WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

The latest Emglish newspapers coninteresting details of the experiments with Signor Marconi's system Channel, and of the new contrivat which, it is claimed, makes it cert which, it is claimed, makes it certain that any particular despatch shall be received by the station for which it is intended, and by no other. One of the main objections to the practical utility of the invention, it will be remembered, was that a message, sent into space as it were, could be intercepted by any aboratus existing within the prescribed dins. This possibility, it appears; has been obviated entirely. The experiment were conducted between the gunboat Ibis in the channel, the South Foreland, the Goodwin lightship and the French village of Wimeroux. Messages were first sent from the Ibis to the South Foreland, and were received simultaneously by the

A similar experiment was made ith the lightship, the ships com-unicating with each other, while the foreland was cut out. As a further test messages were sent simultaneous ly from Boulogne and the lightship to the South Foreland, where only the Boulogne message was taken by the receiver, the other being cut out at will. This experiment was also tried on board the Ibis and from the other points, in each instance with complet
