Chicago, Jan. 4.—Fresh strength developed in the corn market today onhalf cent net higher at $1.271/4 for January and $1.25% to % for May Oats finished unchanged at % to%c up, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 12½ cents. decline of 12½ cents.

Almost from the outset corn prices displayed a tendency to advance. Not withstanding that traffic conditions on the railroads were said to have improved to some extent, the fact remained that no substantial increase of arrivals here had yet taken place, and that country offerings were not large. On the other hand, big quantities of soft corn appeared to be still awaiting disposal on the part of rural holders, and there were predictions curbles available here next week would be more liberal, especial-peratures were favorable week would be more liberal, especialiperatures were favorable for railroad operations. Advances kept, therefore, within moderate limits. Oats climbed to the highest boint this season and finished at the topmost level reached. Demand from shorts was persistent, and receipts were meagre. The readiness with which the market responded to buying discouraged the bears.

Despite higher prices in the hog market, upturns in provisions were more than wiped out. Showness or cash demand was a bearish factor.
