GEN'S DETECTIVE FEATURE IS A REAL THRILLER

Battle of Wis Between Crooks and Sleuth—Pathé Weekly Replete With War Interest

A thrilling story of the strategy and deduction of a clever detective in solving a crime which had stumped the community was told yesterday at the Gem Theatre by the presentation of "The Mysterious Bank" in the "Gen's Detective Feature."

Winter, famous as a sleuth, distinguished himself. The escaping crooks make use of almost every conceivable means of flight, and would probably have gotten away in safety but for the use of an aeroplane in which they are overtaken. The story is in three parts and is capably enacted. It will be given again today.

Another interesting feature, and one which never seems to grow old was the showing of the latest Pathé News Weekly, replete with scenes of importance from the zone of war. The artillery were seen getting in readiness for their moving to the front; the troops of Russia were seen in review by the Czar before moving away to fight; there were many views which proved of profit and interest to all followers of the Allies' progress. The Gem orchestra rendered an attractive programme.

EIGHTH WEEK OF THE YOUNG-ADAMS CO. AUSPICIOUSLY BEGUN

Her Great Temptation Well Presented and Elegantly Costumed—Vaudeville Snappy and Attractive

The opening of the eighth week of the Young-Adams Company at the Opera House last night was marked with a comedy drama "Her Great Temptation" which was well received by a large audience. Applause was frequent throughout, the climax of the third act being particularly effective, and four curtain calls being given. The piece was nicely staged, the settings being most attractive, and it was also elegantly costumed, the gowns worn by Miss Adams being especially handsome. The story won its way to the hearts of the audience and proved of distinctive appealing powers, as presented by this company, each of whom showed to advantage in the role assigned to him or her.

Miss Adams, of course, carried the burden of the piece in the leading role as Queen Montrose and Miss Hense, Mr. Young sharing honors as Lord Walter Huntington, while others of the company aided in the successful performance of the piece included Mr. Hatfield, Mr. Rowland, and Miss Stevenson. The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Montrose... Clara Rose Hubner
Florence Fletcher... Marie Le Clair
Frank Horton... William Loker
Queen Montrose... Miss Hense
Marjie Adams
Earl of Chandos... Harry W. Lyon
John Henry Wilkins... F. J. Gregory
Alice St. Clair... Hazel Stevenson
Clarence St. Clair... Ben Hatfield
Little Eddie... James H. Rowland
Lord Walter Huntington... Marguerite Lord
H. Wilnot Young

Eight snappy vaudeville acts were given, including changes of bill by Hervey, who contributed some features in mid-revelling which showed him to be of outstanding cleverness in this respect, and also by Tenney and Allan, juggling the stage and team. Both acts won hearty applause. "Her Great Temptation" will continue until Thursday when "The Gold King" will be the bill.

PRIME VAUDEVILLE ACT AT IMPERIAL FINE PICTURE SHOW

English "Chappie" Act a Great Laugh Producer—Strong Attractions on Curtain

Another distinct novelty was introduced at Imperial Theatre yesterday in the English chappie act, Fred Hall "Amused" by Helen Stuart. Mr. Hall, who is an old London performer, very cleverly characterized Lord "Algy," the English duke, who could seem to fathom the slang conversation of the American, and his dialogue is therefore of the side-splitting variety. This act is interspersed with song and a dash of dancing and is entertaining as well as unique.

The remainder of the Imperial's bill is composed of a two-part Edison secret service drama in which Marc MacDermott, the eminent star, plays the star role with a great deal of dramatic power. The Heart-Seg Weekly is brimful of news photos and the comedies—a Florida Finch Vitagraph and a "Sweeney" Flanagan—elicit plenty of merriment.

On Wednesday another world-known star, Bruce McEae, will be introduced to the playgoers of St. John in the political romance, The Ring and the Man, a powerful production from the pen of Cyrus Townsend Brundage. This will be Mr. McEae's first appearance on the screen. His commanding personality and splendid poise fit him peculiarly for the role of Gormly, the man whose bravery and self-possession in the face of crucial circumstances enable him to successfully oppose the corrupt forces of the political ring that is trying to ruin him.

In hats and accessories alike elegance is the keynote, neither time nor effort having been spared in securing the best that the world's leading fashion centres had to offer.

In designs and colorings, the variety is unusually extensive, ranging from conservative effects to the most brilliant creations approved by foremost style authorities.

To early visitors belongs the privilege of seeing the Marr display in its full completeness and beauty.
