

Among English Inns

Norfolk and our sail on the Broads; and the whole party have fallen so deeply in love with the little country full of green fields and singing birds, bright flowers, pleasant hostelries, and civil, simple people, that they look forward with longing to future expeditions in other counties of Merrie England.

THE END.