Do You Trespass on Land or Do You Own It?

Are your footsteps always confined to public highways or is there some part of the world's area on which you may walk without danger of prosecution or without payment of toll?
Ownership of real estate is desirable from the investment standpoint but it is still more desirable from the psychological standpoint. When you own land, you feel a dignity as a citizen which is quite impossible otherwise.
And, too, ownership of real estate increases your standing with your neighbors. They look upon you as a settled, substantial citizen, a worthy member of your community.
It is not difficult to become an owner of real estate. The requirement of money is not nearly so important as the necessity for stead-fastness, reliability and thrift.
Consult with the real estate dealers who publish their offerings for you in the columns of The Times-Star. Your opportunity may be in the form of a real estate advertisement published this very day.
Don't be a trespasser—be an owner.
