14. Pack after seeding to ensure rapid germination.
15. Harrow after packing to restore the earth mulch.
16. Harrow after each shower until the grain is above ground, and even after the grain is above ground the harrows should be run over the surface (with the teeth slanting well backward) to break up any crust that might have a tendency to form after a heavy rain.
17. Continue the use of the harrow until the grain is high enough to shelter the land between the drill rows.
18. If the above points have been followed faithfully, the results should be satisfactory.
