

IMPERIAL PRESENTS A BIG STORY SUCCESS

Gertrude Atherton's "Out of the Storm" Delights Very Large Crowds.

"Out of the Storm" is the latest Goldwyn Eminent Authors Production, which is being seen at the Imperial theatre this week commencement. The story was written by Gertrude Atherton, perhaps the most noted writer of romance.

"Out of the Storm," which is the film name for the story "The Tower of Ivory," deals with many intricate situations, including the love affair of a young English lord for a girl, who, through unfortunate circumstances, finds herself dependent upon the whim of a criminal for her livelihood.

Margaret Hill, played by Barbara Castleton, cherishes the ambition to become a famous operatic singer. Her voice attracts the attention of Albert Levering, played by Sydney Ainsworth. He takes her to his home in Seattle, and sends her to a professor to have her voice cultivated. Two years later he is arrested for embezzlement. Losing her advisor, alone in the world, this forms a crisis in Margaret's life.

Thenceforth, the story takes on an intricate and exciting aspect. The situations arising from the love of Margaret for the young English lord, played by John Bowers, and the antagonism to their union, form an absorbing and pathetic story that will hold the interest of the audience.

There is a shipwreck in "Out of the Storm" and the scene has been made so realistic on the screen, that it seems as though one were witnessing the real thing.

No effort has been spared to make this picture one of the finest of its kind produced and the facilities that Goldwyn has for the making of their many productions, add a sort of guarantee that this story by the Eminent Author, Gertrude Atherton, will not disappoint the readers of the novel, from which it was adapted.

An all-star cast was summoned for this picture, including, besides those already mentioned, Doris Pawn, Elaine Hancock, Lawson But, Ashton Dearholt, Edythe Chapman, Carrie Clark Ward, Lincoln Steadman and Clarissa Selwynne.

MAY PROBATE TWO WILLS OF ONE MAN

Question Raised in Court Over Estate of Late T. Lovett — No Limit to Probate.

(Montreal Gazette.)

Sitting in the Probate Division of the Superior Court yesterday, Mr. Justice Bruneau handed down judgment maintaining the principle of law that if two wills are written by one person, both may be admitted to probate, providing the one is not inconsistent with the other, does not pronounce with the other, is good or otherwise; it merely finds that the document in question is authentic.

The question was raised in a case in which Thomas Lovett, M. D., petitioner, for the probate of the will of his father, the late Thomas Lovett, engineer, of 1539 St. Denis street. The will was made in holograph form on January 2, 1917, and testator died on March 2 of the same year. He instituted petitioner one of the trustees and legatees, and provided that his estate should be left in trust, the usufruct of all his properties to be paid to testator's widow. At her death there was to be a division of the estate amongst members of testator's family.

Mrs. Elizabeth Commins, one of testator's daughters, and a beneficiary under the will, opposed her brother's petition on the ground that a first will of her father, also made in holograph form, and dated October 1, 1906, had been probated already, and she submitted that unless that was attacked and set aside a second will could not be proved.

Mr. Justice Bruneau said this contention could not be upheld. Established jurisprudence, he added, was against this and it was sufficient to cite the ruling in the case of Cutta and Gilbert, reported in Beauchamp's Jurisprudence of the Privy Council, in the first volume at page 827.

His Lordship said, further, that while the second will disposed of property which did not belong to testator when he made his first will, the two wills in question were not incompatible. Both were susceptible to verification. The court therefore granted the petition and ordered probate of the second will bearing date of March 2, 1917.

Markey and Co. appeared for the petitioner.

THE STORM HITS RHODE ISLAND

Providence, R. I., Sept. 13.—Damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars was done by a brief hail and thunderstorm, accompanied by a forty-five-mile an hour gale in a narrow area extending through Cranston, Warwick, and East Providence today. WOODSTOCK FAIR OPENED.

The provincial exhibition opened at Woodstock last evening. E. F. Bradt, deputy minister of agriculture, delivered the opening address in the absence of J. P. Tweeddale, minister of agriculture. Thomas Noddin, mayor of Woodstock, welcomed the visitors and paid a glowing tribute to the quality and variety of the display. Entries in live stock, vegetables and seeds are said to be the largest in the history of the fair.

PRESBYTERIANS IN TRURO ARE CELEBRATING

Truro, N. S., Sept. 13.—This was a red letter day in the annals of Presbyterianism in Truro and indeed in Canada, for it marked the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the oldest Presbyterian church in the dominion. The anniversary services began at 9 o'clock this afternoon and were continued till nearly 8. Many eminent divines of the Presbyterian church were on the platform which was banked with flowers. On the pipe organ was hung a blue banner that had flown from a flag pole fifty years ago when the church celebrated its centennial and again in 1886 when the Truro presbytery celebrated its 100th anniversary.

Rev. H. J. Fraser, pastor of St. Andrew's church Truro, presided and the four principal speakers were: Rev. C. McKinnon, D. D., principal of Pine Hill College, Halifax; Rev. Thos. Stewart, D. D., Halifax; Rev. Anderson Rogers, D. D., of Antigonish; and Rev. John Pringle, D. D., of Sydney. At the close of Dr. Pringle's address two honor rolls were unveiled. On them were inscribed the names of 188 members of the congregation who had taken part in the war, thirty-two of them having made the supreme sacrifice. This evening the new pastor of the church, Rev. John Mutch, of Toronto, was inducted.

A SAD TALE OF HOW TWO THIRSTY FARMERS WERE BUNCOED AT THE FAIR.

Newton, Sept. 14.—The detail of policemen on duty at the Waltham fair are telling a story of two prosperous citizens from the interior country who were victimized on the fair grounds by one of the oldest "con" games in existence.

The two were thirsty. They halted near a cider-making machine with a crowd of other thirsty ones and they both tasted the hard cider. They agreed that the cider was decent stuff, but when a man has a thirst—well, it takes more than cider to quench it. So they thought and so they said. And somebody heard them—a very wise somebody, wise and crafty, with an ear and an eye for something easy.

He beckoned to the two men and whispered that he knew where the "real deal" could be had. But the price!

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

Could they really afford to pay for something old and mellow—something not to be found in every blind pig? They could. Yes, indeed. They didn't come to town very often, but when they did—

The benevolent stranger disappeared. The two waited beneath the trees. Soon the wise one appeared again. A bulky something disturbed the smoothness of his coat—a something that promised much to the eager waiters.

"Twas only a pint. But compare a pint of good whisky to an ocean of cider!"

"Ten dollars," whispered the good Samaritan.

"Here's my five," said the tall farmer. "And mine," said the little fellow. The stranger departed from the place. The farmers exchanged a smile. Out came the cork and up went the bottle. "O!—good and kindly stranger! O!—credulous and thirsty farmers! Righto—it was cold tea!"

At the meeting of the G. W. V. A. last evening, a letter was received from Captain Kennedy, commander of H. M. S. Constance, expressing his appreciation of the hospitality extended by the association to the men of the warship.
