiritual life and a mainspring of the church's activity.

of an even more dangerous character reported.

Dr. W. G. Penney, a well-known Danfor h avenue doctor, told The World yesterday that a large number of the people were living in what is termed professionally a typhoid state. This is due to a large extent to the environment and manner in which they live. He explained that several families live in conditions by which all the laws of sanitation are outraged. Perhaps a man and wife with two or three children live in two rooms, with the only ventilation being the opening and shutting of doors. He also stated that cases of chickenpox and scarlet fever have been frequent in the district, but the people have managed to doctor themselves and the houses were never quarantined.

on inspecting the place there little I rene Jackson died from typhoid last Tuesday the reporter found four houses on a fifty foot lot, three on the rear and one on the front. It was also learned that it is the intention of the owner to build two more on the front. thus making a total of six houses on fifty feet frontage. There is one well, from which thirty people drink; six closets within the immediate vicinity, with poultry running around.

are only about sixty or seventy houses in this radius and something like two hundred further out. Mr. Wickens thinks that the only way is for the city to supply water to all the residents or annex the district.

Anniversary Services.

The Church of the Resurrection celebrates its first anniversary next Sunday. The special preacher at the 7 o'clock service will be the Rev. E. J. Peak, the veteran missionary of the Arctic regions.

Twelve months ago under the energetic leadership of Rev. C. S. McGaf'in building operations had so far progressed that services could be conducted in the church Today, altho the exterior is not quite completed, the interior is one of the prettiest of the mission churches and those who helped in the erection (practically the whole being done by voluntary labor), have just cause to be proud of their church. Special mention must be made of the two wardens. The need for more accommodation is already being felt. for the children on Sundays, and it is hoped that work on a basement will be commenced in the immediate future. representatives and new candidates will seize the opiportunity to state their views to the most active organization in the district. The North Toronto Ratepayers' district. The North Toronto Ratepayers' Association was a very live factor in the municipal government of the old town, and evidently intends to be no less powerful in city affairs. One thing is certain, that everyone will receive a fair hearing, as of yore, whether they are invited or not. President Donnelly hopes that the ratepayers in the district will realize their responsibility and attend all the meetings between now and New Year's, so that they may cast their ballots with added intelligence on Jan. 1.

Candidates for Wards 2 and 3 and members of the board of control are invited to address the meeting.
