experiencing a period of the greatest industrial expansion and activity perhaps ever known in any country. This pleasing national sensation is to be felt in this country, and more particularly in this province, during coming years.

The strangest part of it is that our great national wealth is apparently coming in the form we least expected. A few years ago we expected that our lumber and fishing industries, together with the opening up of numberless gold mines, would be our salvation. These industries fulfilled and are still fulfilling in many cases a useful purpose, but it is in the making of pulp and paper and the manufacture of iron and steel that a brilliant future is held in store for us. Outside capitalists have realized this more than our own people.
