letter I received from Jack Munroe, low with the Princess Pats. He is an ex-prize fighter, having fought leffries once, ex-mayor of Elk Lake and one of the best-known prospectors of the north, and one of the first ors of the north, and one of the first to offer his services from the north country to go to the front. He is an all round dead game sport and a darn good head. If you would publish his letter and give him a little write-up, would be glad.

Charles B. Shields. And here is the letter sent to Mr. Shields by Jack Munroe:
Flanders, March 21, 1915.
Dear Charles: Thank you for your nice valentine card, which I received in due time.

Glad all my old friends are doing well, and that the boys from the north are rallying round the old flag—and, by the way, that's the only way to stop this war.

Bad news for Canada this morning. Bad news for Canada this morning. We lost our commanding officer, Col. Farquhar, one of the smartest officers in the British army. He was killed in action last night. It's awful, Shields, old boy, all the officers we lost since we arrived here, for the number engaged. We lost over 50 per cent. We lost six the last six days' fighting.

Give my best to all the boys, and tell them all I hope to be back to see them all doing well. Your old friend, Jack Munroe.

P.S.—I wish you would send me some good Canadian pies! I get a craving when in the trenches for good Canadian pies, mince, apple and raisin.

Jack.

DEFER ACTION ON LIQUOR PROBLEM

LONDON, April 7.-In England the LONDON. April 7.—In England the drink question is still uppermost in the minds of the people. The cabinet met today to discuss what governmental action should be taken in the premises, but did not reach any decision. Meantime hundreds of public men are following the King's example and banishing alcoholic liquors from their households, while the churches are making a plea to the people that they at least take the pledge to abstain from liquor until the war is over.

"The Spoilers." which the enterprise of the Strand Theatre has secured for presentation at that theatre during the whole of next week, is the talk of the whole motion picture world. It has been made into a photo play from Rex Beach's world famous book of the same name, and it is worthy of the same name, and it is worthy of that masterpiece. Its initial presentation in this country at Montreal created a record in Canada. It played to capacity houses for two weeks, and in the closing night thousands were unable to gain admission. "The Spoilers" is as virile and red-blooded a romance as any which has ever been put on the screen. William Farnum and Kathlyn Williams are seen in the two stellar parts and they have been surrounded by a perfect galaxy of stars. The photo play is filled with action and incident, and will have a permanent place in the memory of those who witness it.

At the Manufacturers' exhibition of Made-in-Canada at the Arena next week the Secours National has been given a booth to sell sweets, home-made cakes and flowers. Already a good many donations have been made, and a number of firms have very generously given articles to be disposed of.

Premier Hearst Speaking in Favor of Technical Education Last Night.

GREAT STRIDES MADE

Hon. Dr. Pyne Says Work Has Been Slowly Recognized in Ontario.

Technical education as a potent factor of modern industrial life was the point emphasized by Premier W. H. Hearst, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Dr. A. C. McKay and the other speakers at the supper meeting of the Ontario Association for Promotion of Technical Education at Central Y.M.C.A. last night. "The greatest asset of a nation lies "The greatest asset of a nation lies in its boys and girls," declared Premier Hearst, "I know of nothing to which we can better direct our attention than to technical education. We have made great progress in this line Ontario has done as much as all the other provinces combined. We have in Ontario all the raw material and natural resources as well to make this a great manufacturing province." Hop. Mr. Hearst said that formerly Hon. Mr. Hearst said that formerly all attention was given to the scholastic side of education, and that the supreme object was to prepare students for the professions. The mistake of such a proceeding was since felt, and the tendency was now to fit children for the vocation for which they were best adapted.

children for the vocation for which they were best adapted.

Great Strides Made.

Hon. Dr. Pyne declared that industrial education had been more slowly recognized, for the reason that so much had been done along agricultural lines. Such great strides had been made in the latter direction that now nearly every county in the province nearly every county in the province had an agricultural representative. The new institution would, he asserted, produce teachers who would further the progress of industrial education. He predicted that it would be provincial in its influence. Manufacture and agriculture had to go hand in hand in the development of Ontario. Sir Clifford Sifton was unable to be present at the meeting, but in a message to the association expressed his regrets, and said that technical education along practical and vocational lines required close and systematic study.

The other speakers were Dr. A. C. McKay, Miss E. Guest of Belleville, James Richards of the Trades and Labor Council, and J. D. Allen. President Rhys D. Fairbairn presided.

the various sections of the association. Higher patriotism was the theme of the address by Rev. John MacNeill of Walmer Road Church, in which elements of higher patriotism were marked by the elevation of soul above desire, of principle above party, and of service above self-interest. The teachers were urged to impress the true obligation to country upon the children whom they taught.

"In the reconstruction of society after this war," declared Rev. Mr. MacNeill, "there is not one phase that will
