(New York World, April, 1889.) Frederick Fleming was fined $20 by Justice Kenna Thursday for petty lar-ceny. He was accused and found guilty by a jury of obtaining $6 from Fanny Klein under false pretenses, although the justice charged strongly in his favor. Lawyer Creamer, his counsel in the case, has given notice of appeal. This verdict against Frederick Flem ing, though trifling in itself, serves to make plain as peculiar, if not as ro-mantic, a family history as May Agnes Fleming ever told in "Guy Earls-court's Wife," "The Wonderful Wo-man," or "The Secret of a Life."
