UNREST IS REPORTED IN INDIA

Trouble for Great Britain in Eastern Dominion is Feared

A LONDON LETTER

Cleavage in Political Parties at Home is Shown—Labor Party's Power is Said to be Developing—Mr. Balfour Goes on Golfing

(Toronto Telegram's London Letter.) London, Sept. 21.—Unrest in India, in Egypt, in South Africa, at home, in the Unionist party—though in this case the term "divine discontent" is sometimes used as a synonym—in the Liberal party, in the Labor party, and in the labor world. What is the meaning of it all? It is causing some embarrassment, but the issues will be good.

In all these several spheres "unrest" merely means but one thing, "divine discontent." No one likes the unrest there, but who can doubt that though it be through much tribulation there will be developed a happier state of things? It is not possible to govern India on the old lines. Existing governments clearly recognize this, and though Lord Morley, of all men, finds himself compelled to deport people without trial of any sort, the same Lord Morley sanctions reforms which aim at conceding to the people of India a fuller share in the administration of the country. Egypt, again, is suffering through a similar trouble. The refusal of the French government to sanction the holding of an Egyptian national congress in Paris has excited comment and added to the bitterness of feeling in Egypt, but in Egypt, as in India, the British government, seeing it is better that Great Britain should exercise control rather than any other European power.

South Africa More Hopeful

When we turn to South Africa the outlook is still more hopeful. There we begin with self-government. The unrest is therefore of a different sort altogether. It is sufficient to support a new order, and it is being regarded with real sympathy by the best minds. It is with a sense of relief that we learn that General Botha has determined to remain in office. It is felt that in all the circumstances it is well that he should do so. That his majority in the lower house is not large is regarded as a not unmixed evil, especially seeing that his majority in the upper house, though small, is still a majority.

Unrest at Home

Turning to the unrest here at home, it may be remarked that, as it is manifested in the several political parties, it is largely due to the young men in a hurry, but more than them very well meaning young men, ready to do and die for the cause. In the Unionist party, we are assured, there are many young men of talent and energy, and so on, who are simply panting to be let loose upon the Socialist Liberal government. It must be actively at headquarters. There must be a policy, and so on, and so on. All this chattering is not so much harm, for it gives the enemy occasion to jibe, occasion of which it takes full advantage. More activity the streets of the town and the lanes of the country? A policy wanted, when the very people who have been declaring for years that there is only one policy, viz., tariff reform, for purifying and clearing the blood, as they think it not improbable that Mr. Balfour rather than the young men of the "unrest," it regards it as indicative of vitality, and what is much more, the young man can be played off against the old man. That the Unionist party suffers from it is too much old party. Liberal "old party" or "stuck in the mud" can migrate to the Unionist party; Labor "old party" can enter the Liberal camp; but Unionist "old parties" have nowhere to go. They are already the last word in stampeding. Mr. Balfour regards the divine discontent of his young men as a set-off against the deadly dullness of his old men. He knows he has only to bestow upon them one of his benign smiles and they will find themselves under his car.

Liberals Steadier

It is much the same with the Liberals, though ever it is the case that party ties are less strong amongst Liberals than amongst Unionists. But the unrest in the Liberal party is indeed not as great as it was. The recent utterances of prominent cabinet ministers on the constitutional issue, to which I have previously referred, have steadied the party considerably. Then the demonstrations in Canada, the United States, Germany and elsewhere against the high prices of food and in favor of revised tariffs have made for solidarity and inspired hope.

Temporary Peace

In the Labor world the outlook is on the whole more reassuring. A temporary peace has been effected in the Welsh coal trade and negotiations are tending toward peace in the shipbuilding industry, as also on the railways. In the cotton trade a great lockout is threatened, but I am assured that in certain important quarters the trouble is not taken too seriously. The cause of the unrest in the Labor world is the sectional dispute, and employers generally feel that there must be an end to this, and in that the leaders of the men themselves are at one with the employers. So that the hope is strongly held that some means will be found of checking this particular evil. Collective bargaining will, I think, come well out of the present turmoil, but by what means this devoutly to be wished consummation will be attained, it is at present not easy to say.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

END OF THE BOSTON LIBERATOR By William Lloyd Garrison

From the Liberator, Dec. 29, 1865.

I BEGAN the publication of the Liberator without a subscriber, and I end it— it gives me unalloyed satisfaction to say—without a farthing as the pecuniary result of the patronage extended to it during 35 years of unremitting labors. Most happy am I to be no longer in conflict with the mass of my fellow-countrymen on the subject of slavery. For no man of any refinement or sensibility can be indifferent to the approbation of his fellow men, if it be rightly earned. But to obtain it by going with the multitude to do evil—by pandering to despotic power or a corrupt public sentiment—is self-degradation and personal dishonor.

For more true joy, Marcellus exiled feels, Than Cæsar with a senate at his heels.

Better to be in a minority of one with God—branded as a madman, incendiary, fanatic, heretic, infidel, frowned upon by "the powers that be," and rebuffed by the populace—or consigned ignominiously to the gallows, like him whose "soul is marching on," though his "body lies mouldering in the grave," or burnt to ashes at the stake like Wickliffe, or nailed to the cross like Him who "gave himself for the world"—in defence of the right, than like Herod, having the shouts of a multitude crying, "It is the voice of a god, and not of a man!"

Farewell, tried and faithful patrons! Farewell, generous benefactors, without whose voluntary but essential pecuniary contributions the Liberator must have long since been discontinued! Farewell, noble men and women who have wrought so long and so successfully, under God, to break every yoke! Hail, ye ransomed millions! Hail, your day of jubilee! With a grateful heart and a fresh baptism of the soul my last invocation shall be:—

Spirit of freedom on— Till every clime is won To worship in thy light: Speed on thy glorious way, And wake the sleeping lands! Millions are watching for the ray, And hit to thee their hands. Still "Onward!" be thy cry, Thy banner on the blast; And like a tempest, as thou rushest by, Depots shall shrink aghast. On till thy name is known Throughout the peopled earth; On! till from every vale, and where the mountains rise, Mans heritage by birth; On! till from every vale, and where the o the skies! The beacon lights of liberty shall kindle mountains rise.

THE FEAR OF HUMBUNG

Prevents Many People From Trying a Good Medicine. Stomach troubles are so common and in most cases so obstinate to cure that people are apt to look with suspicion on any remedy claiming to be a radical, permanent cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. Many such pride themselves on their astuteness in never being humbugged, especially in medicines. This fear of being humbugged can be carried too far, so far, in fact, that many people suffer for years with weak digestion rather than risk a little time and money in faithfully testing the claims made of a preparation so reliable and universally used as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
