

This Day, the 25th Instant, being the First Day of the Meeting of Parliament, will be published,

A New Morning Newspaper,
TO BE ENTITLED
The London Courant,
AND
Westminster Chronicle.

And to be continued every Day. Price Three Pence.

Printed and published by J. ALMON, opposite Burlington-House, Piccadilly.

TO THE PUBLIC.

AT the Solicitation of many Persons of high Rank and Abilities, this Publication is undertaken. The Editors will not presume to estimate so lightly the Judgment of the Public, as to trouble them with any Apology for this Design: Nor is the Plan of a Newspaper such a Novelty as to make a Detail of it necessary. Suffice it, therefore, to say, that the Plan of the London Courant is briefly this—To give the earliest and truest Intelligence of every public Transaction; to print all such Observations on public Affairs, political, parliamentary, commercial, military, naval, theatrical, miscellaneous, &c. &c. as shall appear interesting or entertaining. The Editors will not be lavish of Promises; the Execution is the proper Recommendation. They only beg Leave to submit the London Courant to public Examination.

THE Assistance of the Ingenious and Intelligent is most humbly requested. Their Favours will be gratefully received, and properly attended to.

All Letters, Information, Advertisements, and Order for this Paper, are desired to be sent to J. ALMON, Bookseller, opposite Burlington-House, in Piccadilly, London.
