

APRIL 23, 1909. Wednesday, Sept. 9.

$55.00 PER FOOT

Farnham Ave. north side of street, good building lots, moderate restrictions.

H. H. WILLIAMS & CO., 25 Victoria Street, Toronto.

Aprons. tion brings visitors make work kitchen. Work Aprons. Here come in with a programme of selling for Wednesday.

Aprons for Monday, plain or embroidered for Thursday to 75c each. Aprons of fine material, fancy border on top, size, Regular price $1.00, each, 15c.

Corsets. sale of La Reine a la Spiritie Corsets at 50 per cent less than the Department.

Corsets. C. B. a la Spiritie and Corsets, three beautiful styles, in white, cream, high bust, long neck, and hips, fine steel, elastic garters, embroidered, sizes 18 to 24, Thursday, a pair, $1.00.

New Shirt Section. the new greys, tans and narrow black stripes in front. Special $1.00.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

Shirts. in fancy white, light blue and small patterns, specially made for $1.50.

THE TORONTO WORLD

TWELVE PAGES—THURSDAY MORNING SEPTEMBER 9 1909—TWELVE PAGES

PEARY DECLARES COOK IS A FAKER DOCTOR REPLIES HE'LL PROVE STORY

Latest Claimant to Pole Claims That Eskimo Companions Say Cook Never Lost Sight of Land.

COOK SHOWS NO FEAR WILL LET WORLD JUDGE

"I have nailed the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole. This is authoritative and correct. Cook's story should not be taken too seriously. The two Eskimos who accompanied him say he went no distance north, and not out of sight of land. Other members of the tribe corroborate their story.

"I have been to the North Pole. I am willing to place facts, figures and worked-out observations before a joint tribunal of the scientific bodies of the world. "Knowing that I am right, and that right must prevail, I will submit at the proper time my full story to the court of last resort—The People of the World. "Peary took my provisions on the plea that he was going to organize relief stations for me in case I should be alive. For this I have documentary proof. COOK.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8.—The life was hurried to-day concerning the discovery of the North Pole and the foundation laid for a controversy unparalleled in history.

In effect Peary discredits Cook's claims with the intimation that he (Peary) and he alone, planted the American flag at the North Pole on April 6, 1909, and that Dr. Cook, who asserts that he unfurled the flag at the pole on April 21, 1908, must substantiate his claim.

Shown his rival's statement here tonight, Dr. Cook stood by his guns, and in a statement emphatically defended his claim, counter-claiming that he had evidence to show that Peary obtained some of his supplies on the plea that he would establish relief stations for Cook.

Peary's statement was cabled from Indian Harbor, Labrador, to news agencies in New York and London and forwarded here. Dr. Cook's reply followed.

"I have been to the north pole. As I said last night when I heard of Commander Peary's success, if he has been to the pole, I believe him. "I am willing to place facts, figures and worked-out observations before a joint tribunal of the scientific bodies of the world. "In due course I shall be prepared to make a public announcement of my discovery, and I have no doubt, if I have reached the north pole, that that right must prevail. I will submit at the proper time my full story to the court of last resort—the people of the world. "I will not enter into any controversy over the subject with Commander Peary, but I am satisfied that if he has taken his Eskimos, my reply is that Eskimos are not man's.

Dr. Cook's friends had urged him to his utmost to make any statement possible for the public, but he had said "I am willing to place facts, figures and worked-out observations before a joint tribunal of the scientific bodies of the world. "Knowing that I am right, and that right must prevail, I will submit at the proper time my full story to the court of last resort—The People of the World. "Peary took my provisions on the plea that he was going to organize relief stations for me in case I should be alive. For this I have documentary proof. COOK.

ESKIMO DOGS—TO WHOM IS ENTITLED EQUAL CREDIT WITH MAN FOR THE "DISCOVERY" OF THE NORTH POLE.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special.)—At eleven o'clock to-night, detectives arrested Dr. George A. Frick, No. 651 Trinity-street, charged with the murder of Mabel Millman, whose dismembered body was found in the marsh, Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. Frick was tried for the murder of Edith Pressley, an employe of the State Capitol, in Lansing two years ago. He was finally acquitted, largely on circumstantial evidence.

He is a Canadian, his old home being at Drumbo, Ont., where his relatives still reside. He is considered wealthy.

The arrest was based on a story told the police by Martha Henning, and was only obtained after a grueling inquisition.

The case may yet possess further peculiar Canadian interest, owing to the fact that the police are looking earnestly for William Desmond, a 19-year old boy, whose home is in Toronto, and who disappeared at identically the same time as did Miss Millman.

Desmond, according to a story told the police by his brother, was a decidedly unassuming young man, an Arbor girl, and this girl left her home on the same day as Miss Millman, and started for Detroit to meet Desmond. Her name is not known.

By concealing the real purpose of her visit to Detroit, and deceiving her mother and intimate friends, Mabel Millman unwittingly shielded her murderer. The Detroit authorities expect to have brought her to justice.

During the two weeks that Miss Millman roomed with her chum, Martha Henning, in this city, she did not mention the secret trouble that is believed to have brought her to death. Miss Millman and Miss Henning had been very close friends in Ann Arbor, and Miss Henning told her mother, August 13, that Miss Henning had sent her the money to make the visit. This Miss Henning absolutely denied.

Maed Mullen, while here, seemed to have plenty of money, which she spent freely, she remained in her room most of the time preceding the day when she left behind a bottle containing a dangerous drug.

Maed Mullen, county physician, who made the postmortem, says that the body was dismembered by a surgeon or an advanced medical student.

DR. NORMAN HANSEN, who was with Cook for six weeks on the Hans Egede, says Cook admitted he was racing with Peary to make first announcement.

DAUGARD JENSEN, Inspector of Danish North Greenland, with Cook for two months, is convinced the doctor is telling the truth.

H. G. BRYANT, president of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia, says Eskimos are "childlike and unreliable and will say anything suggested to them."

CAPT. SVERDRUP, who commanded Nansen's boat, the Fram, is convinced absolutely that Cook reached the pole and is not at all surprised that Peary and Cook found no traces of each other.

CAPT. ROALD AMUNDSEN, discoverer of the northwest passage; Peary probably did not obtain any more valuable scientific results than Cook. They were equally equipped with only absolutely necessary instruments.

J. J. A. BOUQUET DE LA GRYE, geographer and member of Academy of Science, Paris; Why suspect Dr. Cook more than the others and assume that he is wrong? It is small business. Let us await his documents.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; It is not surprising that Cook and Peary did not meet, as the icebergs at the pole are in constant motion; further, more Cook came out to the west, and Peary to the east of Greenland, Peary's discovery does not alter the position of Dr. Cook, and both men are wonderful explorers.

M. LEVASSEUR, distinguished French geographer; Scientists will accept at once the statements of Peary as that of a man who has proofs. His equipment was thorough and extensive, and nothing was left to chance.

So far as Dr. Cook is concerned, we await a complete recital of his expedition before making up our minds.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done." DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

TORONTO YOUTH FAKE COAL TRADE WORKS A BIG SCANDAL

Detroit Police Seek Wm. Desmond—Canadian Doctor Is Arrested on Straight Charge of Crime.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special.)—At eleven o'clock to-night, detectives arrested Dr. George A. Frick, No. 651 Trinity-street, charged with the murder of Mabel Millman, whose dismembered body was found in the marsh, Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. Frick was tried for the murder of Edith Pressley, an employe of the State Capitol, in Lansing two years ago. He was finally acquitted, largely on circumstantial evidence.

He is a Canadian, his old home being at Drumbo, Ont., where his relatives still reside. He is considered wealthy.

The arrest was based on a story told the police by Martha Henning, and was only obtained after a grueling inquisition.

The case may yet possess further peculiar Canadian interest, owing to the fact that the police are looking earnestly for William Desmond, a 19-year old boy, whose home is in Toronto, and who disappeared at identically the same time as did Miss Millman.

Desmond, according to a story told the police by his brother, was a decidedly unassuming young man, an Arbor girl, and this girl left her home on the same day as Miss Millman, and started for Detroit to meet Desmond. Her name is not known.

By concealing the real purpose of her visit to Detroit, and deceiving her mother and intimate friends, Mabel Millman unwittingly shielded her murderer. The Detroit authorities expect to have brought her to justice.

During the two weeks that Miss Millman roomed with her chum, Martha Henning, in this city, she did not mention the secret trouble that is believed to have brought her to death. Miss Millman and Miss Henning had been very close friends in Ann Arbor, and Miss Henning told her mother, August 13, that Miss Henning had sent her the money to make the visit. This Miss Henning absolutely denied.

Maed Mullen, while here, seemed to have plenty of money, which she spent freely, she remained in her room most of the time preceding the day when she left behind a bottle containing a dangerous drug.

Maed Mullen, county physician, who made the postmortem, says that the body was dismembered by a surgeon or an advanced medical student.

DR. NORMAN HANSEN, who was with Cook for six weeks on the Hans Egede, says Cook admitted he was racing with Peary to make first announcement.

DAUGARD JENSEN, Inspector of Danish North Greenland, with Cook for two months, is convinced the doctor is telling the truth.

H. G. BRYANT, president of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia, says Eskimos are "childlike and unreliable and will say anything suggested to them."

CAPT. SVERDRUP, who commanded Nansen's boat, the Fram, is convinced absolutely that Cook reached the pole and is not at all surprised that Peary and Cook found no traces of each other.

CAPT. ROALD AMUNDSEN, discoverer of the northwest passage; Peary probably did not obtain any more valuable scientific results than Cook. They were equally equipped with only absolutely necessary instruments.

J. J. A. BOUQUET DE LA GRYE, geographer and member of Academy of Science, Paris; Why suspect Dr. Cook more than the others and assume that he is wrong? It is small business. Let us await his documents.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; It is not surprising that Cook and Peary did not meet, as the icebergs at the pole are in constant motion; further, more Cook came out to the west, and Peary to the east of Greenland, Peary's discovery does not alter the position of Dr. Cook, and both men are wonderful explorers.

M. LEVASSEUR, distinguished French geographer; Scientists will accept at once the statements of Peary as that of a man who has proofs. His equipment was thorough and extensive, and nothing was left to chance.

So far as Dr. Cook is concerned, we await a complete recital of his expedition before making up our minds.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done." DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

Wm. C. Manning and Fifty Agents Collect Small Sums in Advance From Thousands Ill Able To Bear Their Loss.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—(Special.)—At eleven o'clock to-night, detectives arrested Dr. George A. Frick, No. 651 Trinity-street, charged with the murder of Mabel Millman, whose dismembered body was found in the marsh, Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. Frick was tried for the murder of Edith Pressley, an employe of the State Capitol, in Lansing two years ago. He was finally acquitted, largely on circumstantial evidence.

He is a Canadian, his old home being at Drumbo, Ont., where his relatives still reside. He is considered wealthy.

The arrest was based on a story told the police by Martha Henning, and was only obtained after a grueling inquisition.

The case may yet possess further peculiar Canadian interest, owing to the fact that the police are looking earnestly for William Desmond, a 19-year old boy, whose home is in Toronto, and who disappeared at identically the same time as did Miss Millman.

Desmond, according to a story told the police by his brother, was a decidedly unassuming young man, an Arbor girl, and this girl left her home on the same day as Miss Millman, and started for Detroit to meet Desmond. Her name is not known.

By concealing the real purpose of her visit to Detroit, and deceiving her mother and intimate friends, Mabel Millman unwittingly shielded her murderer. The Detroit authorities expect to have brought her to justice.

During the two weeks that Miss Millman roomed with her chum, Martha Henning, in this city, she did not mention the secret trouble that is believed to have brought her to death. Miss Millman and Miss Henning had been very close friends in Ann Arbor, and Miss Henning told her mother, August 13, that Miss Henning had sent her the money to make the visit. This Miss Henning absolutely denied.

Maed Mullen, while here, seemed to have plenty of money, which she spent freely, she remained in her room most of the time preceding the day when she left behind a bottle containing a dangerous drug.

Maed Mullen, county physician, who made the postmortem, says that the body was dismembered by a surgeon or an advanced medical student.

DR. NORMAN HANSEN, who was with Cook for six weeks on the Hans Egede, says Cook admitted he was racing with Peary to make first announcement.

DAUGARD JENSEN, Inspector of Danish North Greenland, with Cook for two months, is convinced the doctor is telling the truth.

H. G. BRYANT, president of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia, says Eskimos are "childlike and unreliable and will say anything suggested to them."

CAPT. SVERDRUP, who commanded Nansen's boat, the Fram, is convinced absolutely that Cook reached the pole and is not at all surprised that Peary and Cook found no traces of each other.

CAPT. ROALD AMUNDSEN, discoverer of the northwest passage; Peary probably did not obtain any more valuable scientific results than Cook. They were equally equipped with only absolutely necessary instruments.

J. J. A. BOUQUET DE LA GRYE, geographer and member of Academy of Science, Paris; Why suspect Dr. Cook more than the others and assume that he is wrong? It is small business. Let us await his documents.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; It is not surprising that Cook and Peary did not meet, as the icebergs at the pole are in constant motion; further, more Cook came out to the west, and Peary to the east of Greenland, Peary's discovery does not alter the position of Dr. Cook, and both men are wonderful explorers.

M. LEVASSEUR, distinguished French geographer; Scientists will accept at once the statements of Peary as that of a man who has proofs. His equipment was thorough and extensive, and nothing was left to chance.

So far as Dr. Cook is concerned, we await a complete recital of his expedition before making up our minds.

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done." DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

DR. HELLMAN, Director of the Royal Observing Post, Brussels; Peary one can say "Well done."

HON. CHAS. MURPHY HITS GLOBE

Says Globe Attacks Government Without Getting Facts, and, After Praising Whitney, Executes Volte Face.

Notwithstanding current gossip that provincial Liberals were going to give a hand out to somebody at the annual meeting of the Ontario Reform Association in the Temple building yesterday, nothing occurred that was likely to precipitate a rebellion, except a slap at The Globe by Hon. Chas. Murphy, secretary of state, in an address on the relation of the Liberal party towards the party press. Other than that the meeting partook of the nature of a low feast.

The chief item of business was the decision to call a convention next June, when a new leader may be chosen and a new platform framed—if there is any material left. Some of the subjects to be considered are: abolition of the liquor traffic; taxation of public service corporations; imposition of penalties on voters who fail without excuse, to exercise their franchise; the abolition of race track gambling.

In his presidential address, H. W. Mowat outcried the work of the provincial opposition. It showed, he said, "fighting strength and a capacity for hard work; but it would be greatly assisted in aggressive force if it had a mandate from the party."

Promises Aggressive Policy. Hon. Geo. P. Graham, minister of railways and canals, said the Dominion government took a deal of credit for the results accomplished by the railway commission. He said the aggressive policy for the Dominion government, which he thought would satisfy every man in Canada, and stated that the subject of observing the relations and naval defence would be properly dealt with at the next session.

The report of the treasurer, P. C. Larkin, showed a balance on hand of $84,550.

For fear that something might be said which would injure the party, the reporters of observing that a Conservative newspaper was compelled to satisfy their curiosity by cooling their heads in the hot water of the benches in Jerusalem chamber outside.

The Officers. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was felicitous, and thanked those whose claims were as great as his own for stepping aside when he was called to be a member of the government.

Mr. Murphy's Attack. Mr. Murphy began by saying that while he had no desire to be supported by any but independent papers, he thought that papers that pretended to be Liberal in sympathy and spirit, were bound to be of the fact before attacking a government department.

The campaign of lies and slander of the Tory press had not been met and was being treated as his own. Let the Liberal papers be so apathetic that many of the staunchest Liberals shook their heads.

"Now," said Mr. Murphy, "that brings me to a recent matter—a discussion that was precipitated by our friends of The Toronto Globe in connection with the issuing of a license to the Metropolitan Racing Association—a matter that came up and was dealt with just as a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has been a mistake. The minister of the department should have been consulted. The press should be given the facts, and let me say that all these things and more had been done long before The Globe thought of them. I consulted the premier, and he said that it was a matter of department business. That was the way it should be treated. The fact is, however, that the license was issued, and there has