

A NEW SIGNAL SERVICE.

A cyclone in the nursery, Sent Noah's ark a-riding; It made the dolls turn pale with fear, And almost fall crying.

The cyclone in the corner stood (Her other name was Florence); Her face was overcast with clouds, The tears rained down in torrents;

"What's that?" inquired the puzzled child; Again the tears had started. "Hold on a minute, you shall see," Said Tru, and he started.

"This means no storms to-day," he said; "Why, Flo, how did you know it? Now every time you smile like this, The flag shall fly to show it;

"I'll hang it by the door here— This one of the Madonnas. 'Twill tell you're trying to be good, And trying upon honor."

"Though out of doors 'tis cold and damp, From wind and rain together, Sweet looks will change the dreariest day To bright and pleasant weather.

A great improvement this has wrought In temper and in manner, I For in the nursery still I see A pretty blue silk banner, And this I know, that earnestly A little maid is trying

To be a good, sweet child, and keep Her signal flag a-flying. —Golden Days.

THE HOME.

An Object Lesson.

There are many kinds of fashionable foolishness, some of which are best corrected by a lesson in kind. A writer in the Boston Post reports such a lesson, which might well be tried in many families.

One evening this gentleman came home with a budget of news. An acquaintance had failed in business. He spoke of the incident as "awfully sweet," "awfully jolly," or "awfully" something else.

The young people stared, and the eldest daughter said, "Why, papa, I should think you were out of your head."

"Not in the least, my dear," he said pleasantly, "I'm merely trying to follow the fashion. I worked out 'divinely rancid' with a good deal of labor. It seems to me rather more effective than 'awfully sweet.' I mean to keep up with the rest of you hereafter. And now," he continued, "let me help you to a piece of this 'exquisitely tough beef!'"

The Social Life of the Home. "Benot forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares," is commonly explained in the light of Abraham's hospitality.

Machinery has done away with the need of extra help, and so many a home draws about itself a narrow circle that is conducive to the best good of all the inmates.

There are great possibilities along this line in the communities where The Household goes, for some of the many kinds of societies can be easily organized.

We have just read of one called "The Neighbors," told about by Kate Upson Clark. The name suggests how it was carried on. They met, had readings, music, chat and light refreshments. They got acquainted with each other.

In each one striving to be companionable, they forgot themselves, and the result was a greatly improved community. This was of young people, but the contagion spread, until a more purely literary society was formed, admitting both men and women.

Public spirit was aroused, lecturers and readers were engaged; society was altogether renovated, and it all grew out of one woman thinking—and putting the thought into words: "We lose power by not getting together."

at your homes; remember that the New Testament lays very great stress upon hospitality, and that hospitality need not imply extravagant expenditure. Avoid belittling and exciting amusements, but provide food for talk and for thought.

"If possible, inaugurate a series of such entertainments, which shall be participated in during their course about equally by all who attend them. You will be amazed to find how much your neighbors know, and what excellent people there are among them."

"And, above all, you will imbibe, if your experiment is pushed in the right spirit, even amid the difficulties which will arise, something of that ennobling feeling of the brotherhood of man, which is one of the best results of true social intercourse."

How to Use Soap-Bark. There are very few people who understand how to use soap-bark. It is the very best cleaning material in use. Nothing else cleans a black silk or black woolen dress so satisfactorily.

Home Remedies. —It is said that a strong solution of eopon salts in water will cure burns if applied immediately.

—To cure cold-sores keep them dry from saliva and touch them once or twice carefully with carbolic acid, then apply alcohol occasionally.

—To cure ringworm or burning sounds in the ears, fill a small vial half full of flour of sulphur, then fill up the bottle with alcohol and take three drops four times a day.

Thyme Cure for Whooping Cough. Common thyme, which was recommended in whooping cough three or four years ago by S. B. Johnson, is regarded by Dr. Neovius, who writes a paper on the subject in a Finnish medical journal, as almost worthy the title of a specific.

Regarding the dose, he advises that a larger quantity than Dr. Johnson prescribed be taken. He gives from one ounce and a half to six ounces per diem combined with a little marshmallow syrup.

THE FARM. The Care of Road Horses. The small amount of care usually bestowed upon horses after a long drive is the subject of an article in the American Agriculturist, and some suggestions are also given as to what should be done for them in order to prevent ill results.

Salads. Nearly every civilized person likes salads, and it is considered an accomplishment for men, as well as women, to know how to prepare them.

Another dressing is made by taking the yolks of four hard-boiled eggs, thoroughly beaten with salt, pepper and mustard. Melt a large lump of butter, and stir in the yolks, and mix in the oil, vinegar, drop by drop, until it is the right consistency.

Still another dressing is made by taking two boiled potatoes, yolks of two hard-boiled eggs, a moiety of pounded onion, four teaspoonfuls of melted butter, two vinegars, one of mustard, one of salt, and one of Worcester's sauce.

These dressings can be used for any kind of salad, and should be poured over it just before serving. Sometimes half of the dressing is used in the salad, and the guests pour as much as they wish over their plate of salad, which is already mixed with the other half of the dressing.

For chicken salad you can use the white and dark meat, or only the white meat. Be very careful that there is no crusty skin, or little pieces of bone. Chop it well, and mix with two-thirds of coarsely-chopped celery, or finely-chopped young cabbage. Cook turkey, duck, or veal as used instead of the chicken. You can use almost any kind of meat or game for salads, and it is a good way to use up the remnants.

For salmon salad you can use either freshly-cooked or canned salmon, laying it upon a layer of lettuce leaves, or finely-chopped cabbage. If the latter is used, decorate with parsley leaves and the chopped whites of hard-boiled eggs.

PARSON'S PILLS

Make New, Rich Blood! These pills were a wonderful discovery. No other pills were ever made. They are the only pills that will cure all the diseases of the blood.

Almost any kind of fish can be made into a salad, and chopped celery can be used in the mixture. For tomato salad, take six large tomatoes, or more, peel them and cut into small pieces. Mix it with a much vinegar and celery, finely chopped, and salt and pepper.

Potato salad.—Take cold, boiled potatoes and some finely-chopped onions, and use one of the dressings.—Exchange.

fast trotting horses of the country know what food is best suited for the needs of road horses, and they depend largely on oats, with a small quantity of bright hay for the rations that they give.

There is a great muscular waste in this work, a muscle-forming food is needed. It is also of much importance, in the case of road horses, to see that the shoeing is properly done. Where the feet play such an important part in the work one cannot watch too closely to see that nothing goes wrong, either in the manner of shoeing, or in the time when it needs to be done.

A Grape-Pruning Experiment. There are many curious facts in vegetable philosophy not yet known to man. In pruning grapes it is a safe point to avoid too much bleeding. In pruning, last November, a few in my garden, where I like to experiment, I concluded to leave two along the north line fence, a Niagara and a Duchess, for experiment in the spring.
