The organization was of the best, and never before had the women responded so well. In addition the boys were heart and soul m the movement, and the boys of today would be the men of tomorrow. Not until the men at the front were tired of fighting, should the people be tired of such campaigns as the one now on. Col. Deacon announced that special subscriptions to date had totalled $113,500. The team captains were enthusiastically applauded as they announced the returns for the first day. In regard to the boys' end of the campaign, Hume Duffil, Hanbord Collegiate, made a neat, short speech, in which he pledged the boys "of, the team' age to their finest efforts in helping the older brothers who were carrying on at the front.

George A. Warburton, director of the Dominion campaign, reminded the workers that the evening meetings were a great factor in the success of the campaign. Sidelights were presented that helped everybody. He explained that subscriptions need not be paid in cash, but that 40 par cent. Could be paid immediately, and 60 percent.

In the allied camp the position has much improved. They have brought up more guns than the Germans; they appear to have a larger shell supply. They have also replaced their purposely left weak divisions with strong divisions composed of their freshest and best shock troops. The Canada and the Italians dispersed them. The Austrian attack will probably open against some sector which the enemy supposes is most weakly guarded. If the allies choose to throw in enough men for the purpose of clinching and manifesting the completeness their victory they have excellent conditions for the launching of a successful attack. The Germans, in a strictly military sense, have arrived nowhere, and they can only get out of their dangerous positions by widen-ing their selients, which all their pre-vious efforts have failed to do, or by discreetly retiring from them to their former defensive lines. This action would forecast, if the allies would permit, the resumption of the old trench warfare, and it was dread of further trench warfare that impelled the German higher command to em-bark on the offensive to restore open warfare. In Flanders the German position along the Lys is also for them undestrable. Inopportune Time for Roads.

Mr. McLean stated that the time was not opportune for Ontario to attempt great highway constructions, as the department could not get men and had to move cautiously in regard to labor, so as not to disturb production. "But what we have we shall keep in good repair, in order that our trade routes shall handle the increased produce which we are sending to both coasts," he said.

After-the-war conditions were referred to, and the deputy minister emphasized the importance of Canada getting ready to "throw in the clutch and go at top speed" following peace, for the purpose of maintaining her economical position, "We must prepare for the reconstruction period, so that we will be able to do justice to the boys who will return, and in order to save ourselves from falling beneath the load of taxation which will be thrust upon every country in the world the moment peace is signed," said Mr. McLean.

Thru the generosity of a well-known Toronto family, who do not wish publicity, the Earlscourt branch of the Great War Veterans' Association will be benefited. The family in question own about 15 acres of fine farming land near Armour Heights, and this land they propose to hand over to the Earlscourt returned men for cultivation at absolutely no cost. Permission will also be given to the men to erect suitable shacks for temporary occupation while working on the land. If it is found necessary the land will be divided or sub-divided to suit the convenience of the worker. All taxes will be paid by the owners, the veterans to have free access and whatever they decide to cultivate will belong to them to do with as they wish.

A woman, representing the owners of the G.W.V.A. Tuesday and laid the proposal before the association.

Should it turn out that not a sufficient number of veterans of Earlscourt can undertake the work either in spare time or entirely, then the owners will give other local G.W.V.A. branches a chance to take up the proposition. The land is said to be in excellent condition for farming and almost anything can be grown on it.
