PEDESTRIANS MAY BE TO BLAME FOR SOME ACCIDENTS

Not Always the Driver of Vehicles Who Is Careless, Says Safety League.

ELSEWHERE THEY CALL THEM "JAYWALKERS"

The careless and reckless motorist can be reached legally, and the fines paid each year are evidence of the fact that he is reached, at least from time to time.

But what of the careless or reckless pedestrian? Can he be reached by law? Not in this country at least. This seems like discrimination on the face of things.

Most drivers of machines in Toronto are careful, and observe "safety first," otherwise there would be a host of accidents. Not that there have not been a great number of late, for the press has daily reports of accidents; but if pedestrians were to use a modicum of the care that is reasonable to expect, the unfortunate number would be reduced considerably.

The safety crusade now being carried on by the Ontario Safety League has as its primary object the reduction of accidents upon the public highways. The officials of the league report that one of the chief difficulties encountered is the persuading of each class of street users, viz., the motorists, the teamsters, the street car men and the pedestrians, to recognize the rights of the others. Pedestrians are too prone to think ill of the man in the automobile; the street railway motorman in turn thinks ill of the pedestrian and the automobilist, and so on.

In an endless chain, each feeling in his heart that the others are to blame. But to revert—does the ordinary pedestrian exercise sufficient care—that is, the care made necessary by the enormous increase in traffic upon the streets of Toronto? Of course, someone will answer by remarking that the pedestrian gets the worst of any mishap, but that is beside the question. Do you, when you cross a road, use the regular intersection? If you do, you are simply exercising consideration for others, and obeying the old rules of courtesy. In the United States they have coined a new term, which is applied to a certain class of pedestrians—the "jaywalker." A "jaywalker" is one who crosses the street at other points than the regular crossings; who stands in the middle of the sidewalk; or who carelessly passes on the left those he meets on the streets. This matter boils down to individual consideration. What are you going to do about it? What am I going to do about it? It is not always someone else that is hurt. The answer is easy—always look after the safety of the other fellow, and never trust him to look after his own. You have no right to take a chance; the other fellow may have to take the consequences. There is, nor can be, no justification for running a risk and thereby endangering human life or limb, unless the risk is taken in an effort to save a human life or limb.—Ontario Safety League.

NEW BAND AT HANLAN'S.
Manager Solman has engaged another musical feature of unusual importance, Prof. Lamphan and his celebrated Red Hussar Band. This organization is regarded very highly in the musical world, and it will doubtless be a worthy successor to the excellent bands that have preceded it. All visitors to the point this season will agree that the free concerts and features offered are of a very high order and not generally found in the average amusement park. It is the manager's policy to maintain a standard that will satisfy Torontonians, regardless of the expense. The coming of the Red Hussars is too prone to think ill of the man in the automobile; the street railway motorman in turn thinks ill of the pedestrian and the automobilist, and so on.

SAVING SOULS BY "MOVIES" NEW IDEA FOR PUBLIC HERE

Public History and Science Harmonized in Photo-Drama at Grand Opera House.

FREE EXHIBITIONS LAST TWO WEEKS

A mammoth collection of "movies" and colored slides, entitled "The Photo-Drama of Creation," will be shown free to the public in the Grand Opera House for two weeks, commencing Sunday at 8 o'clock p.m. Beginning next Monday, two exhibitions will be given daily, at 2.30 and 8 p.m. The series of exhibitions will cover the field of the Bible from the beginning of the Genesis account down thru the history of the Israelites and the Christian Church to the present. More than two miles of films are used in the production of the moving pictures, of rare beauty, excellence and historical interest, and about 500 colored slides present scenes in the story told. The spectacle is divided into four parts, each of which occupies, with music, lecturing, stereopticon and moving pictures, about two hours. These sections will be presented in order, the program changing twice each week, on Sunday and Wednesday, during the present showing at the Grand. There will be no charge for admission and no solicitation of funds made in any manner.

Slides Show the Creation.
First to be shown are a series of stereopticon slides, gradually changing from one to another. There appears, first, the earth, apparently no more than a dot among the great stars in the blue sky. The following slides show the earth in the process of cooling, and then are shown, in sequence, the seven creative "days," or epochs. Some of the slides are made for religious, to teach geographical and astronomical principles.

The story of man's creation in his Maker's image, of his disobedience, the result of the fall from Divine favor, are faithfully told. In delineating the account of the deluge, the Bible is closely followed. Here the moving pictures begin.

The Deluge Portrayed in Films.
The construction of the ark by stages gives a very realistic idea of how Noah and his children labored to complete the task. Finally, the great boat is completed, and the old man and his sons lead in the animals two by two. The mockery and scoffing of the people is quickly turned to terror as the sky is overcast and the rain begins to fall—the first rain in the Bible, which states that previously the earth was watered by a mist which rose from the ground.

Other Sections Follow.
The first twenty centuries of human history are shown in the first section of the drama. The scenes will be shown tomorrow and on Monday and Tuesday. The following sections complete the task. Finally, the principal events in Jewish and Christian history, including the life of Christ.

Accompanying the picture is a lecture specially adapted to and synchronized with the pictures. The International Bible Students' Association is presenting the drama of Creation. Its preparation is said to have required a vast amount of money, and to be the most elaborate, as well as the most complete, production of its kind ever attempted.

TOWNSHIP FEELS NEED OF HOSPITAL
Demand is Growing in New Districts North of City.

The need for a hospital in York Township of late years has been urgently felt, never more so than at the present time, owing to the large population, particularly in the southern portion immediately north of the city limits, and the steadily increasing number of families taking up holdings in every part of the township.

The number of cases of sickness requiring hospital treatment is also on the increase, particularly amongst children. As many as seven cases of sickness amongst children were sent to city hospitals recently for treatment, and as the amount received by the township from each family in taxation is about one dollar per year, the loss to the township is very great in this direction. Last year the large amount of $1,000 was paid out for hospital expenses by the council and it is felt that something will have to be done to overcome this expenditure in the near future.

The cast is a notable one, headed by Frank L. Wakefield, who will introduce the character of "Steve, the Dope."

LITTLE YOLANDA OBJECTED BEING CALLED "LADY"

Her Mother, the Italian Queen, Apologizes to Boatmen for Abrupt Remark Made by the Princess.

PRINCE SENDS CAMELS TO GENOA CHILDREN

ROME, Italy, July 25.—Princess Yolanda, thirteen years old last month, the eldest of King Victor Emmanuel's four children, is profoundly impressed with her rank and importance. She and her mother, Queen Helena, were in a boat at a small place near Pisa the other day, and as usual the Queen chatted with the boatman. When they were landing the man lifted the little girl into the shore, saying:

"There you are, little lady."

"I am not a lady," the royal child indignantly retorted. "I am a princess."

The Queen turned to the boatman, saying: "Thank you for lifting her out. She hopes to behave like a little lady and deserve the title some day."

Not long ago the queen and the princess went shopping in Genoa. In a fancy goods store they made several purchases and the Queen talked so amiably to the saleswoman that the latter said:

"Do you know, signora, you are so like our good Queen that, if I did not know you were no relation, I should take you for her sister."

The Queen only smiled and would have walked out pleased with the incident, but Princess Yolanda, who is impulsive, exclaimed:

"Mamma is your Queen; don't you know that?"

The saleswoman was overcome with confusion and began to murmur excuses. The Queen tried to smooth things over and gently reproved her daughter for having put the saleswoman to shame.

"Never say anything which will give people pain or make them uncomfortable," she observed as they walked out of the shop, observed by all the people in it, who had run up to the royal pair the moment they heard the Princess' remark.

While Queen Helena was in the neighborhood of Pisa, some fishermen were attacked by fish and bitten in the water. One was so badly injured that his comrades asked the police for a cart to take him to the hospital. Queen Helena happened to hear of the request and immediately sent her own motor car, with the request that the man be taken to the best surgeon in it at once and be well looked after, at her expense, till his complete recovery.

Crown Prince Humbert, who will be ten in September, visited the naval exhibition at Genoa after he finished his first cruise as a royal sailor aboard the man-of-war Puglia. After he had looked over the interesting display his tutor asked how he liked it. "I think it is very nice," the Prince answered. "But I am sure the children who go there would like to ride around the grounds on dromedaries or camels. I shall let them know I will send some from San Rossore."

He was as good as his word and the King allowed him to have several fine dromedaries sent from the family domain at San Rossore.

BOSTON, July 25.—The golden jubilee convention of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, to be opened in Winnipeg, on August 4, will mark the second time in the history of the order that a supreme lodge session has been held outside the United States. Plans for the meeting were announced today by George W. Pennington of this city, chairman of the committee on education of the supreme lodge.

Among the important matters of business to be taken up will be a proposition to reduce the age limit for admission from 21 years to 18. B. H. Young, of Ada, Okla., is the only announced candidate for supreme chancellor. Those seeking election as vice-chancellor include Fred J. G. McArthur of Winnipeg.

BEER MADE AT HOME

ANYONE CAN NOW MAKE BEER AT HOME FOR ONE CENT A GLASS

CINCINNATI, O., July 19.—By a new method of concentration a brewer of this city has discovered a process whereby real beer can now be furnished in concentrated form. He furnishes the barley malt, hops and other necessary ingredients in a concentrated form so that by only the addition of water and a little sugar a sparkling, foaming glass of beer can be quickly prepared. It is said that this beer is superior to the regular Brewery Beer, and thousands are already making their own beer at home.

Mr. A. S. Shuh, of 570 Sycamore street, Cincinnati, O., has written a very interesting booklet giving full information about his process, which he will mail with free trial offer to anyone sending him their name and address.
