WINTER DAYS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Now our beautiful northland comes once again into her own. Fruits and flowers and soft voluptuous summer winds she has in common with all the world, but the south can boast no winter days like ours.

Days of leveled sunshine and frost-blasted distances. Days of silver-bearded hills, and gleams of white, wonderful clarity when the icy fire of the north leap and turn into the midnight sky.

Then comes the golden dawn, falling over the dark bayonets of pines to sweep in glad splendor through the delicate network of birch boughs and water while the long shadows, glowing loveliness, a place of miracles.

At no other time of year does the beauty of color so delight the eye. Summer radiates us with her profusion of bloom, and with a feeling almost of relief we watch the intense reds and yellows of autumn fade into a common greyish blue.

But it is with daily and increasing joy that we behold the slow splendor of a winter sunset.

To that great festival of color all are invited. But it is with daily and increasing joy that we behold the slow splendor of a winter sunset.

ST. CROIX HARBOR

Capt. Mowatt Pronounces It the Equal of the Finest Port in the World—Safe Approach, Broad and Deep Entrance, Good Anchorage, Abundant Wharf Space, Great Opportunities for Dry Docks.

(St. Andrews Beacon.)

Captain H. Mowatt, late port captain of the C. P. R. at Liverpool, has made the following report to the St. Andrews board of trade upon the approaches and conditions at St. Croix harbor and Passamaquoddy Bay, and which make it in his opinion one of the finest natural harbors in the world.

The approach to the port of St. Croix via Head Harbor, is equal to the approach of any other great ports in the world, and in many instances, exceeds the best of them.

WESTERN CONSERVATIVES' KICK MAY BE EFFECTIVE

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Western Conservative members who put up a strong fight in the government caucus yesterday for the removal of wheat and flour duties and who are temporarily turned down by the ultra-protectionist element in the east, are continuing the fight both for free wheat and a drastic reduction of a duty on agricultural implements, as being the only political salvation for Conservative candidates, especially in western Canada, at the next general election.

Present indications are that for this session a compromise will be reached by a decision to make a cut in the duty on agricultural implements. Corridor rumors have it that the government is already persuaded to reduce the duty on
